2,000,000 VOTE IN STATE FIGHT

Today

Radio Dulls Elections.
San Francisco's Great Bridge.
Our Homeless Native Born.
Selassie Gave a Party.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE AMERICAN people today are performing a great, sovereign function at the polls, with little interest or enthusiasm. When it is over, the country will be just about where it was before, with some out, some in.

The radio, enabling families to remain at home, tuning in on comedy or jazz and tuning out on political speeches, has taken enthusiasm out of public meetings. Why go out when you can tune in?

A few boys lighting bonfires, glad of any opportunity to defy the law, are all that is left of the old election enthusiasm.

THIS ELECTION will have its importance historically, initiating definite action based on protest against prohibition and disappointment in its results.

W. R. Hearst, whose newspapers for many years before prohibition savagely attacked the whisky trade, supplying prohibition with many texts and cartoons, finds that after 10 years of prohibition, whisky has become the sole national drink, and cocktails the amusement of children.

WHATEVER THE people and the lawmakers may decide to do, it is to be hoped they will leave the national government in charge of the problem, and not establish 48 separate bootleg problems in the 48 states.

MEN AND WOMEN of San Francisco will vote today for one of the most important and magnificent improvements ever undertaken by a great city.

The proposed Golden Gate Bridge will be not only one of the greatest, but one of the most beautiful engineering achievements in the world, another proof of California's hospitable desire to make visitors welcome, and proof of San Francisco's driving power and determination to achieve.

The probable cost, $35,000,000, will be a small price to pay for one of the most useful, magnificent and beautiful structures in the world.

THOSE WHO believe that foreign emigration threatens our nation with a mob of "homeless unemployed" will be interested in statistics concerning 14,000 homeless men in New York's Bowery, questioned about their past and present by the welfare council of New York.

They were practically all native-born Americans more than 40 years old, unskilled and without any money.

You would find it hard to gather together 14,000 foreign-born, of that type.

MARVELOUS, WONDERFUL, amazing, far beyond the adjectives of any writer of circus advertising was the crowning of Haile Selassie First, as Emperor of Abyssinia, at Addis Ababa.

The emperor, you must know, is a direct result of the visit that the Queen of Sheba paid to King Solomon. She had a baby when she came home. That baby is Selassie's ancestor. This may be mentioned as Sheba has been dead 2,000 years, and more.

THE POWERFUL Solomon, for whom 1,000 wives were not too many, would hardly recognize his emperor descendant with thin ankles, tiny hands, a little whiskered face, like any one of a dozen gentlemen that sell imitation lace tablecloths in German restaurants.

THE EMPEROR and his wife, powerful, heavy woman, sat up all night praying. In the morning they washed, and meanwhile the supply of water was cut off from everybody else in Addis Ababa, that it might be kept pure for the monarchs.

ABYSSINIAN PRINCES wore silk, satin, gold and carried shields of rhinoceros hide and medieval swords hundreds of years old. Six snow white horses dragged the emperor in a carriage that once belonged to the German Kaiser.

The delicate emperor was almost suffocated with incense and stifling smoke from candles at the coronation in the church.

WHEN THAT was over the bearded priests danced a wild dance in front of the church, swaying their bodies violently to the music of drums and cymbals.

Then the emporer sat on a high platform, out of doors, to be seen and cheered, with four wild roaring lions fastened with ropes to the platform. With their beautiful golden manes they were supposed to be guardians of the throne of Ethiopia, descendants of the lion of Judda. They would have eaten the emperor, if they could have got him.

FINALLY, THE emperor fed 25,000 of his tribesmen with the raw meat of 5,000 head of cattle, and as much as they could drink of wine made of fermented honey.

It was a real party.

PITTSBURGH WOMAN LOST

Posse, Airplane Seeking Miss Alice R. Davidson, Missing From Maine Home

BLUE HILL, Maine, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Nearly 250 persons and an airplane were engaged today in searching for Miss Alice R. Davidson, 51, member of a wealthy Pittsburgh family, who had been absent from the Davidson home on Parker's Point since noon yesterday.

She went out for her customary daily walk and between 1 and 1:30 p. m. was seen on Blue Hill Falls bridge, a mile and a half from the Davidson property. On the bridge was found a button from her coat.

Miss Davidson has been suffering from a nervous disorder. Her mother, Mrs. N. J. Davidson, a sister and retinue of servants, were spending the vacations months with her and all were to leave for Pittsburgh Friday.

FAMILY ABSENT

Miss Alice Reed Davidson is the daughter of Mrs. Josiah N. Davidson, of 4909 Ellsworth avenue. No member of the family or servant could be found at the residence here. Information from the home of Mrs. Larmour Adams, of Erie, a sister of the missing Pittsburgher, was that the Davidson family had spent the entire summer at their Maine home. No word had been received at Erie, however, as to Miss Davidson's absence.

COAL FOR POOR OFFERED FREE

An offer of 500 tons of coal a day for relief of needy families was made in a letter today to County Commissioner E. V. Babcock from John C. Graham, Butler attorney.

In his letter Graham states he has "millions of tons of coal in the hills of Clarion County," and he proposes to furnish work for hundreds of idle miners whom the county will have to assist this winter. He suggests that idle municipal trucks be put to work hauling the coal while he will furnish the mine superintendent and donate 500 tons daily.

His letter concludes:

"Will you help me to help others to help themselves?"

Commissioner Babcock, upon receipt of the letter today said:

"This is a magnanimous offer and I will refer it to the board of commissioners."

Miss Enid Rankin, Wirter, Dies in Paris

PARIS, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Enid Rankin, American author, died today in the American Hospital. Miss Rankin, whose home was in New York, was 43 years old.

Election Notice

Warning was given today that one to three years in prison and a fine of $100 to $1,000 is the penalty for tearing down tally sheets posted outside polling places, and county officials announce they will strictly enforce this law.

The Sun-Telegraph tonight will be represented by Tristate election canvassers, who will gather election returns. Courtesies extended them by election boards will be fully appreciated by this newspaper.

The Sun-Telegraph tonight will broadcast full results of the balloting over WCAE as soon as returns are received.

Radio Notables Laud KDKA for 10 Years on Air

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

The spirit of radio progress pervaded the William Penn banquet hall last night as celebrities gathered to celebrate the tenth anniversary of broadcasting by KDKA, "Pioneer Radio Station of the World."

An infant which 10 years ago squawked for its mamma and the milk of life to nourish its existence, last night looked on in majesty as the world proclaimed its name. Powerful and healthy, the Youth Radio watched M. H. Aylesworth blow out the candles on its birthday cake and make a wish—a wish for greater service to humanity.

RADIO WINS CHANCE

That boy, Radio, grew like Jack's beanstalk. H. P. Davis adopted him, fed him electronic cereals morning, noon and night and soon had him boasting about what he would do if ever given the chance.

Men who gave him the chance spoke at last night's banquet. There were Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the NBC, who told the Boy he could romp merrily at 711 Fifth avenue if he showed signs of development; Maj. Gen. Charles McKinley Saltzman, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, who stood over the Boy like a teacher, stick in hand, telling him he would be paddled if he didn't behave, and James

DRY SUSPENDED FOR 'TREATING'

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The Boston Evening American today quotes James J. Donovan, assistant prohibition administrator of New York, whose home is in this city, as admitting he had been suspended for having given drinks to two supposed friends, whom he afterward discovered had been induced to help get evidence against him.

Donovan was chief aide to Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator for New York, who resigned last summer after declining to accept a transfer to Boston.

Donovan charged, the American said, that Campbell had been "forced out because he enforced the prohibition law in New York," and added "it was only natural his chief aide would soon follow in his footsteps." He said:

"There is no particular mystery in this affair and fortunately there are no scandalous charges which can be preferred against me.

"The actual charge against me is taking a drink of liquor and giving a couple of drinks to two men whom I had always considered close personal friends and whom I have since learned were working for the higher-ups in the department to get evidence that would sustain a charge against me."

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Senator K. D. McKellar, injured last week in an automobile accident in Oklahoma, came home on a stretcher today and asked his friends to arrange some means for him to vote.

SEEK MAN IN 4 BALLOT THEFTS

'Mystery Man' Bilks Quartet Of Vote Officials; Election Judge Bares Latest Fraud

County detectives today continued their search for an unidentified man who tricked the judges of four election boards into giving up ballots and lists of registered voters for use in today's election.

The fourth fraud was uncovered this morning when John Pugliez, of 1353 Vickroy street, judge of election in the Third District, First Ward, revealed that he had handed over registration books and ballots Sunday to a stranger who told him other members of the board wished to see the supplies.

Pugliez's story was told after he had failed to appear at the polling place in the Forbes School, Forbes and Stevenson streets, and reported for work as a motorman for the Pittsburgh Railways Company, instead. He accompanied detectives to the office of Chief George W. Murren, who said later no suspicion was attached to Pugliez.

CURBSTONE ELECTION

Members of the board held a curbstone election and chose John Barry, 1315 Seitz street, as judge of election. The County Commissioners sent new ballots and a certified list of registered voters which permitted balloting to begin with only a short delay.

Constable John Schneider, of the First Ward, brought in a suspect in connection with the obtaining of ballots by trickery from William Richardson, 412 Third avenue, judge of election, First District, First Ward. He

Rain in Rural Areas Hurts Pinchot Vote

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Rain started falling over the eastern half of Pennsylvania this morning, greatly hampering the casting of ballots in the isolated rural districts.

The showers are expected to result in a decided drop in the number of votes predicted in many districts. Incidentally veteran political observers believed the showers would affect Gifford Pinchot's supporters more than those of his opponent, John M. Hemphill, as Pinchot's following is reported greater in the rural districts.

Italian King, Queen May Visit Bulgaria

ROME, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The Sofia correspondent of Il Piccolo said in a dispatch today that it was believed there that the King and Queen of Italy would visit Czar Boris and Queen Ioanna either in March or in April, arriving at Varna aboard the royal yacht Savoia with an escort of warships. It was believed they would remain in the country a week.

RIVALS SEE ELECTION 'STEAL'

Last-Minute Charges Mark Climax to Campaign; Close Race Expected

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Gifford Pinchot and John M. Hemphill awaited a verdict today on their race for the governorship of Pennsylvania from some 2,000,000 voters who went to the polls to elect a whole state ticket, a United States senator and 36 members of the national House of Representatives.

Battling to the last moment in a campaign that will turn Philadelphia Democratic for the first time in modern history, the two candidates—one old and worn by political conflict, the other making his debut as a candidate for public office—will make political history, since a victory for either will shatter 40 years of precedents in this state.

It has been just that long since Pennsylvania either re-elected a former governor or chose a Democrat for that high office.

OUTCOME IN DOUBT

The outcome was in doubt, though both candidates and their official spokesmen hammered the welkins with the usual inflated predictions. Pinchot claimed his election was a certainty by several hundred thousand, while Hemphill revealed a belief that he too would be elected by a huge majority. There seemed to be no last-minute development, however, which would change earlier indications of an extremely close race.

The closing hours of the campaign were featured by charges and counter-charges of fraud. State Senator Samuel W. Salus charged there was a conspiracy between Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, and Mayor Kline, of Pittsburgh, "to steal the election for Pinchot." He said Mackey's orders to Philadelphia election boards to get their returns made within two hours was intended to give the Pittsburgh Republican organization oppor-

ELECTION FIGHT FATAL TO ONE

DANVILLE, Ky., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—An election quarrel at Turkey Pen precinct here today resulted in the fatal shooting of Ed Doneghy, Negro, by Joe Hayden, 60, a white Democratic election challenger. Doneghy was killed when he visited the precinct to "straighten out" a trivial disagreement as to a Negro voting at the booth.

Hayden was arrested by Sheriff James Bean, made bond a few minutes later and returned to the election booth to continue his work. He claimed he shot in self-defense.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The reported abduction of Rex V. Hedrick, of Buckner, Mo., chairman of the Jackson County board of election commissioners, and the arrest of two armed political workers here were the first untoward incidents of the election in this county today. A heavy early vote was polled.

Couzens Leaves Hospital to Vote

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—United States Senator James Couzens, who underwent an operation two weeks ago for gall stones, left the hospital this morning to vote. His physician permitted him to return home after visiting his polling place. His condition was said to be entirely satisfactory.

Congress Control at Stake As Nation Waits Verdict Of Today's Election

Associated Press.

In an election weighted with uncertainties the nation is deciding today who shall sit in Congress and in the places of authority at 32 state capitals.

A Democratic swing away from the great Republican majorities of 1928 is conceded, but its extent is so beclouded, even in the private reckonings of party leaders, that only the returns themselves can tell the story.

Basing their campaign of attack on President Hoover's conduct of his administration in the business crisis, the Democrats are acknowledged even by the Republican stalwants to have menaced seriously Republican dominance in the House, and reduced the Republican margin in the Senate. As a result, control of Senate or House, or both, by a Democratic-Independent coalition, was a possibility.

RUM BIG ISSUE

Prohibition, unrecognized by either party as a national issue, has all but monopolized the stage in many localities and any overtures will be scrutinized with extreme interest by drys and anti-drys.

Not only are the possible fortunes of President Hoover in 1932 thus entangled with today's verdict at the polls, but the result is fraught with potentialities for other outstanding figures in American politics.

Among other things, the election will decide whether Franklin D. Roosevelt, groomed by his supporters for the presidency, will be

PINCHOT BEATS RIVAL TO POLLS

MILFORD, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor, voted shortly after 10 a. m. today. He was accompanied by Mrs. Pinchot, who also cast her ballot. Pinchot's ballot was number 24.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—At a few minutes after 11 o'clock this morning, John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal gubernatorial candidate, cast his ballot in the First precinct in West Chester.

Hoover, Cabinet to Hear Returns Over Radio

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The home radio and telephone will bring election results to President Hoover and a majority of his cabinet, though some will be found all through election day and election night on the Republican fighting front.

With a number of intimate friends the President expects to receive returns in the White House until his usual retiring hour—10:30 o'clock. For the full story of the ballots — whether the Seventy-second Congress will be dominated by Democratic opposition—he will wait until next day.

The cabinet members, campaigners almost all, each with a special election interest, will be among the most eager watchers of results.

The most active cabinet member, of course, is James J. Davis, the secretary of labor, himself a candidate. Already in Pittsburgh, conducting the finale of his own campaign for the senatorship from Pennsylvania, Secretary Davis was to be jointed today by Mrs. Davis, who has lost no opportunities to aid her husband.

Pittsburgh drew also Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, who intended casting his vote at the home precinct in person.

'Mystery Man's' Costume Silk Hat, Shoes, Smile

A tall, gaunt man who strolls through the streets of the Winebiddle and Friendship avenue districts clad only in a pair of shoes and a high silk hat was being sought today by a special detail of police from the Forty-third Street Police Station. Reports of the stranger ringing doorbells and accosting women on the streets have caused police to patrol the district at night in plain clothes.

Last week he was seen by one of the special police who fired two shots at him. The man disappeared after leaping over a fence, a difficult jump.

Residents of the district report that the man rings the doorbell of a home and when women open the door, the stranger lifts his hat, smiles, and then runs away. He is also known to have approached women on the street and to have touched them on the shoulder. When they turn he lifts his hat and smiles. He has been seen on the street as early as 7 p. m. and throughout the night until as late as 8 a. m.

PRESIDENTIAL AMBITIONS HINGE ON TODAY'S BALLOTING

WHITE HOUSE TIMBER IN MAKING

Results Certain to Affect Decisions of Both Parties In 1932; Pinchot Looms

By EDWARD L. BODDAM,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The elections today will provide a test of strength for several prospective presidential candidates who may make the race in 1932.

Barring unexpected developments, the Democratic nominee will almost certainly be one of the men who come off victorious at the polls today.

By the same token, a Republican candidate may emerge to block President Hoover's path to renomination two years hence.

The Democrats being watched in the voting are Govs. Roosevelt of New York, and Ritchie, of Maryland; Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, and senatorial candidate Robert J. Bulkley in Ohio.

PINCHOT WATCHED

The G. O. P. standard bearers who loom large on the national horizon are Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania; Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, and senatorial candidate Dwight W. Morrow in New Jersey.

Roosevelt and Ritchie have the advantage of favoring dry law repeal at a time when sentiment against prohibition is sweeping the country. Roosevelt likewise comes from the pivotal state of New York, which both major parties seek to carry in a presidential year.

Senator Robinson, whose reelection for a third term is assured, may find himself heavily backed by that wing of the Democratic party desiring to nominate a dry for the White House. He also has a strong following among the Woodrow Wilson followers who favor the League of Nations and the League Court.

BULKLEY FORMIDABLE

Bulkley's strength lies in the fact that a Democrat who can carry the normally Republican state of Ohio has a fine chance of nomination by his party. Bulkley also favors dry law repeal.

The outstanding menace to President Hoover in the Republican ranks is Gifford Pinchot, candidate for governor in Pennsylvania, who is a staunch dry and an outstanding foe of the power trust.

An easy victory for Dwight Morrow in New Jersey may make him a presidential candidate whether he wants to be or not. Morrow is already in high favor with the business and industrial forces of the country, while his stand for modification has helped him considerably.

No list of presidential candidates is complete without mention of Senator Borah, who has one of the largest individual followings of any political figure in the country. Heretofore Borah has remained on the sidelines, but should he strike out for the nomination in 1932, the Idaho man would be hard to beat.

KLINE DIRECTS VOTE WORKERS

Mayor Kline today was personally directing the workers in the Woods Run district to get out the vote for Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, according to information received by Arthur M. Scully, county chairman of the Liberal party backing John M. Hemphill, Pinchot's Democratic opponent.

Scully was quoted as saying the Mayor was using coercion on the city payroll in an effort to roll up a big vote for Pinchot on the North Side. Scully observed this is the first time in the history of city politics that a Mayor has gone out of his own ward to electioneer on election day.

Woods Run includes the Twenty-seventh Ward, of which Assemblyman S. J. Grenet is Republican chairman. Grenet bolted a few days ago to Hemphill.

Vice President One Of Earliest Voters

POLICE REFUSE CAPONE 'TRADE'

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—There will be no "peace treaty" with Alfonse Capone, gang leader, Chicago authorities let it be known today. Their attitude was revealed following reports that the gangster offered to quit labor racketeering and leave Chicago in exchange for no interference with his beer business.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Ralph Capone, brother of the gang chieftain, was fined $25 in Municipal Court here after he pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Arrested on complaint of a hotel clerk, he gave police the name of Albert Ross.

VOTE MACHINES PUT TO TEST

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Despite ideal weather conditions only a light early vote was being cast in the city of Erie today, where in three of the six wards voting machines were being used for the first time. Election officials reported no confusion. Many industrial plants are closing early this afternoon to permit employes to ballot.

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Voting during the morning hours today was much heavier than usual throughout Lackawanna County. Voting machines are being used in the 246 districts for the first time and citizens seemed anxious to try out the machines. As a result the vote during the morning was heavier than in other years. The machines operated perfectly, election officers reported.

YORK, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Under a cloudy sky, which threatened rain, the voters went to the polls this morning in small numbers. In several of the city voting districts the workers report that the balloting was far behind that of other years when a gubernatorial contest was in progress.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Scattered unofficial and incomplete election returns from 50 precincts, the bulk of them in Kansas City, Kan., indicated a close race for the governorship of Kansas and gave Harry Woodring, Democrat, a slight lead over Frank Haucke, Republican.

Counting of returns in Kansas began at noon.

HEARST LIQUOR CONTROL PLAN APPROVED

Congressional Leaders, Both Dry and Anti-Dry, Concede Project Best Yet Offered

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—William Randolph Hearst's radio address throughout the nation advocating a temperance plan to supplant prohibition continued to evoke favorable comment in congressional circles today.

Senator Caraway, (Dem.) of Arkansas, a prohibitionist, hailed the publisher's analysis of the prohibition situation as a helpful contribution to the discussion for remedying present conditions.

Representative George Holden Tinkham, (Rep.), of Massachusetts, anti-prohibitionist, said that Mr. Hearst had, with convincing logic, pointed out the incompatibility of the present attempt at absolute prohibition with the tradition of the American people.

SEE SOUND ADVICE

While some members of Congress said they would have to study further the publisher's proposed plan, others considered it as a sound method to solve the situation and put the country back on the road to temperance.

The plan suggested by Mr. Hearst provides that the Federal Government retain control of liquor legislation, allow restricted manufacture of alcoholic beverages, monopolize distribution of such alcoholic beverages and sell such beverages, preferably light wines and beers, in limited quantities, to licensed restaurants, hotels and homes.

When Congress reconvenes in December and the prohibition issue is again brought forward, the Hearst plan will be given considerable attention, it was pointed out. To some members of Congress it is the most comprehensible and feasible yet advanced.

DRY FINDS IT AID

Senator Caraway said:

"I have read synopsis of Mr. Hearst's speech on prohibition but have not yet seen the full text. I have this to say:

"President Hoover's unwillingness or inability to enforce the prohibition laws has greatly discouraged many sincere believers in prohibition, and there will be a determined effort made to find a commonsense solution of this question. Personally, I think prohibition has come to stay.

"However, I presume nobody contends there is not a ground for honest difference of opinion as to the provisions of the laws and everyone welcomes any fair and intelligent discussion of the problem. This because I think no one is so hardy as to insist that the present administration has tried to find a solution or to enforce the law.

"Any thoughtful discussion of the present situation, such as Mr. Hearst has made, will be helpful."

TINKHAM LAUDS SPEECH

Representative Tinkham said:

"Mr. Hearst has made a valuable review of the unspeakable evils of total compulsory prohibition.

"With clear vision, he has penetrated the impossibility and the complete impracticability of this policy. He properly denounces an attempt to regulate by bureaucratic control the domestic habits and customs of a free people.

"With convincing logic, he denounces the wholly offensive and insulting system of espionage and coercion of free men by a federal government.

"He points out the utter incompatibility of this wretched tyranny and oppression to the character and tradition of the American people."

Coolidge Makes Final Plea for All to Vote

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 4.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The November elections held in the even years afford the only direct, formal and legal method for the regular nationwide expression of the sovereignty of the people.

Calvin Coolidge

These days are a test of self government. Their results do not give us absolute perfection and security but they do give us the safest and best government that it has ever been possible for a great nation to provide.

We need to exert ourselves to line up to the ideal of a sovereign, self-governing people. We need to think for ourselves. That means voting our own convictions. We need to act for ourselves. That means going to the polls without having to be dragooned by a ward committee.

By this time all voters should know what candidates they want to support. Plans should be made to vote as early as possible. Everything else is subordinate on election day.

There is nothing new or complicated about the duty of the voter. Everyone can understand it. The cheapest and best way is to meet it. The cost to the people of enfranchised indifference is one of our heaviest taxes. The public welfare requires but a little thought and time of the average citizen.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

'HUNCH' SAVES RING IN HOLDUP

Harry J. Peairs, 335 South Graham street, had a hunch he was going to be robbed, and because he acted accordingly he still has his diamond ring.

On his way home from an elders' meeting in First Presbyterian Church, Peairs left a street car at South Graham street and Penn avenue. After stepping to the street he removed his ring from his finger and held it in his hand.

A square away, at South Graham street and Friendship avenue, two armed youths stopped him and demanded his money. Peairs dropped his ring among leaves in the street, and the robbers took a small amount of cash.

As the youths turned to flee Peairs called for help. Detective Thomas Crogan, who resides near the corner, rushed to the street.

The thieves escaped, but Crogan and Peairs recovered the ring.

ETHIOPIAN KING HONORS U. S.

ADDIS ABABA, ABYSSINIA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Haile Selassie I, newly crowned king of kings of Ethiopia, today conferred upon Addison E. Southard, American minister here, the recently created Order of the Grand Cross of the Holy Trinity, which is the highest Ethiopian honor which can be conferred upon an untitled foreigner.

H. Murray Jacoby, one of the American emissaries to the coronation, was made a grand officer of the Order of Menelik. Brig. Gen. William Wright Harts was made a commander of the same order. Charles L. Cooke, the third emissary, and James Loder Park, American consul here, received the Star of Ethiopia.

TRIBE KILLS 10 IN PALESTINE

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Ten inhabitants of a Palestine border village were killed today by Wahabi tribesmen who crossed the Jordan frontier on a raiding expedition, according to dispatches to the London evening newspapers from Jerusalem.

British airplanes and armored cars were rushed to the scene to protect the villagers, but the raiders had left, taking 600 camels with them.

DISORDER MARS PHILA. VOTING

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Election disputes, mostly minor, popped up in different parts of the city today, but no serious clash was reported. Most disputes were over interpretations of the elections laws or over the question of offering assistance to voters.

A number of warrants were issued for the arrest of election officers and others. In the election courts Judge Harry S. McDevitt had a number of alleged violators of the elections laws before him.

Mayor Mackey's order that city employes must report for duty today was generally obeyed, it was stated at the mayor's office. It was the first time in many years that city employes had to report for work on election day. "It was business as usual" in the offices, but business was very light. All county offices and courts with the exception of the elections court were closed.

Mayor Mackey and Mrs. Mackey voted in the Forty-sixth Ward today. They were accompanied by their butler, who also cast his ballot. The mayor's ballot was No. 33.

Commenting on the weather the mayor said:

"Ordinarily in the past a rainy day such as this would keep the farmers from the polls, but now with motor cars and concrete roads the rule no longer holds. The farmers vote just as they would on a clear day."

PARK REDMEN DENIED VOTE

Several Indians, employed by the county at North Park to lend "primeval atmosphere," appeared at a polling place in McCandless Township today and requested the privilege to cast ballots for the paleface candidates.

The election board queried Judge H. H. Rowand, who is presiding in the disposition of election troubles. He informed the board that unless the Indians had been assessed and paid a tax they were not qualified to vote. The Indians returned to the park without voting.

Otto's Homecoming Proves False Rumor

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Intense excitement prevailed here for a while today with rumors that young Prince Otto had returned to Hungary to claim the Hungarian throne, to which he is the pretender.

The city became much calmer when it was learned that the person believed to be Otto was the Swedish crown Prince, Gustav Adolf, who came with a party of three others, two of them women, to visit at the residence of the Bishop Count Mikes at Steinamanger.

VARE SEEKS REVENGE ON PINCHOT

Broken Physically, 'Boss' Credited With Swinging Philadelphia to Hemphill

International News Service.

Thus, William S. Vare, whose aspirations for national leadership in the Republican party were smashed when the Senate struck from his shoulders a senatorial toga, turned another page in his feud with Pinchot. Vare motored here from his convalescent retreat in Atlantic City to oppose Pinchot and to spur on the great Philadelphia Republican organization into rolling up a tremendous majority for the Liberal-Democrat, John M. Hemphill.

VARE LAUNCHES BOLT

Down at his villa at the seashore, Vare was credited with having given the "nod" that launched the state-wide bolt of Republicans to the Hemphill banner. At least, the politicians say, he jerked the reguar Republican organization in Philadelphia from the Pinchot camp, turning this great city Democratic for the first time in modern history.

If Pinchot is defeated—and his defeat, if it occurs, will be due to Philadelphia's bolt—Vare will be credited with keeping the Republican nominee from the governor's chair, just as Pinchot is credited with keeping the Philadelphian from a seat in the Senate.

CERTIFICATE OF DOUBT

It was that classic "certificate of doubt," written by Pinchot in 1926 just before he ended his first term of governor and describing Vare's election to the Senate as "partially bought and partially stolen," that gave a tremendous incentive to the Senate group fighting the Philadelphian. It resulted in the Senate's denying Vare even the privilege of taking his oath of office as a senator.

NEVER FORGIVEN

Vare never has forgiven the governor for writing that "certificate of doubt." Early this spring, Vare sponsored Francis Shunk Brown, aged attorney, as an opponent to Pinchot in the primary, only to watch the entry of a third and dripping wet nominee divide his own ranks, permitting the former governor to win. Since then, just as Pinchot declined to abide by the tabulated result of either the 1926 primary or election, so Vare refused to abide by the results of this year's primary. The bolt to Hemphill followed.

Vare has not publicly declared against Pinchot, but he did approve the speech made by his daughter, Miss Beatrice Vare, against the former governor. In that speech, Miss Vare declared that "Pinchot tried to crucify my father" and begged Republican voters to support Hemphill. Vare's comment on the speech was:

"My daughter's speech was read to me. I am highly pleased with it and I am proud of her."

Test Hurls Plane In Air in 4 Seconds

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—How long does it take an airplane to get off the ground? Lieut. Alford J. Williams, in a speed test, was in the air four seconds after the wheels began rolling. The take-off was less than 100 feet.

Emerald Chapeau Was an Ad for 'Prescriptions'

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Senatorial investigation into the man in the green hat reveals these facts:

To let you know he would mix prescriptions.

When informed that bootleggers were not hatleggers, and that you could get a drink from the citizen with the emerald chapeau, my paternal grandmother said:

"Great heavens, are they drinking out of hats now?"

Why should Heywood Broun run for Congress on the Socialist ticket when he can put on a pea-green tam-o-shanter and get into the Senate?

The mad green hatter was cloaked in mystery.

And everybody knew where the cloak room was.

And to let you know that the man with the green hat is thoroughly non-partisan we state that he is now in his fourth administration.

Ex-Barber Directs Gigantic Soviet Building Program

By CHARMOION VON WIEGAND,
Universal Service.

MOSCOW, Nov. 4.—A former barber is charged with directing the expenditure of the 900,000,000 rubles (approximately $450,000,000) appropriated under the five-year plan for the great industrial rayon center of Stalingrad, on the Volga River.

It is under the directorship of Midon S. Khevidin that five new cities are to be built on a narrow strip of land along the river, 96 miles long and 24 miles wide.

Khevidin is a mild-looking, little man, who wears large horn-rimmed spectacles and the uniform of a Red army officer. Although only 35 years old, the terrific responsibility of his position does not disturb his composure.

The Red revolution interrupted his predestined career as a barber to sweep him into a power as a general of the Red army. Seven times wounded, he is minus one lung.

The Stalingrad district, when completed according to plan, will consist of five industrial cities. The present old town, formerly called Tzaritzin, is to be pulled down and in its place is to arise a new central city with all the cultural improvement such as offices, clubs, schools and theaters. Further, there is to be built a metallurgical city of which the gigantic new plant Traktirstroy is a part only. Then is to be added a lumber city, a chemical city, with plants for agriculture and industry, and a large ship-building city.

A thriving colony of more than 200 Americans with their families is now settled there. American engineers and specialists are engaged in advising and pushing along the many projects.

Cost of Rearing Chaplin's Two Sons Decreasing

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The cost of rearing Charles Chaplin, Jr., 7, and Sidney Chaplin, 6, sons of Charles Chaplin, film comedian, has decreased, an accounting filed yesterday in Superior Court revealed.

Lita Grey Chaplin, their mother and guardian, reported the total expenditure was $6,005.60 for the last year. The accounting in 1928 showed $10,792.21 was spent, and that of 1929 showed $7,252.40.

At the time Mrs. Chaplin obtained her divorce, three years ago, a $500,000 trust fund was established for the children.

Lita Grey Chaplin is appearing on the stage in New York.

'Build Now' Plea of Woods To U. S. Home Planners as Material Costs Drop

By FULTON LEWIS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(Universal.)—As President Hoover's emergency employment committee moved today to complete its regional personnel, Col. Arthur Woods, employment dictator, appealed to builders to take advantage of existing low prices and expand their activities.

In his appeal, Col. Woods states that not only have construction costs dropped greatly, but the much lower interest rate and rediscount rates have made money easy to obtain and building therefore attractive.

WOMAN URGES AID

An appeal for the protection of the children of the country against hunger and destitution in the unemployment crisis, was made today by Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau of the Labor Department, through Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, in charge of the women's section of the president's emergency employment committee. She said:

"We must get the children out of the bread lines. No children must suffer from hunger in the United States. Relief to mothers and children must be given in their own homes."

Miss Abbott compared the present crisis with previous unemployment situations and said it has always been the children who have suffered the most.

GATHER RADIO DATA

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—For the first time in the history of the country the radio is to be used to gather information for the United States government, according to an announcement by President Hoover's emergency committee for unemployment.

On Friday Col. Arthur Woods, as chairman of the committee, will make his first official radio talk in that capacity, addressing certain specific requests for information to the American people in connection with the employment question.

ASK EQUAL PAY FOR JOBLESS

The same wage for every man employed by the city under the unemployment relief program was demanded by Councilman Robert Garland yesterday in Council.

Attacking a proposal to pay skilled laborers 65 cents an hour, compared with 55 cents given ordinary laborers, he insisted that all given work because they are unemployed should get the same pay.

His address came during discussion of a bill fixing the pay of men employed on sewer and other projects under the unemployment program. This set union wages for union men and 65 cents an hour for skilled laborers, the latter a new classification as far as the city is concerned.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang explained that the reason for the skilled laborer classification was to enable his department to hire a few men skilled in erecting shoring, dynamiters and others not in a union but skilled in some special work needed.

Mr. Garland vigorously denied that he had inferred that the department wanted the skilled laborer classification to give political favorites more pay.

Edison's Invention Claimed for Belgian

BRUSSELS, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Celebration of the achievements of Zenobe Gramme, inventor of the dynamo, has led to closer study of the role played by Belgian scientists in the world of electricity.

A lecturer recently told the Society of Belgian Engineers that Edison is not entitled to exclusive credit for the electric lamp. On November 5, 1879, it was asserted, the Belgian engineer, Leon Somzee, filed an application for a patent describing an electrical valve with a charcoal filament. Sixteen days later Edison patented his charred filament lamp.

Job Lending Plan Helps Unemployed

OSHKOSH, Wis., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The "Lend your job" move started by Councilman George Oaks in efforts to combat unemployment, has been a success here, he said today. Twenty-two regular city employers on contract work yesterday gave up their jobs to needy men. Under the plan, unemployed persons will work a few hours each week on jobs "loaned" out.

Dr. R. N. Smith denied all visitors to the film hero's sick room and declared Mix's condition was "very serious." He said:

"This is the price of Tom Mix's many injuries during his career as a hard-riding horseman of the movies. Until I receive final reports from the X-ray laboratory showing the condition of the patient's back, I will not be able to say definitely what his situation is."

Mix was taken to the hospital quietly Saturday at which time Dr. Smith said he feared for the film star's life.

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Athenians gave Premier Venizelos a great reception today when he addressed a mass meeting in Constitution Square on the results of his visit to Angora, Turkish capital.

He condemned the so-called plot of Gen. Pangalos and others to overthrow the government in his absence. He said that nothing now separates the Grecian and Turkish peoples, since both accept their frontiers.

MELBA, OPERA STAR, STRICKEN

FREMANTLE, West Australia, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Dame Nellie Melba, famous operatic soprano, arriving here aboard the liner Cathay today, was so ill her physician forbade her landing.

The prima donna, whose home is in Coldstream, Victoria, has been indisposed for the last four days, it was said. She is 64 years old.

Dame Nellie Melba (Helen Porter Mitchell) was born in Richmond, near Melbourne, Australia, in 1866, and took the pseuedonym of Melba after her debut as Gilba in "Regoletto" in Brussels in 1887.

Her success as a vocalist was instantaneous. She first appeared in New York in 1893 and thereafter sang in the United States frequently. Her greatest success probably was in 1903 when she returned to Australia and sang before heads of the colonial governments and immense audiences.

Her repertoire included leading French and Italian roles. She has been the recipient of numerous gifts and decorations from sovereigns and others. She was created a dame of the British empire in 1918 for her war work.

Lodge Goat Bolts, Initiation in Doubt

This is the story of a goat with proclivities for jumping through second story windows.

The custodian of the goat was Clarence C. Faulhaber, of Turner Park, Perrysville. The goat's quarters were on the second story of the park's garage. He was to be used for a lodge initiation Thursday night.

Without warning, the goat yesterday plunged through a window, taking sash and all.

The animal was last seen in the woods near Perrysville when his whiskers spread through the underbrush.

GANGSTER SHOT IN HOSPITAL

NEWARK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Boldness of warring eastern gunmen had reached a new height today with the shooting to death of Jack Passelli, a beer racketeer known as "The Ape," in Newark General Hospital.

While doctors and nurses trod softly about administering to the wants of patients, two gunmen invaded the hospital last night and, seeking out Passelli, went to his private room and opened fire. They fired two shots and then calmly walked out.

Nurses and attendants hurried to Passelli's room, but "The Ape" was slumped over dead on his bed, a bullet from a .38 caliber revolver in the head and another in the neck.

Passelli, also known as John Caruso and Jack Taselli, ran into the hospital, a private institution, on Sunday night. He was believed to have just escaped a gangsters' ride.

BRITISH FIGHT BOAT SEIZURE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Nine men captured aboard the British motorboat Mazel-Tov by the United States Coast Guard cutter Tucker refused to enter pleas when arraigned last night before United States Commissioner Matteson on charges of conspiracy to smuggle 400 cases of liquor into the United States.

The men protested that the United States had no jurisdiction in the matter, and predicted British intervention.

Commissioner Matteson entered pleas of not guilty for each man. They were released in $3,000 each for hearing November 20.

The captain, Frank D. Cook, said the Mazel-Tov, her engines disabled and the supply of fresh water almost exhausted, was well outside the 12-mile limit when taken in tow by the Tucker Saturday night.

DEBATE BLOCKS PARIS CHAMBER

PARIS, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The French Parliament recovered today and soon after the sitting was suspended amid confusion as debate on opposition criticism of foreign policy got into its stride.

The opposition had been caught off balance by the insistence of Premier Tardieu that debate be started immediately and Francois Albert, an opposition deputy, began an attack on the government.

As he began talking about internal politics, the government supporters with much clamor demanded he be brought to order.

Previously Foreign Minister Briand, whose policies are under fire, had received an ovation from the Chamber.

The debate ended when the Chamber adjourned until Thursday.

The robbers, armed, herded the four into the rear room by threats of death.

Another customer, Mrs. Emma Laird, 6243 Penn avenue, refused to follow the bandit instructions and was allowed to remain in the front while they looted the registers and escaped.

Turtle Army Swarms Over Busy Chicago Boulevard

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—An army of turtles, some 2,000 strong, invaded Michigan boulevard here yesterday, adding considerably for a time to the traffic problem.

Where the turtles came from no one seemed to know. They first received official notice when a citizen who saw them roaming over the sidewalks, street and adjoining yards telephoned to the Illinois Humane Society.

Alfred Cipriani, an agent of the society, drove to the scene of the invasion in his automobile. He collected most of the turtles in the tonneau of his car, a task which presented difficulties because of the unwillingness of the reptiles to stay put.

When Cipriani had concluded his turtle hunt and had taken his captives to the humane society's shelter, another problem arose: What to do with them? For the time being they were left where they were.

Mary Garden's Songs Win Severest Critic's Praise

AMARILLO, Tex., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—In this western cow country city, where she once was bitterly accused of failure to give her best as a singer, Mary Garden, opera star, enjoyed today one of the greatest triumphs of her career.

Not the least among the 3,000 persons who cheered her at a concert last night was Gene Howe, newspaper editor, who criticized her performance with the Chicago Civic Opera Company in Amarillo a year ago so severely that Miss Garden was moved to reply to him through the press.

"Marvelous," "wonderful" and "flawless" were terms which Howe applied to Miss Garden's singing at the concert where the opera star was applauded and cheered often.

Howe made haste to assert he never had said Miss Garden "couldn't sing," but merely that she "didn't sing" on her previous visit.

The singer had indicated she would include on her program a discussion of Howe and his knowledge of opera. The discussion, however, was no forthcoming.

Miss Garden had tea with Mr. and Mrs. Howe at their home here Sunday, and afterward she described Howe as "the queerest person" she had met.

BURKE IN RADIO TALK WARNS OF RADICALS

Censures Democrats for 'Calamity' Talk, Held Slowing Business Pickup

Closing the campaign for control of Congress, James Francis Burke, general counsel for the Republican National Committee, spoke last night from Station WCAE over a national hookup.

Burke attacked what he called the fallacy and injustice of Democrats in blaming President Hoover and the Republican party for the industrial and business depression, and lauded Hoover and business leaders.

WARNS OF RADICALS

Warning against the danger of repudiating what he termed a conservative administration and encouraging radicalism the world over, Mr. Burke continued in part:

"Every thoughtful American regrets the organized effort of the Democratic National Committee to magnify our misfortunes and intensify the gloom that casts its shadow across the highway of business today.

"Out of all this disorder some one must bring economic equilibrium before prosperity can be restored. This is no time to encourage reactionaries on the one hand or revolutionists on the other.

"And that brings us to the supreme question the people of this country must answer at the ballot box tomorrow.

FORTIFY PRESIDENT

"Shall we fortify the President in the Senate and support his policies by re-electing a Republican House of Representatives, which has been the bulwark of confidence during the last few years, in order that we may bring back confidence and start the blood flowing with new vigor through the arteries of finance?

"Or shall we prolong our present uncertainty, intensify our discontent and postpone the return of prosperity by placing in control of the House of Representatives those whose plain purpose is to repeal the tariff, revolutionize farm relief, bedevil business and harrass the President of the United States in his effort to rescue the American people from their present plight?"

HEMPHILL SEES VICTORY

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal gubernatorial candidate, closed his campaign with an address here in which he predicted that by tonight the state will have "declared itself against three things—Pinchotism, Grundyism and prohibition."

Hemphill referred to Pinchot as a "tool" in the hands of Senator Joseph R. Grundy, "an enemy of the workingman."

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Charles Dorrance, state chairman of the Liberal party, backing John M. Hemphill for governor, brought the state campaign to a dramatic close shortly before midnight last night when he concluded a radio spech from station WGBI, with the reading of a letter written in May, 1926, by Judge George W. Maxey, now Republican nominee for Supreme Court justice, to Gifford Pinchot, then governor, and a candidate for his party's nomination for United States senator.

In that letter Judge Maxey, whose remarks at the Republican rally here Saturday night were regarded as aimed at Mr. Pinchot, expressed the opinion that the governor "was going completely daffy," that he was "a faker of the first magnitude," that he had been "a selfish, scheming, marplot, all his life."

Richardson, Francis Johns, Judge of the Fourth District, Fourth Ward, and Charles C. Logue, Judge in the Thirteenth District, Fourth Ward, all told of being tricked out of possession of ballots by men who said there had been a mistake which the County Commissioners wished to rectify.

WARRANTS FOR BOARD

The sheriff's patrol wagon and deputies were dispatched to the Fifth District, Thirty-second Ward, polling place at 1225 Brookline boulevard, with warrants to bring the election board before Judge Harry H. Rowand in Common Pleas Court on complaint of Mrs. Mary Arnold, of 1322 Bellaire street, minority inspector. Informations were made after Mrs. Arnold charged Judge of Election Thomas Loftus had denied her the right to sit on the board and had held a curbstone election naming James McTighe.

A force of private detectives were being maintained at the Liberal party headquarters in the William Penn Hotel to investigate complaints of election irregularities. Several complaints have been received both in the city and county, according to officials.

As a precaution, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh detailed squads to the Strip, Hill and North Side wards. No trouble of consequence had been reported from those districts this afternoon.

Fairly heavy voting marked the election here, according to reports.

Fair weather was conducive to a large outpouring of voters and observers predicted that a high percentage of them would have cast their ballots when the polls close at 7 p. m.

WOMAN COMPLAINS

The first complaint came from a woman resident of the Eleventh District of the Twenty-sixth Ward. She said that all members of the board were Republicans and there was no minority inspector as required by law. She was referred to the county bureau of elections. The polling place is at East street and Evergreen road.

Downtown and in the Hill district the early balloting was reported normal to heavy. In some places men and women stood in line as the election boards, due to consolidation of districts, had to care for many more voters than formerly.

VOTERS WAIT

About a dozen voters waited for the opening of the polls in the City-County Building, where residents of the First District of the First Ward voted.

Newly-printed ballots to replace those reported missing yesterday were in use in this district.

100 Flee to Street As Apartment Burns

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Aroused by the ringing of a fire alarm in the Winchester Apartments in West Philadelphia, more than 100 tenants fled their rooms as fire damaged a fourth floor apartment today.

Smoke filled the building and tenants who did not flee to the street in the cold huddled in the basement and first floor until danger was over.

GIBBONS, FLYNN ON STUMP FOR HEMPHILL

War Correspondent, Editor Give Radio Addresses for Democrat-Liberal Party

Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent and radio talker, and John T. Flynn, former editor of the New York Globe, were principal speakers at the final campaign meeting in North Side Carnegie Music Hall last night of the Liberal party in the interest of John M. Hemphill, Democratic nominee for governor.

County Controller Robert G. Woodside presided. More than 1,500 men and women, many of them Republicans, it was said, attended the meeting.

DOESN'T KNOW HEMPHILL

Gibbons' address, which was broadcast by KDKA over a statewide hook-up, was devoted mainly to his experiences in France during the World War. Gibbons recalled that Hemphill was with the Fourth Division in the last offensive of the war. The speaker declared:

"I must say frankly that I do not personally know John M. Hemphill, but I know his type. And it is my belief that both the state and the nation will be drafting more and more of these men into public life from this time forward.

"It is a new and fine generation of Americans who are coming forward to assume public burdens and they surely had a training that should make them fit to meet any demand. I am informed that Hemphill is the first World War veteran to be a candidate for governor. There will be others like him, not only in Pennsylvania but in all the states."

SCORES KLINE STAND

Flynn took exception to a recent statement by Mayor Charles H. Kline to the effect that prohibition was not the issue in the governor's election but one properly belonging to a referendum whereby the people would have opportunity to vote on prohibition exclusively. Flynn said:

"But the Mayor must know that the Anti-Saloon League and the prohibition people are unalterably opposed to submitting the question to a referendum. And how are you in Pennsylvania ever going to get a chance to vote on the question directly when you put men like Gifford Pinchot in control of your state government who are bitterly opposed to a referendum?

"The way to correct that is to swat the dry politician every time he runs for office. Defeat the dry candidate every time. Do that and your politicians will soon learn there is no dividend for them in supporting the drys and they will drop prohibition.

"If Republican Pennsylvania, tomorrow, will defeat the straight Republican candidate because he is a dry, you will deliver the most crushing blow to prohibition it has ever received. The politicians will begin leaving it like rats leaving a sinking ship."

WOODSIDE HITS PINCHOT

Declaring he was the only county official out in the open for the election of Hemphill, Chairman Woodside said:

"When I declared for Hemphill I expected to be severely criticized by those whose political ambitions might be injured by my stand in this campaign. On the other hand, the commendation I have received has been most gratifying. I have in my pocket telegrams from all over the state, from old soldier buddies of mine—comrades I soldiered with in '98 and those who fought with me in the World War.

"In this campaign we have the sad spectacle of the Republican candidate for governor, who poses as a saint, welcoming the support of those he called the Allegheny County 'Gang' in the primary campaign. In that campaign he promised, if elected governor, to impeach Mayor Kline. I leave to you, my friends, the answer to this puzzling enigma."

Pinchot and prohibition were scored by Dr. James Stanley White, editor of the United Protestant Advocate, who said:

"I object to Pinchot, the champion acrobatic politician of the state, being elected governor. One-third of his platform is a eulogy on Pinchot by Pinchot and the other two-thirds are pledges to be broken.

"Prohibition is inconsistent with and repugnant to the laws of God and cannot be justified on any principle of right."

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Other speakers were Arthur M. Scully, Allegheny County chairman for the Liberal party, and Bradley McKay Burns, former service man.

An elaborate musical program was given by the Pittsburgh Male Chorus and Nossokoff's Orchestra. One of the vocal numbers that received marked approval by the audience was "The Sidewalks of New York," Al Smith's campaign song.

Socialists Charge Foes Offered Cash

READING, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—James H. Maurer, Social candidate for governor, charged here last night he had been offered $10,000 to make a series of six speeches against another candidate. Mayor J. Henry Stump, campaign manager, asserted that the financial committee had refused an offer of $30,000 to speak against a certain candidate. They would not name the candidate they were to attack.

U. S. CONGRESS CONTROL IN BALANCE

Republicans Await Verdict Of Ballots on Strength Of Democratic Opponents

It will determine whether the time has come to confer the title of senator-by-election on a woman with Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois.

It will disclose whether Democratic Alabama is to discipline Senator Heflin, by keeping him at home, because he bolted Al Smith.

It will write success or failure across Gifford Pinchot's spectacular campaign to win the Pennsylvania governorship on the Republican ticket.

In Montana, the returns will say whether Senator Walsh, prosecutor of the Teapot Dome investigation, is to return again to the Senate after one of the hardest campaigns in his career.

NORRIS VS. HITCHCOCK

In Nebraska, the voters will decide between the veteran Senator Norris and his one-time colleague, former Senator Hitchcock.

Maryland will answer whether Albert C. Ritchie is to break still another precedent by winning the governorship for a fourth time.

And by the degree in which it gives to the Independent Republicans the balance of power in the new Senate, the election conceivably will give scope to the operations henceforth of the Independent Senator Borah.

In two-thirds of the states, measures of legislation or public policy are before the voter for direct action by referendum. Prohibition provides the medium for three, Illinois and Rhode Island voting their opinions whether the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed, and Masachusetts deciding whether to do away with her state enforcement act. Bond issues for public works totaling upwards of a half billion dollars, advocated as a boon to employment, are on the ballots in 20 states.

In many communities the voters turned out today with eleventh-hour appeals by party spokesmen still fresh in overnight memories.

HEAVY VOTE LIKELY

Nationally, both parties said their last word last evening over the radio. Speaking for the Republicans, James Francis Burke repeated again the watchword of the Republican campaign: "Stand by the President." For the Democrats, Jouett Shouse and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, asked that the congressional election express a nation's disapproval of the Hoover policies.

Fair weather over most of the country augured for a heavy vote, although of course the total, as customary in off-years, was expected to fall far below the mammoth figure of 1928. Only for the South Atlantic states, where there are few election contests, did the weather map show signs of rain.

HOUSE BIG PRIZE

To gain control of the House—the big prize in every off-year election — the Democrats must make a net gain of 53. Technically, they have 435 chances in 1930, for the entire membership comes up for election. Actually, however, the field is much narrower. A total of 94 nominees, most of them Southern Democrats, have no candidates against them. In the four Maine districts, Republicans already have been elected; for Maine votes in September, and was the only state casting no ballots today. In many other districts the result was a foregone conclusion, one way or the other.

Many scattered districts, one or two to a state, were on today's list of the actually disputed, but Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Missouri were the states which were feeling the full force of the Democratic shock troops.

In the Senate, which elects but one-third of its membership this year, the Democrats need a net gain of 10 for a majority, and the whole number of really disputable states numbered only about a dozen. States which today were writing the verdict on especially aggressive Democratic efforts to unseat Republican senators included Colorado, Delaware, Illinois, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and West Virginia. The extent to which prohibition will determine the net result, and what light it will throw on 1932, is hotly disputed by the leaders of wets and drys.

In many states one or both parties adopted planks referring to prohibition but indirectly, or not at all. In New York, New Jersey, Washington, Wisconsin and Connecticut both party platforms dissented from prohibition, while in nine other states—Illinois, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and Vermont—the Democrats declared for a change. The Republicans of Illinois and the Democrats of Iowa, Michigan and Minnesota proposed a referendum.

PARTY LINES SNAPPED

In several of the larger states, including some where party platforms do not raise the issue, the dispute over the dry laws became involved in contests over governor or senator. Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic nominee for the Senate in Ohio, has attracted national attention by his campaign on a repeal platform, in the home state of the Anti-Saloon League, against Senator McCulloch, a dry. In Massachusetts, likewise, the Democratic senatorial nominee, Marcus A. Coolidge, is for repeal, and the Republican nominee, William M. Butler, is against it.

In Montana, on the contrary, the Democratic Senator Walsh, one of the dry leaders of Congress, is opposed by a Republican, Albert J. Galen, who advocates submision of a repeal amendment.

Overseers in 30 election districts were appointed by Judge Harry H. Rowand in Common Pleas Court yesterday on petition of Attorney Fleming Nevin, representing the Liberal party. The petitions averred that the appointments were necessary to assure a fair count in the districts.

The districts affected are:

Pittsburgh: Fourth Ward, Sixth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth districts; Fifth Ward, Second District.

Wilkinsburg: First Ward—First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth districts; Second Ward—Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth and Twelfth districts; Third Ward—Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth districts.

Jailed for Failing In Payments, Freed

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., Nov. 4.—Joseph Barik, 34, Aliquippa, was freed from jail on a writ of habeas corpus. He had been charged with larceny by bailee by a representative of a finance corporation when he failed to make monthly payments on an automobile. He testified he told the company he could not make payments, and to take the car.

Lovings, Darlings, Lovelesses All in Divorce Court

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Names sometimes belie their meaning, and then again they don't. Take for example today's divorce court record.

It shows that Richard G. Loving was not loved; that Myrtle Darling was not a darling to her husband; that Mona I. Loveless was true to her name and lived a loveless life.

Loving filed suit to have his marriage to Marie Loving annulled on the ground that she had another husband; Mrs. Darling sued Ralph Darling for divorce alleging he had other darlings besides his wife; Mrs. Loveless sued Lyle Loveless for divorce charging her husband slapped and cursed her.

12th Armistice Day Celebrated in Italy

ARSIERO, Italy, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Italy celebrated her twelfth anniversary of the Armistice today, with the inauguration of new cemeteries and mausoleums containing 13,000 bodies of soldiers fallen in the World War.

Italy's Armistice Day comes a week before those of other nations since the Austrian collapse after the battle of the Littorio culminated in that country's surrender on November 4.

DORMONT MEN HONOR DAVIS

Secretary James J. Davis of the Department of Labor and Republican candidate for United States senator, was honored last night at a reception staged by the Men's Bible Class of the Dormont Methodist Episcopal Church in the Hillsdale Avenue School, Dormont. The affair was attended by members of Brookline, Dormont, Beechview, Mt. Lebanon and West Liberty churches.

David J. Davies presided at the reception and he introduced the speakers. J. B. Champney, president of the Bible Class made an address of welcome and Secretary Davis replied. Secretary Davis plans to remain in Pittsburgh tonight to receive the election returns. He will then go to Washington to prepare for a vacation abroad.

State Balloting in Close Race; Both Sides Charge Fraud Plots

PINCHOT COUNTERS

The Pinchot headquarters heatedly denied this charge, alleging the Philadelphia organization, which is supporting Hemphill, intended to delay its returns in order to stuff the ballots for the Liberal-Democrat. The Pinchot leaders called attention to the former governor's announcement that he would spend his whole personal fortune to punish election frauds in Philadelphia.

Pinchot was at his home in Milford, Pike County, to cast his vote before motoring leisurely to Philadelphia to get the returns at his headquarters here. Hemphill stayed at his West Chester home to vote and hear the returns at the local armory.

Both men had a final word for the voters. Pinchot declared anew that his fight had been won and that W. W. Atterbury, bolting Republican national committeeman, and the "Philadelphia gang" were beaten. He said the taxpayers, the farepayers and the ratepayers would get a square deal during his administration and that his anticipated election would be a "victory for the plain people."

HEMPHILL HOPEFUL

Hemphill, who spent Monday touring the anthracite districts in Schuylkill County, declared he had found the voters ready to "get rid of Pinchotism, Grundyism and prohibition." He chuckled as a friend spoke of the "G. O. P." initialed symbol of the Republican party, as "Grundy Owns Pinchot." The nominee said he was convinced the "people of Pennsylvania are fully awake in this election" and that he awaited the returns "with greater confidence of victory than I have felt at any time during the campaign."

The third candidate in this extraordinary race, James H. Maurer, nominee of the Socialist party, spent the day at his office as a city commissioner in Reading. He had no hopes of victory, but renewed his prediction that Hemphill would win.

BOLTERS CLOUD OUTCOME

The outcome of the Pinchot-Hemphill contest was in doubt chiefly because of the bolting within the ranks of both parties. Hundreds of thousands of Republicans will scratch Pinchot and vote for Hemphill on the Liberal ticket. Hundreds of thousands of Democrats may likewise scratch Hemphill to cast their ballots for Pinchot.

No prognosticator can tell exactly how many will bolt, so predictions are but guesses. Every compilation of neutral observations has placed the total vote of the two candidates within a few thousand of each other, thus indicating how close the outcome should be.

Thus far, the campaign has been free of slush fund charges—a distinct innovation in recent Pennsylvania politics. Leaders of all four organizations, the regular Republicans, the Pinchot Republican group, the Regular Democrats and the Liberal party, have complained of a lack of campaign funds. The Pinchot organization apparently benefitted but little from the support of Joseph B. Grundy, noted lobbyist, former Senator and described once by Boise Penrose as the "greatest money-raiser in the world."

On the other hand, the Liberal-Democrats apparently failed to obtain the large contributions they expected from public utilities and business men, who oppose Pinchot.

MANY DOUBTFUL ELEMENTS

There were numerous confusing factors on which the victory of either candidate depended. The asserted shortage of campaign funds may hurt Hemphill, since the Pinchot groups are better organized. On the other hand, many Republican leaders have given so-called "lip service" to Pinchot, while secretly opposing him.

Other elements placing the election in doubt include low registration in cities friendly to Pinchot, the conflict of opinion over his strength in rural communities, which are normally Democratic; the extent of bolting in both parties, and the decided disagreement over the size of Hemphill's anticipated majority in Philadelphia.

As for registration, some 3,522,510 men and women were eligible to vote today. This included more than 1,000,000 farmers and their wives, who are automatically registered and so do not need to indicate a desire to vote by registering on a special day as urban dwellers must do. Few experts anticipating a vote much in excess of 2,000,000 while many have predicted it will be much less.

SHARPSHOOTING AT END

The campaign wound up in rather a blaze of political sharpshooting. The Liberal party published advertisements declaring "the eyes of the nation are on Pennsylvania" and declaring a "Pinchot victory would mean continued prosperity for the bootlegger, continued graft, crime, corruption, hypocrisy—resulting from the present prohibition law." These advertisements charged Pinchot with being an "enemy of the Republican party" and a "menace to business and employment."

The Pinchot organization published advertisements in Philadelphia, warning against election frauds and pointing out the large number of election officials given prison sentences for frauds in the past. The Pinchot committee declared "relentless prosecutions will be brought against all persons found to have committed fraud."

OTHER OUTBURSTS

There were other outbursts from opposing leaders all over the state. In Pittsburgh, ballots were found missing in three election divisions. In Norristown, there was a flareup between Pinchot leaders and the regular Republican organization. There, T. Duncan Just, Pinchot leader of Montgomery County, announced that he knew "very little had been done" for Pinchot by Charles Johnson, the regular Republican leader.

Just demanded that Johnson's organization produce a 20,000 plurality for Pinchot or there would be trouble later. This row may produce the Pinchot plurality or it may turn the county into Hemphill's column.

In Philadelphia, there were several last-minute explosions. First Mayor Harry A. Mackey ordered all city employes, some 14,000 in all, to report for work as usual today, in order to keep them out of the election, even though the day is a legal holiday. Then, Judge Harry S. McDevitt, who has put a number of dishonest election officials in jail, upbraided the mayor for urging the election boards to hurry their returns and for threatening to use city police in checking the boards. The judge termed this "intimidation," and told the boards to take their time.

SEES HEMPHILL WIN BY 200,000

Charles Alvin Jones, Allegheny County chairman of the Democratic campaign, has issued a statement predicting the election of John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party nominee for governor, by a 200,000 majority in the state.

Jones yesterday requested Democratic workers to report any infraction of the election laws today to campaign headquarters, Magee Building, 334 Fourth avenue, where a corps of lawyers will be on duty to answer questions.

Attorney B. B. McGinnis spoke in the interest of Hemphill at a meeting last night of the Twentieth Ward League of Women Voters in the home of M. C. Edwards, Chartiers avenue.

'GANG BEATEN,' SAYS PINCHOT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—President Hoover today called to America to observe Armistice Day with gratitude that the agencies of peace have been strengthened and the nation's relations with other countries "are firmly grounded in amity and accord."

The following proclamation was issued over the President's signature:

"Whereas, the eleventh day of November, 1918, is forever memorable as the day upon which ended the World War, with its attendant sufferings and vast wastage of human life; and

"Whereas, it is fitting that the anniversary of this day should be commemorated by exercises which shall do honor to all those who served our country, and especially to the memory of those who died in its service, believing that their sacrifice was in the cause of peace, which we thereby are solemnly bound to do all in our power to advance and secure; and

"Whereas, by concurrent resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives, in 1926, the President was requested to issue proclamation for the observance of Armistice Day;

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, president of the United States of America, in pursuance of the said concurrent resolution do hereby order that the flag of the United States be displayed on all government buildings on November 11, 1930, and do invite the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches, and other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies, giving expression to our gratitude that this year past has seen the agencies of peace sensibly strengthened and that our relations with other peoples are firmly grounded in amity and accord."

KDKA PIONEERS FETED BY AIR LEADERS

Francis Burke, who provided a wide alley for the Boy to play in by engineering proper radio legislation in pioneering days.

No wonder then that there was much hilarity, hand-clapping and salaaming at last night's picturesque assembly in the mirrored halls of the William Penn. Radio people gathered to pay tribute to the home town boy who had made good!

AMOS 'N' ANDY THERE

The speakers said many nice things about radio and Pittsburgh in particular, but it remained for Amos 'n' Andy to "steal the show."

Revealing their broadcast technique for the first time in public, the boys showed how Freeman Gosden plays the parts of Amos, Lightnin', Kingfish and other characters, while Charles Correll acts the bull-dozing part of Andy.

Gen. Saltzman paid high tribute to Westinghouse engineers who pioneered in the development of radio communication.

RECALLS EARLY DAYS

James Francis Burke received a tremendous ovation after a speech that was brilliant and colorful. He recalled how he had pioneered in radio legislation, especially the bill demanding that all steamships be equipped with radio after the SS Republic disaster in which Mr. and Mrs. James R. Mellon and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Miller, Sr., had narrowly escaped. He said:

"Every agency that brings the world closer together, that increases knowledge, that multiplies and refines our pleasures and our pastimes, that drives ignorance, superstition, darkness and human hatreds from the great highway of humanity as it travels down the years, marks the improvement of today over the 7,000 years of yesterday. That's radio."

Dr. Frank Conrad, who started radio, really, with the experiments of 8XK in the garage of his Wilkinsburg home, sat at the guest table—quietly, reserved—and had little to say. He is a man of small stature with the burning wizardy of Steinmetz in his eyes.

J. C. McQuiston, general advertising manager for Westinghouse, was another quiet person. He was a pioneer too and contributed the standards adopted for the station.

Others at the head table included A. W. Robertson, Frank A. Merrick, E. M. Herr, J. W. Marsh, Congressman Harry Estep, Roy Witmer, James L. Ray, Charles W. Horn, J. W. Elwood, T. P. Gaylord, A. E. Braun, L. W. Chubb and H. W. Arlin, "first voice of the air."

Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten, pastor of Calvary Episcopal Church, who gave the world's first radio sermon on January 2, 1921, delivered the invocation. Thomas A. Dunn, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced Aylesworth as the toastmaster. Music included selections by the KDKA orchestra directed by Zoel Parenteau, the Westinghouse chorus and Etta G. Cunningham, contralto.

Attorney Wins Appeal Over Judge

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—D. B. Daugherty, of Huntington, W. Va., won an appeal to the Supreme Court for an order commanding Federal Judge McClintic to show cause why he should not permit him to practice in the Southern District Federal Court of that state. Daugherty was verbally disbarred after pleading guilty to a charge of unlawful use of the mails in a scheme to defraud. Judge McClintic was requested to answer by January 5.

Death Claims Last Battery B Member

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 4.—David P. Needler, 90, the last surviving member of Battery B, First Pennsylvania Light Artillery, died yesterday at his home in Edenburg, near here. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Margaret J. Needler, a son, H. L. Needler, of Poland, O., and a daughter, Mrs. Lydia Ammon, Edenburg.

Court Docket, Century Old, Prized

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 4.—Clerk of Courts W. Marks Starr is custodian for an ancient book that is creating much interest among attorneys.

It is the criminal docket that was in use in Butler county from 1804 until 1828. It is a volume of 307 pages of foolscap, and the records are all made in ink, in a good state of preservation.

The first case of record is that of the Commonwealth against William Cochran and Joseph Cochran, charged with "resisting constable on execution of officer." The case is closed with the record: "Verdict for defendants."

At the November session, 1804, David Sutton, charged with "running a tippling house," was assessed the costs and "forgiven."

REALTOR FREED BY KIDNAPERS

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Inspector John Hoffman, head of the Detroit police blackhand squad, said today that Charles Kaier, wealthy retired real estate dealer, had been released by kidnapers and returned to his home here.

Hoffman did not give out details of Kaier's release, but it was learned from other sources that Kaier was put out of an automobile in Indianapolis Monday after being given his watch, a ring and $2. He made his way to Toledo and friends brought him back to Detroit.

Kaier was kidnaped last Thursday night by four men who posed as federal prohibition agents and said they were taking him to the United States district attorney.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

COURT OUSTS ELECTION BOARD

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Already indicted for conspiracy at last May's primary election, the election board of the Eighth Ward, Second District, of Wilkes-Barre City, was removed from office by a court order.

The court made absolute an earlier summons ordering the board to show cause why it should not be ousted. Gilbert S. Van Kirk, judge of election in the district, is among those removed. Two other members of his family have also served on the board for some years. Van Kirk, in addition to being under indictment for irregularities at the primary election, has also been indicted for approaching a juror drawn in the case of another election board later sent to prison.

FIRST RETURNS IN; G. O. P. LEADS

NEW ASHFORD, Mass., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Citizens of this little Berkshire Hills town today continued to lead the nation in reporting a total election vote.

In the glare of kerosene lamps, polls were opened at 5:45 a. m., and every man and woman of the 36 registered voters had cast their ballots by 6:35 a. m., when the polls were closed.

Half an hour later the result of the vote of the town complete was known. It was:

Governor: Allen (R.), 29; Ely (D.), 7.

Referendum on question of repeal of 'Baby Volstead' law: Yes, 3; no, 24, a strong "dry" vote.

CHICAGO MAYOR, ILL, CAN'T VOTE

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Whatever the outcome of today's voting, election day was disappointing to Mayor William Hale Thompson. He was disfranchised by illness.

Mayor Thompson had looked forward eagerly to casting his ballot for the partisans of his administration and for James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic senatorial nominee, whose candidacy he had espoused in opposition to the Republican nominee, Ruth Hanna McCormick. Yesterday his first thought was to ask for an absentee ballot, and it was promised him.

Today, however, the election commission ruled the mayor was not an absentee, being within the boundaries of the county, and therefore could not vote unless he went to the polls of his home precinct.

Mayor Thompson's condition was much improved today and the symptoms of peritonitis which appeared after an operation Friday for appendicitis had subsided.

Diplomat Attacked By Gang in Vienna

VIENNA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A slight diplomatic incident has arisen here with the beating of Dr Trcka, counsellor of the Crecho-Slovakian Legation in Vienna, by six Austrian young men.

The diplomat was returning to Vienna from Bratyslava in a suburban railway train when the six youths attacked him.

26th Ward G. O. P. Club Backs Pinchot

Unearths Fossil Oyster Holding Perfect Pearl

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The finding by Dr. Louis R. Patmont of a perfectly preserved pearl in a fossil oyster believed to have lived centuries ago in the pleistocene period was disclosed here.

Dr. Patmont, pastor of the First Christian Church at Santa Rosa, pursues paleontology as a hobby. He came upon the pearl while digging into a fossil deposit in lime formation between Atascadero and Santa Margarita. It was in an oyster weighing about five and a quarter pounds and was about half the size of a garden pea.

9,000 QUALIFY AS WATCHERS

Headquarters of the Republican, Democratic and Liberal parties received 3,000 watchers' certificates each, according to records at the County Commissioners' office.

There are 1,067 districts in the county which would give the Republicans an average of two and a fraction for each district and the Democrats and Liberals, combined, five and a fraction.

The Liberal party is supporting only John M. Hemphill for governor, opposing Gifford Pinchot.

Voter, 80, Falls Dead in Booth

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—John Windhorst, 80, fell dead today as he stepped into a voting booth to cast his ballot. A physician said death was caused by heart failure.

GAIN IN VOTES BY SOCIALISTS, REDS SEEN

Major Parties Pay Close Attention to Growth of Minor Parties This Year

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Although today's election battle is admittedly a two-party show between Republicans and Democrats, big gains in votes cast are predicted by minority party leaders, and political observers here are closely watching the race of Socialists and Communists in many congressional districts.

The election, it is declared, may furnish an answer to claims that Communistic propaganda emanating from Moscow has penetrated deeply into the ranks of workers throughout the country.

It also may tell if the more radical Communist party as cutting deeply into the ranks of the more moderate Socialist organizations. Two years ago the Socialist party cast 267,420 and the Communists 48,770 votes.

The Communist party has placed 48 candidates on the Congressional ballot. Representative Hamilton Fish (Rep.), of New York, chairman of the special House committee investigating Communistic propaganda, has predicted that the Communist vote would be more than doubled tomorrow, reaching 100,000.

Although the Anti-Saloon League achieved political power by backing dry candidates under majority party labels, the national Prohibition party continues to designate its own candidates.

COURT REMOVES RECEIVER

Lee M. Bremer was removed as one of the receivers of the Lee-Chattaway-Jacobs Company, of Spring Garden avenue, in a decreee handed down by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson. The court directed him to file a final accounting of his receivership. Bremer was appointed receiver December 28, 1927.

The action of the court was upon petition of Charles W. Jacobs and E. J. Lee and others, who charged Bremer used funds of the receivership to operate the Havolee Food Products, Inc., at Norfolk Va., a pickle salting establishment, and accused him of squandering funds of the North Side concern. Bremer at a hearing claimed that the Norfolk company was not organized for purpose of profit, but to enable him to operate the Lee-Chattaway-Jacobs Company at less expense, as all principal competitors have their own pickle salting stations.

The court, in its opinion, held that even though the receiver be guiltless of fraudulent intent, he put into operation what might have been a most effective engine of fraud and acted along lines which he admittedly knew would not have been approved by the court.

SLEUTH SHOOTS SELF, ERROR

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A detective shot himself and another officer today trying to capture James Nannery, an escaped convict, wanted in connection with last Saturday night's attempted break at Sing Sing.

A detective lieutenant and five aides had watched a Brooklyn apartment house from midnight until dawn today for Nannery, who, police declared, had plotted a recent $100,000 jewelry holdup to finance the Sing Sing delivery and to rescue a "pal," Edward Ryan.

Early this morning the detectives broke into the apartment and arrested a woman identified as Carmella Olsen. While they were questioning her a key scraped in the lock. The woman screamed:

"The cops are here!"

'Rags,' War Hero, Autographs Book With Inky Paw

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A mere brigadier general and a platoon of soldiers isn't enough to strike awe into the heart of a dog which, as mascot of the First Division, played a hero's role in the World War.

So when Brig. Gen. Lucius R. Holbrook, the soldiers and movie men gathered at Fort Hamilton to see "Rags," famous canine, autograph a copy of his biography for the British Imperial War Museum, "Rags" refused for a long time to come out from behind a coal pile.

But he finally was brought out and placed an inked paw on the fly leaf of the book. It was the paw that was wounded in France while "Rags" was accompanying his buddies of the first division.

JURY MAY SIFT RAID ON WRITER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A grand jury investigation was ordered today into a police liquor raid on the home of William P. Flythe, Washington newspaperman.

A police squad, armed with a "John Doe" search warrant, sworn out by J. M. Burke, whom police identified as a one-time paid informer, last Saturday descended on the Flythe home while guests were being entertained. Flythe, who is the White House representative of a press association, said one of the raiders pointed a gun at him.

Burke had sworn he saw liquor sold in the basement of the house and also saw a still in operation.

Flythe today demanded action against Burke for perjury.

There may be fog early in the day, but it was expected that this would lift soon and permit the take-off. Fine flying weather all the way to Amsterdam was predicted. The ship has been held up here since Sunday because of the bad weather.

RUSSIAN, HUNGARIAN AND AMERICAN COMEDY HOLD REVELS ON OUR STAGE

'Uncle Vanya' So Very Real That You Apologize For Being There

By GEORGE SEIBEL

YOU FEEL a sort of embarrassment at watching "Uncle Vanya" in the Alvin Theater. You look furtively at the stage and hope no one sees you looking. You feel that you shouldn't spy on people like that—that you are guilty of a breach of etiquette, that you have violated the privacy of a home.

George Seibel

That is the sensation of attending a Chekhov play—it's what you got from watching the Moscow Art Players in his "Cherry Orchard," it's what you get from watching the admirable company at the Alvin in "Uncle Vanya."

You shouldn't do it—but you can't help it, just like the people in the play.

That man Chekhov was a great genius, if to understand human nature is genius, if to see the finest wrinkles of the soul is genius.

And in "Uncle Vanya" he has surpassed even Turgenev, and produced another "Month in the Country" even more touching than that picture of Russian life.

He has turned introspection into drama.

He has painted human beings with all the individual intensity of a Lucas Cranach or a Rembrandt van Rijn.

Plays like "Uncle Vanya" aren't plays at all—they are slices of souls, dissected by the scalpel of a literary surgeon.

ACTORS ARE REQUIRED

You understand why it has been said that a perfect cast is required to interpret such plays. And you are grateful to Jed Harris, or whoever did the casting, for having provided eight players who do not act but live their parts.

Somebody may have the idea that Lillian Gish is the star of the company, or at least the featured player. It is true she utters a soliloquy—almost as long as Hamlet's—with such artistry that you do not hear her talking, but see her thinking. But it is also true that there are seven other players in this cast who do their share with the same absolute surrender to the spirit of Chekhov. Of the four men Eduardo Cianelli probably does the most convincing work.

No, it must be Eugene Powers.

Thinking it over, perhaps Osgood Perkins was the best.

No, hang it all, it was Walter Connolly as Uncle Vanya.

And of the women, Zita Johann was just as sincere and human as Miss Gish. So were Isabel Irving and Kate Mayhew.

But then, of course, all of them had easy work. Chekhov paints human beings. The actors do not need to act. They only need to be human.

THE PATHOS OF LIFE

There is absolutely nothing dramatic about this play. It is called a comedy—it might as well be called a tragedy. There is not a single trick of the theater in the entire evening.

That pompous pedant and egotist who has married a young wife, that young wife whose fragile beauty is wasted on this desert air, that devoted physician who forsakes all other patients to minister to his own disease, that other pathetic lover who cannot even shoot straight when he gets courage to pull the trigger, that other girl whose love must learn to smile at grief, that poor old retainer who has made a religion of his sorrows and his guitar, that idolatrous mother and that fond nurse—these people are the inhabitants of a real world, not merely players who walk across Jo Mielziner's absolutely realistic settings.

Really and truly, you are ashamed to listen in and look on. It isn't decent. You feel apologetic and wish you hadn't intruded. You feel sorry for poor Uncle Vanya. Well, acting is not a dead art after all!

De Wolf Hopper On Stage 52 Years

De Wolf Hopper, veteran comedian, who delivered a lecture before the Woman's Club of Sewickley yesterday, was among the audience in the Nixon last night. After the curtain descended, there was a little party on the stage, for Mr. Hopper is celebrating the fifty-second anniversary of his first appearance as an actor. He left on a late train for New York where the Lambs Club has arranged another party in his honor tonight.

'Switzerland' to Be Newman Subject

"Switzerland," Europe's playground, is the traveltalk subject that E. M. Newman will bring to Carnegie Music Hall this evening. The traveltalk will include a motion picture view of a perilous climb up the Alps, more than 15,000 feet above the sea. While at Vevey Mr. Newman photographed the dogs, educated by Mrs. Harrison Eustic, an American woman, to lead the blind.

Election Features On Show Boat Bill

Along with the regular floor show, the Show Boat will have special election features tonight. Wally Vernon, master of ceremonies, The Demons, adagio dancers; Helen Manning, Lane and Gordon, singers, and the dance ensemble will be prominent. The production has been staged by Joe Hiller and Lou Bolton. Election returns will be read.

2 Speak at Meeting Of Clergymen

John W. Claudy yesterday addressed the Presbyterian Ministers' Association on "Restoring the Delinquent." He advocated teaching the children of the public schools the evils of the liquor traffic, in helping to bring about a higher moral standard. Evangelist Bob Jones made a short address.

TOOTH PULLING WINS DIVORCE

DENVER.—(INS.)—While Otto C. Baumbach rode around in one of his six automobiles or listened to one of his many radios, his wife, Eleanor, was busy cutting her own hair and pulling her own teeth, according to the story she told District Judge Charles C. Sackmann.

Mrs. Baumbach, suing for a divorce, said Baumbach spent all his money on automobiles and radios. The matter really didn't become annoying until Mrs. Baumbach wanted a tooth pulled. When she had to perform this operation herself she sought relief in the divorce court. She got the divorce.

BOY, 11, SAILS CARIBBEAN

CHICAGO.—(INS.)—There is at least one boy in Chicago to whom a geography book means more than a shield for a thriller about Deadwood Dick or Hair Trigger Harry.

This is 11-year-old Hartley De Gerald, who returned to school this fall with fresh memories of a trip he took alone in the Caribbean Sea.

At the close of school last spring Hartley asked his parents if he couldn't see some of the places he had read about. They assented, but said he would have to go by himself, as there was no one to act as his escort.

Among the places the boy visited were Martinique, Trinidad, the Guianas and Barbados.

Our Own

Dorothy Raymond, who has a principal role in "Street Scene," coming to the Alvin Monday, November 10, was reared in Pittsburgh and is a graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology as a librarian. She has appeared in Neighborhood Playhouse, Provincetown Players and Theater Guild productions and played leading roles in the Goodman Theater Company of Chicago as well as with road companies including that presenting "The Jazz Singer."

MABEL KROMAN HAS GAY TIME IN PITT PLAY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

It is Mabel Kroman's week in the Pitt. She dominates the three acts of "Meet the Wife," the current George Sharp production. This is a delightful little comedy, all about a woman who doesn't know whether she is a bigamist or a wife.

Miss Kroman has a time of it! One minute she is on the verge of a collapse and the next she is dashing out to a lecture or in for a cup of tea. Her tonic for trying situations is smelling salts and poetry. "I am the captain of my soul, I am the master of my fate," she recites and the play's action continues unconfined.

All of the plot develops in one day in the living room of the Lennox home, where Miss Kroman, known as Mrs. Lennox, is all in a flurry over the arrival of a distinguished guest, an author. And when the author arrives she goes into a faint. He happens to be her first husband, who she thought was dead.

OH, FOR AN EARTHQUAKE

Paul McGrath, affecting an appropriate makeup, plays this gentleman. The San Francisco earthquake showed him the way to freedom. He took advantage of the confusion and disappeared. And his grief-stricken "widow" married three months later; married a Mr. Lennox, who is none other than Robert Fiske.

And is Mr. Fiske envious of Mr. McGrath! The final act comes with Fiske visioning California. He, too, realizes there is nothing like a good earthquake to jolt a man out of a rut.

But Mabel looks toward Egypt. Her grownup daughter, just married to a newspaper reporter, is on her way there. And Mabel says: "Oh, how lovely it would be to ride into the sunset on a camel's back."

HE HAS FLAT FEET

Jean May and Chuck Webster portray the young romantic leads. Hugh Banks is present as a goofy sort of artist, with asthma and flat feet. He wants a girl, but doesn't get her.

The production is well presented by Mr. Sharp's company. It is, however, as cited above, mostly Miss Kroman's show. Besides registering as a comedienne, she puts on a fashion parade that includes a suit of lounging pajamas that shriek.

Edwin Vail did a grand job with the directing and the scenic setting is an artistic achievement.

An added attraction is Eddie Peyton's orchestra which hands out the tunes and a song or so between the acts.

PITTSBURGH GIRL HEADS ACADEMY BILL

Mae Dix, one of the principals of "Speed Girls," the current attraction at the Academy this week, is a Pittsburgh girl. She is co-featured with Mike Sachs and Fred "Falls" Binder, comedians of the piece.

"Spain" and "Zanzabar," are among the more pretentious scenes of "Speed Girls." There are vaudeville acts. The company includes Adeline Parks, Frances Farr, Harry Cornell, Johnny Cook, Frank Damsel and Alice Kennedy.

'Cherries Are Ripe,' Comedy in Nixon, Is Juicy Fun

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Don Juan would have hung his head in shame had he been present in the Nixon last night to witness the skill with which Rod La Rocque, in "Cherries Are Ripe," overshadowed the best in amorous technique that Don ever tried to put over even in his heyday as a great lover. And he would have been crushed with mortification to see what a simpleton a demure country wife, as excellently portrayed by Vilma Banky, made of his modern prototype.

For the modern Don, who had enchanted many women, according to frank discussions of his reputation, and his own admissions, was actually kidded by the object of his newest pursuit. Kidded indeed! Joshed out of his purpose and made to believe that the moon, instead of being the orb of romance really is made of green cheese. But his set-back is only temporary and things are looking up by the time the curtain descends.

FUN RARE AND JUICY

"Cherries Are Ripe," which is by John Emerson and Anita Loos, who confess their indebtedness to a translation of a Hungarian story, is most amusing and will provide delightful moments for those who like their dramatic fun rare and juicy. It will provide a surprise, too, for those who may harbor the impression that Miss Banky and Mr. La Rocque merely are a couple of movie actors out of screen jobs and are trying to get along as best they may.

Of course they are doing their best—and it is plenty good enough, even though Miss Banky is a little late beginning. It is not until about the middle of the second act, when she begins to spoof Mr. Don Juan, who, for dramatic purposes, appears as Count Sandor Rathyany, that the audience really warms up to her. From that point on she is a winner—an actress with talent and charm and ravishing beauty—beauty such as few women on the stage are fortunate enough to possess. Even her dialect, which appears to be an impediment at first, later is regarded as no detriment to her art.

LA ROCQUE GOOD ACTOR

Mr. La Rocque wins approval right away. He has a mellifluous voice, which he knows how to use well, poise and an engaging smile, all assets in the part he is called upon to play—a gay chap whose purpose in life is pleasure and whose conception of the finest art is the subjugation of feminine hearts.

The play itself is highly sophisticated but adroitly made, taking its title from the text of a message to be sent to a husband who desires to test the faithfulness of his wife. It is rather a strain upon credulity but it is spicy and amusing.

Election returns will be announced from the stage tonight.

TERMINAL ROAD LAND OFFERED

The necessity of an entrance road to the proposed North Side rail and river terminal was called to the attention of council yesterday in a communication from Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang. Lang said that, pending the proposed extension of Reedsdale street, the Pittsburgh Railways Company has offered a 20-foot strip of property for the nominal price of $1.

The strip, if obtained by the city, would permit the widening of Sprout way to 40 feet, Lang declared.

Gorio's Entire Gang Shot Down by Rivals

CHAPTER XXIII.

Several of the executioners took off their hats, and all looked nervous and touched—touched not with sympathy or remorse, but moved by the presence of Gorio's men talking to God—to God whom they would soon look in the face.

Monk was down on one knee. He shaded his bloody and battered countenance with his right hand. He mumbled monosyllables.

The scene grew interminable to the armed murderers, who stood in disorderly formation, making an irregular semi-circle behind Gleason, who was at the fore, not letting the angle of his machine gun drop even during the last pleas to heaven.

Monk broke the tensity of the situation.

With a profound inhalation that could be nothing but "Amen," he lifted his face, dragged up the foot of the leg on which he knelt, and stood erect.

He fumbled in a pocket and brought out a cigaret. In another he found a match. He lit up, filliped the match half the length of the room. He sucked at his smoke spasmodically and belched out clouds. His jumpy eyes peppered Gleason and the murder-mob behind him.

"So youse had to do it in p'lice cars an' p'lice harness," he sneered. "Workin' wit' the coppers! I hope youse all got the same square deal youse give us. . .I'm ready."

One by one the Gorios were rising.

Gleason Admires Men

"Come on," called Monk. "If what you said a'ready ain't enough, no matter what you say won't get you nothin' . . . come on—we got to go—let's go."

Hummell finished out his invocation. As he came to his feet he opened his eyes and seemed self-conscious because everyone was looking at him, as though he had been caught, alone, in some boyish or boobish deed. He braced his shoulders and flattened his broad back against the bricks.

"All right," he said throatily. "I—I won't hold up the works."

"Secretary" Gleason, conceived in gin, bore in sin, nursed on blood, was tough. He had plotted the death of many a man before and carried it out with a serious concentration that had no room for shame or sentiment. It was his business. But never before had he called on himself for anything quite as grim and grisly as this piece of business.

It was one thing to take a sucker or a traitor for a ride, press the nozzle of an automatic into his belly and pull a little trigger . . . it was another to waylay an auto, cut in on it, poke the sprayer of a typewriter through a flapping side-curtain and let go the fusillade as his car tore on in high. But this—

It had taken so long, it had been so deliberate—and these damned rats acted so like men! He couldn't help hating them, but he couldn't help admiring them. No matter how badly a man needs killing, it is disconcerting if he doesn't collaborate—co-operate. He might at least show yellow so that there would be some pleasure in plugging him. He might whine and make a guy sore so that he would shoot in anger. But this mob!

Courageous Gang

They weren't even impudent, not even defiant. They didn't challenge death, in which event it would have been the brave thing to call their bluff. These Gorios knew how to die; it might have been expected that they would know only how to get killed.

However—

Gleason cleared his throat with a hack.

"Youse guys can turn to the wall or take it the way youse are," he said.

There was no answer. There was no move.

"Hey—quit your stallin'—stand up an' go to hell like a man—hear me?"

There was no answer. There was no move.

Gleason was glad. It was something to get sore about. He kicked Cranky lustily.

"He's out," said Monk. "Let him die in peace."

"He'll die in pieces, the yeller skunk," spat Gleason. "Well—any o' youse wanna say anything before I—before the blow-off?"

"Dom' get impatient," snarled Gleason. "You won' die of old age. You're a pretty breezy bird for a spot like this, you are. Hear me?"

He was trying to work himself up to a state of anger. He wanted to be dared—he wanted someone to say something out of turn—he wanted to fly into a temper so that it would start while he was hot; he knew that after it started the momentum would carry him through . . . for this was to be a slaughter, a massacre, and his heart was in it—but his hands just wouldn't get going.

Ray Is Shot

No one said a word now.

The telephone rang!

Everyone jumped. Gleason motioned one of his men to answer. It was a blind number, of course, and no outsider would call it—no tradesman—no—

It was for Ray. The man at the phone held his hand over the transmitter and said so—a woman calling—

"My wife!" gasped Ray, and started. Gleason shoved the nose of his machine gun into the gangster chauffeur's breast.

"Stand back," he cried

"For God's sake," pleaded Ray. "It's my wife—we've only been married six weeks—what harm can it do?—for God's sake, man—I won' say nothin'—jus' goodby—lemme tell 'er goodby—for God's sake—"

"Stand back," screamed Gleason, "stand back or I'll—"

Ray ducked under the gun and made a desperate sprint toward the telephone. Two gats snorted. He fell in his tracks, clutched at his bowels, turned over and lay still.

"Hang up that phone," shouted Gleason. And he turned.

"Now, youse hoodlums," he barked through gritted teeth, "that's all I'm gonna take from any o' youse. It's fight youse want, is it, huh? Get back there—against that wall—an' no more monkeyin'—hear me?"

Monk dropped his cigaret and crushed it slowly with his foot.

"I ain't squawkin'," he said, with a voice that cracked and a smile that agonized. "Let 'er go, I hope your lousy soul roasts in Hell eternal t'gether with that other buzzard, Kinky King."

The Massacre

"Oh, that's it, is it?" he cried, hysterically. "Well—just for that—"

He swung the nozzle of his machine gun to the far left, braced himself for the stance, shut his eyes one second, and—

Like the roar of a thousand cannon in the hollow inclosed barn the reverberations of the discharges, staccato and thunderous, were punctured with the dull clumps of lead striking soft bodies and the sharp snap of bullets striking hard bricks.

They all went down before that first quadrant of fire.

Some collapsed where they stood. Others slumped forward.

Gleason lowered his death-sprayer and sprinkled them with it on the floor. His killer lust was riding high. Cranky got it and never knew it. Those of the others who still writhed or wriggled were shocked with each new impact into one more weak recoil, one more resistless little quiver. Blood everywhere.

It was all done. All over. There they lay, 13 of them, 10 in a heap.

Gleason let the nose of his gun swing down toward the floor.

"Well, that's that," he said, waving away the smoke with his other hand. "Youse eight beat it West—youse six an' me an' Ratface go East. We meet at 9 o'clock t'night—hear me?"

Pinkey Shapiro rubbed his hands.

"This territory'll be a goldmine," he cackled.

You Never Forget That First Little Sweetheart, Fay King Says

By FAY KING.

Few of us have married our very first sweetheart.

I mean the very first boy or girl we admired so much we would walk five blocks out of our way to avoid them, hoping every minute we'd meet them.

No wife or husband should ever be the least bit jealous of that very first sweetheart. In fact, I think they should often speak of them together.

Not so long ago I met an old, old friend of the past. We had so much to talk over.

"I wonder whatever became of Irene?" he said. How he adored her.

And no doubt his wife wonders what ever became of some Bob—or Joe.

Love's Reawakening

Madge Assumes Task of Explaining to Lillian

I had gone too far in my attempt to arm Marion against the influence of her "roomie's" Uncle Charlie. I saw that with a guilty little qualm as Lillian's young daughter with wide, terrified eyes cried, "Stop! I can't bear it!"

It is never my way, however, to dodge an issue or a responsibility, and I dealt with this one swiftly.

"Forgive me, Marion," I said, putting my hand over hers. "I should not have said that to you. I had no right, but—"

"Yes, you had," she cried vehemently. "It's all true what you said. If Mummy had been terribly ill and called for me you couldn't have found me for hours. And if she'd found out I had left the school without her knowing it, the worry would have made her worse. Why, it might have killed her!"

My grasp tightened upon her twisting fingers.

"But she isn't ill and nothing has happened," I said quietly, "and you are making me very unhappy Marion. I feel so guilty—"

I had touched the right chord. Marion is her mother's own daughter, instant in her response to any need of bruised flesh or spirit. I was doubly ashamed of my momentary doubt of her as she quieted herself with a visibly painful effort and lifted her eyes, so like her mother's, to mine.

"I won't say anything more about it, if it makes you feel bad, Auntie Madge. But—there's one thing I mustn't do—I mustn't go with Carolyn and the others tonight."

There was bitter disappointment in her face, but it was not so strong as the resolution I saw there. Knowing the propensity of feminine adolescence for martyrdom, I should have expected the announcement, but it it came as a complete and dismaying surprise to me.

"Why?" I put the question steadily with no hint of my disquietude.

"Why?" she repeated as if puzzled. "Don't you see, Auntie Madge, it's my punishment. Besides, she won't want me to go."

I looked out of the taxi window for a full half minute before I answered, for I knew that her will power, an inheritance from both her mother and her dead father, was not easily conquered. But I knew also that in this case I had the powerful ally of her eager young heart. Every fiber of her was alive with the desire to be one of the Brixton party for the evening, the party where Ronald Brixton would be her especial devoted cavalier.

"Marion," I said at last, "you believe that I know your mother pretty well, don't you?"

"I think you know her better than anybody else in the world does," she answered promptly.

"And that I love her very dearly?"

"May I be impertinent and say that is 'foolish question number eight million and something?'"

"I won't call it impertinence," I said smiling at her serious face, "and I want to ask you one more question. Will you let me decide just what action of yours would most please your mother? In other words, leave this whole matter to me?"

She did not avert her eyes from mine, and for a long minute she waited, with rebellion battling against her subconscious longing to obey me. Finally, as I hoped, the respect of my opinions, in which her mother had brought her up, bolstered her hidden desire and she yielded with pretty deference.

"Of course, Auntie Madge," she said. "Forgive me even for hesitating about it. I'll do whatever you say."

"Thank you, dearest," I said softly. "All I want you to do is to keep quiet, no matter how upset your mother may appear when she first sees you. I will see that you have a chance to go into your own room, where, incidentally, Mary is asleep—or was when I left—while I explain everything to your mother."

There was patent relief in her eyes when I had finished, accompanied by something more tender, which she presently voiced.

"You are so good to me, Auntie Madge, but then you always shoulder the disagreeable jobs. I ought not to let you——"

"Just stop right there, Marion." My voice was firm though I smiled at her. "This isn't a hard task at all. But I must ask you one thing. Until I give you permission I do not want you to tell your mother of Mr. Owen's flippant little speech that 'what she didn't know wouldn't hurt her.' She will be upset enough about his being your escort, even though Carolyn's mother did send him for you both."

"I won't say anything except what you tell me," she agreed docilely.

"That is the only thing you need to keep back," I assured her, "and that only until your mother is less nervous than she is today. She has had all that she can bear just now."

I did not realize what had slipped from my incautious lips until I saw the quick fright in Marion's eyes.

"What do you mean?" she asked tensely. "What has happened?"

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pressing pimples before the pus has gathered fully will infect the skin and cause more eruptions to form. Hot applications hurry up the formation of pus and make the skin that covers the pimple thin and breakable. A boil should never be lanced or tampered with. Hot moist compresses will bring it to a head and it will empty itself.

Following is the formula for a delightful massage cream, suitable for whisking wrinkles from the facial premises: Melt together one-half ounce of white wax, one-half ounce of spermaceti, one ounce of cocoanut oil, one ounce of lanoline, two ounces of oil of sweet almonds. Remove from fire, add one ounce of orange flower water, and fluff with eggbeater until the consistency of whipped cream. Pour into jars.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Where Is "America's Lover"?

Where are the "IT men" of yesteryear?

What has become of all the Great Lovers, who adorned the screen and the stage?

There are many great actors on the screen—more great actors than ever, since the talkies came in. But, where is "America's Lover"—the movie-lover once adored by all the screen fans?

* * *

Perhaps I've missed him, or overlooked him, but in all the plays and photoplays I have seen in the last two years, there appear to be only two kinds of love-making.

* * *

The tempestuous, caveman, grab-as-grab-can kind — usually relegated to the villain. And the cool, casual, "Well-what-say - old-girl-let's-make-a-stab-marriage" kind — usually indulged in by the hero?

* * *

Does this mean that women are tired of the glamor of love? That they want their love-making either rough, raw and elemental or in commonsense walking boots? Because actors always give the public what they WANT.

* * *

Does it mean that the modern girl doesn't KNOW any kind of love-making between the wrestling-match variety and the pat-on-the-back, good-pal sort?

Does it mean that men have forgotten how to make love—or that women have forgotten how to TAKE it?

Does a woman really regard a football clutch, a primitive clinch, and a few savage kisses as "love-making?"

* * *

And is there nothing else, except the cool, calm, composed "Take - me - or - leave - me-you-lucky-little-thing!" attitude of the nonchalant, cucumber-lover?

* * *

Have all the glory and the glamor, all the mystery and tenderness, all the ardor and romance gone out of love, forever?

* * *

Must love-making be either violent and frenzied or nonchalant and commonplace? ARE we emotionally DEAD?

I don't believe it! Human nature doesn't change like that—not even in a machine age!

I believe that if, tomorrow, some skillful actor would specialize in love-making—tender, rapturous, gallant, old-fashioned love-making—he would make a hit that would send his fame ringing around the world.

* * *

"America's Sweetheart" is still with us—but where's "America's Lover?" There's a TIP for screen actors! Don't be so darned casual!

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

When There is No Engagement Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should I go about announcing my engagement if I am not getting a ring? I would like to announce it at a hotel tea, but would be at a loss as to what to say if I were asked to show my ring. I do not want a ring at present because we want to use that money for more important things, and also I am not fond of jewelry. Please be kind enough to tell me what I can do. I know all of my friends expect me to have a ring. C. B.

You have made your decision, dear girl—and a perfectly correct and proper decision it is, if you wish it—and now hold your head high, and don't even think of what your friends may think or wish to know. If they are so thoughtless as to ask you about a ring, tell them quite honestly what you have told me. I hope, of course, that they won't be so thoughtless—for they should wait until they are shown a ring, not inquire about it, however delicately—but if they are, you should meet this as we all have to meet thoughtlessness with fineness and honesty, and straightforwardness.

Now there isn't any reason in the world why you should have an engagement ring if you don't specially care for one. I can so easily, so readily, understand your not particularly wishing one. And why should you have one? You don't especially like jewelry, and you had rather have the money applied later for other more necessary things. Good for you, for being so brave and of such an independent mind. The world of questioning friends can't, and needn't, do anything to you.

Correcting a Common Grammatical Error

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me which is correct: "I thank you for the flowers that you gave to Michael and me," or "I thank you for the flowers that you gave to Michael and I?"

Louis.

I thank you for the flowers that you gave to Michael and me is correct. You can test this by omitting Michael from your sentence—then you have, I thank you for the flowers that you gave to me. You couldn't say "to I." The word to in your sentence is a preposition (like for, in, again, and so forth), and prepositions are followed by the objective case.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Child Be Told the Naked Truths of Life?

Does it take the kick out of kid days to know the facts of life?

Mistress Clarissa Atkins is positive it does. She herself was a girl back in the dear old nit-wit nineties, when No Really Nice Girl Ever Knew Anything. And she's firmly convinced that there's nothing left for youth to be gay and tremulous and starry-eyed about any more—because Johnny and Mary know all the sordid details.

"Dear Miss Martin—You hear a great deal nowadays about these 'wonderful' modern times, but when I look at our modern young people, and compare them with my own youth, I don't feel like touting them much, in fact, I think that for the young people of today life must hold very little, compared to what it held for me, and for the young people I knew when I was a girl.

"I know that it's fashionable to laud the great 'knowledge of life' that our present-day youngsters have. But to my mind, that is exactly what destroys all the glamor and imagination and romance that youth should be heir to.

"When I was a girl, life and the future looked glorious to me. I had such wonderful dreams and fancies. It was all like a fairy tale. There was something sacred to me about looking forward to love—and to the coming of my prince. I thought life was marvelous. And I was a grown woman before I found out that it really wasn't at all.

"I was long past 20 before my illusions were shattered, and I was shocked by learning the sordid facts of life. But now—now our children have their illusions shattered before they get into their teens. They know how and why all the wheels go round. There is nothing left for them to build lovely, glamorous pictures about. They know all the drabness almost from babyhood.

"I think that it is pitiful. Youth should be allowed its visions. It should be allowed to believe in beauty and high romance while it can.

"And when I listen to the appallingly frank talk, and get the hideously analytical and matter-of-fact viewpoint of these poor twentieth century babes, it makes my heart heavy, because it seems to me that their lives must be very bleak and their imaginations poverty-stricken.

"I can well remember how thrilled I and my sister and our chums were when we began to get grown up enough to be called young ladies. There was so much fascinating mystery ahead. So much to wonder and dream about and get excited over. But these youngsters have nothing. It has all been explained to them already.

"No doubt it is true that they're just as good as we were, and that they'll make just as good citizens. But it seems a shame that they must be cheated out of all their dreams. I'm sorry for them.

"Do you see what I mean? And don't you think I'm right? Didn't grandmother have a lovelier youth than our girls have today? I'm sure she did!

"MRS. CLARISSA A."

Do I believe that knowing truth makes life drab—shuts out the stars and the sunrise?

No, my dear, I don't. It is quite true that the girls of thirty years ago had their hearts and their minds filled with beautiful flowery fancies that few modern girls have. But it is equally true that those very fancies often were destructive and brought misery and unhappiness. They were destructive because most of them were false and foolish. They gave their possessors impractical ideals that many times failed utterly to "click" with life and reality.

And many times the shock of discovering that there was no truth in them was so great that the youngsters who had believed in them never recovered from it.

The youngsters of today, with their one frankness and their early knowledge of fact, don't have these shocks. They're prepared for life-as-is. You think that preparation is a sad and sordid affair. Anything but! There are quite as many beautiful and inspiring 'facts of life' as there are vicious and vulgar ones.

The youngster of today sees the whole picture. He sees perhaps more of the viciousness than you saw in your youth—he needs to see it, if he would win through modern conditions. But he also sees incomparably more splendor and nobility and gallant adventure than you, in your fairy-tale girlhood, ever glimpsed.

I know lady—for I was a girl when you were, and I tell you these youngsters have it all over us. We started with candied lies or cowardly evasion. They're starting with the splendid, naked truth. And because of that, they've a thousand times more chance of real happiness than the girl who was brought up on angel cake and moonshine and had her "illusions smashed at 20."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Keep Cool in Aiding Hurt Person

Quite frequently we are forced to take care of someone who has met with an accident and is bleeding. No one of us enjoys this experience and if the choice of going for the doctor or staying with the bleeder is given, I know what most of us would rather do.

DR COPELAND

The injured person is usually just as timid and frightened as you are at the sight of blood. He is bleeding and the doctor has been called. Everybody is distressed and worried. What shall we do until the medico comes?

We are frightened for fear the patient will bleed to death before the doctor arrives. The friends get excited and almost always the patient gets excited. The more you get excited, the more he does.

How well I recall a scene in Medical College many years ago. The professor was asking his students as to the proper first procedure in a case of bleeding. Many excellent and correct outlines of the procedure as recited in the text books were given by the anxious-to-please students.

"No, no," stormed the professor, and to the amazement of all stated, "The proper care is first to keep cool. After that," he said, "stop the bleeding."

If we would always remember this and act upon it, there would be less excitement whenever such emergencies arise. A life may be saved in consequence.

Various methods of stopping the blood artificially have been described by the surgeons. Which one to use depends on the type and site of the bleeding.

As a rule, bleeding will stop in a few minutes anyhow, if the patient is kept quiet. The firm pressure of a dressing may do the trick. Such a dressing soaked in very hot water will often stop the bleeding.

If the bleeding continues and you are doubtful as to the vessel that is responsible, something else must be done. Then a "tourniquet" must be applied.

A tourniquet is simply a constricting band placed around the injured limb between the wound and the heart. This pressure shuts off the flow of blood to this part of the body. It consists of a pad, which serves as the pressure part, and a band. The pad may be made of a small stone, a piece of wood, or other hard object, wrapped in some material to make it less rough.

If sufficient pressure cannot be exerted by hand, it may easily be aided by placing a stick under the binder and twisting. But you must be careful not to exert sufficient pressure to cause discoloration or marked pain.

Remember you are only treating the injured person until the doctor arrives. If no one has come within the hour, and the tourniquet is on, release it. Allow the tourniquet to remain loose but in place. If the bleeding appears again it may be tightened.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, November 5

A day of stirring, probably exciting, events may be predicted from the strong places of powerful planets. There may be moves or precipitate actions in order to launch plans for new undertakings or for negotiations with large corporations or through secret arrangements. Change seems to be involved, and the best aspects of the proposition may be negatived by hasty or rash deeds. Personal affairs have also a tendency to impetuosity and indiscretion.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of some commotion and turbulence, with the danger of precipitate and unwise action in connection with launching new enterprises. Premeditation and calm action are enjoined if success is to crown the desires and bring gratification in personal associations.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be rash, headstrong, quarrelsome, although resourceful and enterprising. It may imperil its best interests by its tendency to violent and passionate conduct unless trained early.

ELECTION EXPERTS GIVE SUN-TELEGRAPH RETURNS ON RADIO

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—KDKA marks the tenth anniversary of broadcasting. Exactly 10 years ago a few hundred people strained their ears to hear election returns flashed through the ether from KDKA in Pittsburgh, the pioneer radio station of the world.

Louis Reid

It is a decade that forms one of the most astounding chapters in the history of science—a chapter that has been told and retold by the chroniclers of the times. It is not our intention to record it anew.

Yet it seems to us that the historians in listing radio's spectacular achievements have never given sufficient attention to the part it has played in revolutionizing American civilization.

Broadcasting has made the republic almost as familiar with Beethoven as it once was with the flag-waving chants of George M. Cohan. It has debunked politics, and a nation is grateful. Rare today is the political orator who would brave the radio sea with tremulous voice and a boatload of blah.

Pittsburgh's Right To Beat a Drum

Because of radio, kings of countries, queens of opera, emperors of jazz have stomped into the parlors. It has made an arena as well as an auditorium of the armchair.

And it has taken only 10 years to do it. Why shouldn't radio today beat a drum? If the drum is beaten a little louder in Pittsburgh than anywhere else, the world will not complain. To Pittsburgh belongs the glory of launching the ethereal pageant. As a result of the enterprise of its laboratory researchers 10 short year ago, 13,000,000 loudspeakers in America will be tuned tonight to election returns.

Yet, beneath all of broadcasting's amazing achievements, a strange bit of human interest can be discerned. The name of Warren Gamaliel Harding, indelibly interwoven with the beginning of broadcasting, never passes the lips of those who are called to the microphone.

* * *

In marking the tenth milestone of the microphone, radio's surveyors can well take the credit for being the principal factor in the back-to-the-home movement now so widespread in the nation. Home, it seems to us, was never so integral a part of American life. This, despite the rush to the Reno express and the laments of those who have gazed too long on the line of taxis in front of the night clubs.

Radio Makes Farm More Attractive

And radio, according to no less an authority than M. Aylesworth, field marshal of the N. B. C., is the most important factor in the reduction of the farm-to-city movement. It should be good news to George Russell, the Irish poet AE, who is now viewing with alarm right here in America what he believes to be a widespread desertion of the farm for life in teeming cities.

Rural chores cannot be as tedious today; certainly they can be more easily forgotten when night steals over the barn and the farmer realizes that the jazz of the town and the hoedowns of the countryside are his with a twist of the wrist.

Our recent comment on a nation's failure to memorialize suitably its great song writers brings in the morning's mail a note from E. A. H., Sewickley, Pa.:

"You might also include our local celebrity, Ethelbert Nevin, in your column, 'No Status to Song Writers.' A great composer whose songs are loved by all the nation, he lies in our local cemetery, obscure, forgotten, not even honored by his townspeople with a mention or a flower on Memorial Day."

The voice of Shaw, long awaited in America, failed to reach our shores distinctly. Millions of listeners cupped their ears, but only the roar of banqueters at his sallies came clearly through the air. His speech, with its unusual tribute to Einstein, was good reading. It would have been even better to hear.

Not only was there a rush to the divans when Shaw began to talk, but the office chair and stool were brought within range of the loudspeaker throughout the land. People stopped work, as they stopped during the World Series, to listen, to gather in the plums from the most luxuriant wisecrack tree this side of Jordan. All to no avail.

Can't We Hear Again From Shaw!

Cannot the broadcasters persuade Shaw to try again, and trying again to give us more of the personal pronoun? No one is as adroit in the use of the personal pronoun. Airing his opinions on civilization in general and that of America in particular, he would be one of the half dozen outstanding lures to the listener.

Babies GAIN when guarded from Constipation!

BABY isn't gaining his ... or eight ounces a week? Constipation may be the reason. It is behind most of a baby's troubles. Colic. Fretfulness. Gas. It keeps Baby from accepting or retaining the proper amount of food.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is good for any baby. It is a prescription for the bowels written by a famous doctor—one who attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby—a record believed unique in American medical history.

Half a teaspoonful of this simple prescription often relieves occasional troubles like that in a few hours. If Baby is bottle-fed or for any other reason is regularly constipated, give half a teaspoonful daily until the little fellow is happy; gaining as he should.

The pleasant, syrupy flavor of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin commends it to children. Its gentle action makes it ideal for women. It doesn't sicken. It cannot gripe. So it is a blessing to elderly people. And it is thoroughly effective for the most robust man. All drugstores.

"Twenty-Mule Team."
The dramatic story of how the famous Twenty-Mule Team came into being will be the subject of the Death Valley Days program.
The Twenty-Mule Team was a unique desert transportation system designed to haul the rich treasure of borax out of Death Valley over gigantic mountain ranges and across the trackless desert to the nearest railway station, 165 miles away.

"Radio Industry."
What the radio industry has meant to America's social and intellectual life, and a brief picture of its technical development will be outlined by Frederick G. Rodgers.
The radio industry has grown by rapid strides until today it is one of the outstanding enterprises in America. Countless thousands are employed in the manufacture of receiving sets and allied operations. The radio industry, through its service in bringing information and entertainment to the public, performs a valuable service to the present age.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Darrell V. Martin

Pinchot or Hemphill, the public will know the winner first tonight by tuning WCAE for Sun-Telegraph returns. Arrangements have been made to broadcast the first returns at 8 o'clock and at intervals from then until the election is decided. If the decision hangs in the balance WCAE will continue on the air until one or the other candidate shows a majority sufficient to indicate election. A corps of Sun-Telegraph election experts will furnish WCAE with the returns and an analysis of their importance and bearing on the race. Special music will be provided from New York and by local artists.

Jesse L. Kaufman, manager, and Frank Muller, publicity director, will be in their glory when they announce Sun-Telegraph election returns over WCAE tonight. Both have had experience reporting elections for newspapers in Pittsburgh and other cities.

SO SORRY

The cleverest telegram of regret received by KDKA during their birthday celebration was from Mayor Matt Thompkins and Marthy. They wired:

"Congratulations your birthday. KDKA is a fine station even in District 5, where you can't get anything. I did want to be there but Elmer's dog has distemper and Martha has started our buying campaign so we're hopin' and waitin' for the front door to open."

HAT RACK-ET

Of all the stories that cropped up during the celebration, we think that one about Marquis Chisholm's iron hat the funniest.

Mark ate in a downtown restaurant. When he left he placed on his superb brow a black derby, presumably his. He wore it around all day and part of that night . . . . that part up to the time his wife saw it.

"Why, Mark," she said, "where did you get that hat?"

"Why, it's my hat. What's wrong?"

Upon which Mrs. Chisholm seized it. Inside were the initials "P. W. R." The size was one-quarter smaller. The lining was different. The manufacture was different. Well, it wasn't Mark's hat!

Things wound up all right about 10 minutes later, when the other victim came in with a derby sloshed over his ears.

Mrs. Chisholm is particular about how the production manager of KDKA dresses.

Merle Jacobs' Orchestra is to succeed him Friday.

We had the pleasure of being invited to watch Amos 'n' Andy work last night on their 7 o'clock broadcast, but an interview with James Francis Burke intervened.

* * *

The boys were feeling quite liberal. They requested Lou Kaufman to stay with them. He did.

Gold has not tarnished the two boys.

Floyd Gibbons is a prince. His personally signed article in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday was the first he had given any newspaper. We retain the copy as a prized souvenir.

He stopped eating his lunch to write it. Then it took some persuasion to gain his permission to print it. Floyd is a modest person.

Which is something rare for newspapermen, believe you me, as Ted Husing would say.

Floyd denied that he had been offered $1,000 to attend the Pittsburgh Radio Show.

QUESTION A DAY:

Will you kindly tell me where I may locate Charles Wakefield Cadman, the composer of so many selections played on the radio?—F. D., Aspinwall.

Answer—Simply address him at Hollywood, Cal., where he is doing music continuity for the movies.

The King of England's talk to America on the morning of November 12 at 7 o'clock is to be broadcast here by KDKA. Gillham, whispering pianist, is to appear exclusively on WJAS starting October 8 at 11 p. m.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Howard Barlow, conductor of the Philco Hour on WJAS at 9:30 tonight, rarely plays the overture to the "Meistersinger" because he has a superstition that it is an ill luck omen. Similarly, Mayhew Lake will never play "Ase's Death" from "Peer Gynt Suite," we are told, in a Columbia System release on "Superstations," written by Jesse Butcher.

ROAD WIDENING UP TO COUNCIL

An ordinance providing for the widening of Noblestown road, from Obey avenue to Baldwin road, is being considered by Council. The damages are estimated at $107,000.

Other ordinances provide for the grading, paving and curbing of Bordella street, from Crucible to Oswin, Vancroft street from Herron to Ossipee; Oswin from Bordella to Steuben and Brightside to Holyoke to Charles.

The Public Works Department, which sponsored these ordinances, also presented one for $3,000 for the removal of loose earth from the south side of the Mt. Washington roadway. The dirt, falling on the highway, has created a dangerous condition, Director Edward G. Lang reported.

WELFARE GIFTS SHOW INCREASE

Corporations and special groups have increased their donations to the Welfare Fund Campaign this year and many have already made contributions, Joseph Dilworth, general chairman, said today.

The response from these particular categories, Dilworth said, has been such to indicate that the increased budget this year will be met by increases in subscriptions all along the line. Subscriptions to date, he pointed out, show at least a 30 per cent increase and in some instances as much as 50 and 100 per cent.

The budget has been set at 30 per cent higher this year than last. This is to meet the needs of eight new member agencies and an increased budget for family relief. Goal of the campaign is $1,520,248.

The firm is engaged in the metal plating business. Bill of complaint stated the firm had $72,000 outstanding in notes, bonds and other obligations with assets in excess of $95,000.

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Anyone can darken their gray or faded hair, and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

DIETS THAT do not include roughage cause constipation, often with serious consequences.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains the roughage needed to insure regular elimination. Now new processes have made this famous cereal even more delightful—improved both in texture and in taste.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation! Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases, with each meal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not fattening. It adds valuable iron to the blood, which helps prevent dietary anemia and brings color to the complexion. Try the recipes on the package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

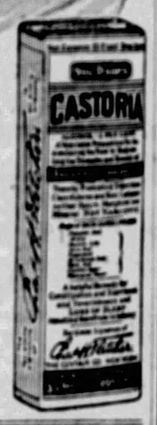
If BABY HAS COLIC



COLIC comes suddenly. Your first intimation that something is wrong may be a warning cry in the night. If you have a bottle of Castoria handy you needn't worry, for a little of this pure vegetable remedy will soon have baby his happy self again; let him go back to sleep.

Castoria is always the sensible thing to give an ailing child. When a child is restless, fretful, with coated tongue, bad breath and lack of appetite, it is a mother's standby. Most mothers give Castoria an important place in their homes. Ready for sour stomach, constipation, or upset. When buying Fletcher's Castoria always look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. This identifies the genuine product.

HONOR DOCTOR AS MARTYR

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The name of Dr. Paul Lewis, eminent pathologist, was added to the list of scientists working under the Rockefeller Foundation auspices who gave their lives to their work, it was revealed in the annual report of the foundation.

Dr. Lewis died June 30, 1929, of yellow fever, in Bahia, Brazil. The report said:

"Research work in yellow fever, both in Africa and in Brazil, is fraught with great danger to those who undertake it. All honor is due to the scientists engaged in this important but perilous task.

"The men in the laboratories and on the field in Africa, in collaboration with scientific workers on the same subject in other parts of the world, are year by year pushing forward the frontiers of our knowledge about yellow fever.

"In the year 1929 an encouraging amount of new domain was thoroughly explored."

A resurvey, carried out after 10 years, showed an enormous decrease in malaria has taken place during this interval, the report said.

YOUTH KILLS 2 TO AVOID RUM

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A confession that he killed two men in a fight to resist their efforts to make him drink a glass of liquor was made today, police said, by Edward Kotowski, 21. He surrendered, claiming self-defense.

Kotowski, according to Police Lieut. James Burke, said he shot to death Frank Smurlo and William Sierra in Sierra's beer flat last Sunday, after the two had carried him up the stairs and attempted to force him to take a drink. Previously, while passing the place, Sierra invited him to drink, but he refused.

Smurlo, Kotowski said, pointed a pistol which the young man wrested from his grasp and fired killing him. Meanwhile, Sierra, Kotowski added, had started to fire with another weapon, but he too, was fatally wounded.

STEEL HEARING TAKES RECESS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The presentation of defense arguments in the injunction suit against the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation neared the close yesterday when Attorney Howard Burns finished his plea for a finding that the merger vote was legal.

Judge David Jenkins adjourned court over election day and when it reconvenes Wednesday morning Newton D. Baker, chief of defense counsel, will close the case for the merger side, leaving two plaintiff attorneys still to be heard.

Burns argued in support of the legality of four large classifications of proxies, representing 500,000 shares cast in favor of the merger and challenged by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests who brought the injunction suit.

About 70 corporations voted their holdings in favor of the merger. Burns told the court that the corporations had given proxies signed by their presidents entirely in accord with law. The plaintiffs claim that the action of the corporations was not specific enough to be legal.

POSSE HUNTING LOST AUTHOR

CARMEL, Cal., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—A mounted posse, including a number of noted artists and writers, was searching the trackless Big Sur country, south of Carmel, for Lee Sage, famous "reformed" cattle rustler and author, known locally as "Snap" Nelson.

After riding one of his six cow ponies into the midst of a Hallowe'en party being given by Herbert Heron, Carmel's poet-mayor, Sage vanished into the hills, carrying away a valuable hand-carved sign belonging to the mayor.

Responding to an appeal from Sage's wife, Mrs. Mary Lee Nelson, Mayor Heron announced today that all would be forgiven if his sign could be recovered.

Mrs. Sage declared:

"He's a bad boy and should have a spanking, but he should be back by now, and I'm getting worried. I will lead the posse myself in looking for him."

DECLINE NOTED IN RUM DEATHS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Both a numerical and a proportional decline in deaths from alcohol here were said by the Census Bureau to have occurred in the United States during 1929 as compared with 1928.

The total number of deaths from alcoholism in 1929 was given as 4,239, or a death rate from that cause of 3.7 per 100,000 of population, while in 1928 the total was 4,627, or a rate of 4.1.

The figures apply only to that portion of the continental area which officially registers births and deaths. This registration area now comprises 46 states, nine cities in non-registration states, and the District of Columbia, in which it is estimated that 95 per cent of the total population of the country now reside.

BANDITS BIND FATHER, BOY, ROB STORE

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

For 30 years Charlie Fahl, the Bloomfield Dutchman, has been a waiter. If all the people who have had their dinners served by Charlie were laid end to end in a voting booth, somebody would have a tremendous majority.

William Pfarr

All those 30 years Charlie has been a waiter for Harry Kramer. His first waiting place was a tavern whose name revives pleasant memories to old-time Pittsburghers — the Atlantic Gardens in Diamond street.

When Charlie reached the thirtieth anniversary, a few days ago, his boss, Mr. Kramer, gave him a wristwatch and a ring. Among Charlie's other possessions are innumerable joke books of the Joe Miller variety. For your modern flippant wisecracks Charlie has no time; he still prefers the one about the father who said to the son who had splashed black paint over the front door, "Never darken my door again." Biet!

Unwittingly Luke Barnett made himself look like a real football expert the night before the Pitt-Notre Dame game. Luke strolled through the William Penn lobby all night posing as Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame coach, and confidently and confidentially told eager ears to bet that the Irish would score a half-dozen or more touchdowns against Pitt.

Now, the political season is the time to recall Boies Penrose's answer to his political friends who were advising him that it would be good politics for him to marry. "If," promised the master politician, "the Republican party will pick the woman, I'll marry her."

We feel like a Boy Scout today. We feel that, after all, our life has not been wasted and we can enjoy our reclining years in comfort and satisfaction. A little girl has just told us that the last paper she handed in to her teacher was marked 100—which is perfect. The little girl wrote a piece about a small boy who refused to go to bed until he had telephoned his mother, who was some distance away at the moment, merely to say good night. This story was first written here, where the little girl saw it. The little girl offered us 50 of the 100.

Howard Cassidy, attorney and newspaperman, had trouble with his breakfast a few breakfasts ago. The waitress brough him white bread toasted, instead of wheat bread toasted, and it was unbuttered, too. Also he couldn't find the cream for his coffee. He was becoming fairly indignant, in his best courtroom manner, when the waitress interrupted him and explained very winningly that she was not the regular breakfast waitress, that usually she served only lunch and dinner. This left Cassidy so dumbfounded that he was unable to make a proper retort, and the lady walked away.

Add Similes: As farfetched as a simile.

We know a short story which 9 out of 10 persons will doubt. Two men who are good friends are also victims of stomach trouble. They usually are hit by the ailment at the same time. One insists each time on going to a doctor and obtaining the proper prescription. The other doesn't, but invariably he uses his friend's medicine and invariably he recovers a few days sooner.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 4.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. Coolidge administered last rites for his alma mater, the Republican party. To offset him I have been asked to give a word of cheer to the party of Jefferson, Raskob, Heflin and Borah. Mr. Coolidge and I are both non-combatants. We are watching the battle entrenched behind our typewriters. Our hearts are not in our advice, for no matter which one loses, we will be working. My advice is keep the Republican in power, otherwise you will add to the unemployment, for if you throw him out there is nothing else he can do, while a Democrat must be able to make a living out of office, otherwise he would not be living.

STATE REFUSED O. K., WOMAN CHARGES

Township Commissioners Told $225,000 Edifice Of Faulty Construction

Charges that Mt. Lebanon's new $225,000 municipal building was of faulty construction and that the State Department of Labor and Industry had refused to pass upon the structure, were made at a meeting of the township commissioners last night.

Mrs. Agnes R. Joyce informed the commissioners that she had been refused permission to hold a political meeting in the building because it was declared "unfit for public assemblages." Mrs. Joyce said the state department, through James Norton, a local inspector, had refused to pass upon the new building.

EXPLAINS REFUSAL

Mr. Norton today said:

"I refused a permit to use the building for a political meeting on the grounds that that building was not erected for public assemblages. It was erected to house municipal departments, a council chamber for the commissioners' meetings and a garage. A room which can be used for public assemblages, must have a certain amount of exits, it must be of certain width and must have other specifications. The Mt. Lebanon Municipal Building was not built for a large crowd."

Township Manager George J. Irwin said:

"Across the street from the municipal building is an up-to-date modern school building containing an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500. Any township citizen can have access to that building at any time, for any cause. Would the City of Pittsburgh allow a public meeting to be held in its council chamber?"

INSPECTOR REMOVED

William Rowswell, township plumbing inspector, was removed from office last night on a motion presented by Commissioner L. C. Clark. The township manager was authorized to employ a registered plumber to inspect work being done, paying him hourly for the time requireqd.

PASTOR'S BODY FOUND IN FIELD

The body of the Rev. Henry N. Cameron, 65, of 2 Forbes Terrace, Squirrel Hill, pastor of the Oakland Methodist Church and director of the Wesley Foundation, was found last night a mile from the farm house of A. P. Glass, in Robinson Township, near Oakdale, after a posse had searched for the aged minister for more than an hour.

He was assigned to the Oakland church at the recent Methodist Conference. He was formerly pastor of the First Methodist Church of Carnegie.

The Rev. Mr. Cameron had started hunting and his body was found in a field with his shotgun by his side. An examination by Dr. T. I. Cottom revealed that death was due to natural causes, Carnegie police said.

Carnegie police were notified that the minister was missing when members of the Glass family became alarmed when he failed to return to his automobile, which had been parked near the farmhouse. The body was found by Leonard Glass, Fred Bremm and Constable Harvey Keisling, of Collier Township, police said.

SCHOOL BOARD'S BOOKS SHOW $115,000 PROFIT IN 10 YEARS

BONDS BOUGHT DECADE AGO ARE SOLD

Deals Started in War Days With Liberty Loans Net $30,937; Review Needs

A profit of $115,203.28 has been made by the Pittsburgh Board of Education through a series of transactions during the last 10 years, Ira G. Flocken, the board's chief accountant, stated in a detailed report made to the board last night.

The board met to begin work on the 1931 budget. An investment in Liberty bonds started a series of transactions 10 years ago which brought the profits for the board.

The bonds, which had been purchased a decade ago, were sold recently for $930,937.50, realizing a premium of $30,937.50. The bonds had been bought for the board's sinking and pension funds. Numerous items in the budget estimates were approved tentatively, but action was held up until Friday on a setup for an additional teacher of "sight conservation."

Dr. Benjamin G. Graham, superintendent of schools, was authorized to make a special study and report on the proposed employment of 10 visiting teachers. Their duties would be highly specialized, and one of their tasks would be to assist handicapped pupils. Marcus Aaron, president of the board, said that in spite of increased costs of school supplies and other necessities and the growth of the school system, with careful management it would be posible to keep the school tax millage the same as at present.

Among the latter was a suit against the Westinghouse Aerie, No. 693, Fraternal Order of Eagles, East Pittsburgh.

Camera Question Box

TODAY'S QUESTION: A New York hospital plans to offer a year's medical attention to any person who will subscribe $25. What do you think of the offer as a health insurance plan?

JOHN MEREDITH, Oakland, student, Pitt. This is a good plan. I believe. It offers everyone a protection against diseases or sickness of any kind. I think it would prove a satisfactory plan.

Mr. Meredith.

MISS MARTHA STROHM, student, Pitt. I think this is a worthy plan. The fee which is, indeed, reasonable would not only enable the hospital to accomplish more good, but would be beneficial to the individual as well.

Miss Strohm.

MISS RUTH CLEMENT, Verona, student, Pitt. To me, this sounds like a good proposition. It is somewhat like a two week's lunch ticket—if you run out of money, you are still insured the attention due you by virtue of the contract.

Miss Clement.

PETER MAXIMUK, Oakland, student, Pitt. This plan would more or less, protection against accidents. I think it a good idea and a splendid investment as a health insurance.

Mr. Maximuk.

MISS ATHENE WESSEL, Squirrel Hill, student, Pitt. Such an arrangement would save the working man or woman many a worry as to a probable illness. It would be a life saver to the poor man who might be forced to contract a bill many times greater.

Miss Wessel.

GEORGE S. McGILL, Homestead, student, Pitt. I believe the idea behind these plans is a very good one. Such an arrangement would aid the hospital, put it on a firm financial basis. This plan would also make hospital bills more reasonable for the individual.

Mr. McGill.

Cubism Declared Symbol Of Modern Spirit

By PENELOPE REDD.

The merry-go-round of lectures on the international exhibition at the Carnegie Institute with every one grasping for the brass ring that is the free ride to culture was merrily resumed again in Leo Katz's lecture on "Living Art" at Carnegie Music Hall last night.

Penelope Redd

Mr. Katz stating candidly, "I am not the person who comes here to entertain you," proceeded to be both erudite and amusing simultaneously.

Posing various questions such as: "Is modern art doing for us what Greek art did for the Greeks? What are the symptoms of a new period? What are the changes that indicate the breaking down of an old period?" Leo Katz winged his way into a dramatically presented exposition. He used history, science and philosophy to exemplify aesthetic change.

Weaving in and out with proof from world famous, monumental art, Mr. Katz proved visually that every classical period of art has been preceded by cubism. In Egypt, Greece, China and European Mediaeval art, the geometric and impersonal was the "a, b, c" of new found culture. Gradually the elements of construction were lost in the dissolving forms and the increased emotion of impression and impressionism.

Leo Katz's entire historic-aesthetic preamble was the preparation for his dithyrambic acclain of Picasso.

"No individual in the history of art has such a capacity for experimentation as Picasso," declared Katz. "He is a laboratory worker who tried to produce new words for a new language. Cubism is the universal expression of the spirit of our time."

For those who are not familiar with the splendid portraits painted by Leo Katz, it may be a surprise to announce that his work is absolutely classic with no eccentricity whatsoever. His line is as pure as Holbein and his color delightful. However, Katz's painting is based upon a thorough knowledge of the geometric solids lurking beneath patrician contours. His admiration for the modern never disturbs the calm beauty of his own style.

STIMSON SIFTS JEWS' PLAINT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Secretary Stimson, pressed by an outpouring of appeals for action from Jewish leaders in the United States, is giving active consideration to the Palestine problem.

The secretary declined, until he had the full facts before him, to make any public statement on the situation which resulted from the restriction on further Jewish immigration into Palestine, imposed by the British government—holder of a League of Nations mandate over the territory.

Immediately upon the arrival by diplomatic pouch from London of a mass of official documents relating to the new British declaration of policy, the Secretary began a study of the problem.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—"The Black Paper" was the name given in a speech last night by Chief Rabbi J. H. Hertz to the recent government White Paper which contained the British statement of policy regarding Palestine.

"This is the first distinctly hostile act in English history against Jews and Judaism for the last 700 years," Rabbi Hertz said. "'The Black Paper' is a hostile act against 17,00,000 Jews throughout the world. It stabs every Jew to the heart."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk At Stone Wedding

Everyone in the social world, or at least a representative of every prominent family, was at the notable wedding yesterday afternoon in the Sixth Presbyterian Church of Marian Stone, daughter of the Stephen Stones, of Forbes street, and Edward Purcell Mellon II, son of the Thomas Alexander Mellons, of North Negley avenue. So many society folks were there that standing room in the side aisles was sought by some of the debutantes of the season and their elders.

But before we talk about who was at the wedding, I want to discuss the ceremony at which the Rev. Henry H. Forsyth officiated, assisted by the Rev. Hugh Thomson Kerr. Bamboos, crotons and cibotium fern with white chrysanthemums in stone vases were placed on either side of the prie-dieu and seven-branched candelabra decorated the church.

Bride Is Lovely

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was strikingly lovely in a white satin gown, fashioned on princess lines with marked fullness below the hipline and with the long train covered with a veil of tulle. The veil cascaded from an exquisite cap of rose point lace, arranged about the face like a coronet. Clusters of orange blossoms were caught in the cap and in the train of the veil. Rose point lace, worn by the bride's mother at her wedding, outlined the neck of the gown and the wrists of the long-tight-fitting sleeves. And her flowers were white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Soft turquoise blue satin, gored at the hipline and flared below, ending in brief trains, was worn by all the bride's attendants. The gowns had sashes of cloth of silver, lined with the satin, and with them the attendants wore hats of French felt in the same shade, with draped double brims turned up in front. Their slippers were of turquoise blue satin, with silver heels. And they carried sheaves of Ascension lilies.

Mrs. C. Chester Bailey was her sister's matron of honor, and Louise Reed was maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Mrs. Sidney A. Stewart and Mrs. J. Shirley Austin, both sisters of the bride, and Mrs. John B. F. Sellers and Helen S. Mellon, both sisters of the bridegroom, and Jane Allderdice and Kathleen Curtis, of New York.

Bridal Party

John A. B. Simpson, of New York, was best man, and John B. F. Sellers, Sydney A. Stewart, J. Shirley Austin, C. Chester Bailey, Stephen Stone, Jr., the bride's brother; William Larimer Mellon, Jr., Alan Evans, Samuel Jones and McCook Reed were ushers.

A reception for 500 guests in the Stone home followed the ceremony with the parents of the bride and the bridegroom receiving with them. The bride's mother wore rhododendron red crepe with a felt hat to match, and the mother of the bridegroom chose black velvet; both had corsages of gardenias.

Covers were placed for 44 at the bride's table, arranged in U-shape, with white chrysanthemums and crystal flowers and hothouse grapes decorating the scene, lighted by white tapers in silver candelabra.

After January 1 the young Mellons will be at home in Pittsburgh following a wedding trip.

Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, was unable to attend his grandnephew's wedding, but the Richard Beatty Mellons, Richard King Mellon and the Alan Magee Scaifes were there. Mrs. Mellon wore a black velvet gown, trimmed in ermine, with a jacket to match, and a black satin hat. Mrs. Scaife, Mrs. Mellon's daughter, chose a black crepe gown with a touch of white at the neckline, a broadtail coat, and a smart tricorne black hat. Mrs. James Verner Scaife was among the guests, too.

Many at Ceremony

Among the many others I saw there were Mrs. Harvey Childs II in a black ensemble, Jane Sloan in a green cloth coat with beige fox fur and a green felt hat, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Andrew E. Sloan, in a black ensemble; Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys in a mink coat, Miss Alice Grey in a black ensemble, and Frances Kier in a green ensemble, with her mother, Mrs. Frank J. Kier.

* * *

Varied Colors

Mrs. Mortimer Miller chose a black velvet gown with a hat to match, and a black broadtail coat. Frances Reed, Elizabeth Jenkins in a black ensemble, and Virginia Drake, a debutante of the season, were among the late arrivals.

Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, looking striking in black velvet and ermine with an ermine-trimmed black velvet hat, arrived wth her daughter, Mrs Gordon Fisher, Jr., who also wore a black and white ensemble, and Louise Evans, in a long, black crepe gown, a brief black velvet and ermine jacket, was there with her mother, Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, who wore a black ensemble.

Others I noticed in the crowded church were Virginia Furey, Mary Carroll, Mrs. George A. Kelly, III, Agnes Stewart, Laura Evans and her mother, Mrs. Howard Salisbury Evans.

Church Is Thronged

Mrs. John A. B. Simpson, of New York, wore brown chiffon velvet in the princess mode and a brown lace and velvet hat; Mary Elizabeth Floyd, a beige lapin coat with hat to match, Margaret Stewart, a smart beige cloth coat with a black broadtail collar arranged like an Ascot tie, and a smart black tricorne felt hat; Frances Forsyth, a grey squirrel coat over a black crepe dress; Joan Diehl, a black ensemble as did her mother, Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl.

The Roberdeau Green Annans were there, too, and Nancy Allderdice in a smart black cloth and astrakhan suit. Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, wearing grey satin with a hat to match, arrived with Mrs. Chambers McKibben, who chose a green velvet gown with hat to match, and the junior H. Allen Machesneys, home from their wedding trip, were there, too.

Also attending the wedding were Priscilla Hall, Lydia Irish, Mrs. George J. Bissell, Mrs. Lewis Hicks, Mrs. Wenman Hicks, Mrs. Lewis Hicks, Jr., Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III, Mollie Reiter, Phyllis and Louise Totten, Mrs. James McKay and Mrs. F. A. Leovy, in a black ensemble.

Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., in a black ensemble, was there with her granddaughter, Virginia Thaw, of New York, who wore a mink coat and green crepe dress with hat to match. Others I noted waiting for their cars after the ceremony were Mrs. John M. Phillips, the George Greer Cooldges, Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, Mrs. J. Willis Dalzell, the Bennett Rodgerses, Mrs. George M. Laughlin, Jr., Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe and her daughter, Eleanor, and Mrs. W. A. Seifert.

Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque starring in "Cherries Are Life" at the Nixon this week attracted a typical first-night audience last evening, and lovely Lillian Gish appeared at the Alvin in an artistic production of "Uncle Vanya." Very colorful was the array of gowns I saw, and in every imaginable material. One of the season's debs, Frances Kier, was there, wearing a gown of melon pink satin with a matching wrap of transparent velvet collared with white fox. Mrs. John W. Lawrence wore black georgette with the circular decolletage outlined with rhinestones.

Theaters Attract

Mrs. Gene O'Brien, wearing white lace, was chatting in the foyer with Mrs. C. M. Scott, who wore lame with a coat of ermine.

Louise Evans wore ruby-glo satin with a brief matching jacket, and a coat of black velvet with a white fox collar. Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby chose black georgette with a black velvet wrap having a collar of white fox, and she was with Mrs. Sidney Hammond, who wore hyacinth blue georgette. Mrs. Harvey Childs, III, wore black crepe with a coat of muskrat.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jones, III, were also among the audience, with Mrs. Jones in magnolia satin and a wrap of black velvet and white fox. I noticed the Gordon C. Kings in the foyer, with Mrs. King wearing coral pink crepe with a coat of black velvet having a scarf collar of ermine, and cuffs of the same fur.

Brilliant Costumes

Marjorie Kimball wore black crepe with smart touches of white, and a black and white hat, with a black caracul coat. Mrs. John Berdan, of Toledo, O., was with Marjorie. Mrs. William B. Wolf wore hunter's green crepe and Mrs. William B. Kelly chose gold and black lame with a matching wrap furred with fox. Virginia Goldsbury wore red and gold lame with a wrap of black velvet furred with muskrat, and Betty Scott chose black crepe with a black caracul coat having a cape collar. Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, chatting with friends in the foyer, wore a gown of wistaria crepe with a wrap of black velvet and lapin.

Rich Furs Enhance

Mary Franklin Robinson chose an interesting brown lace gown over which she wore a most unusual wrap, a mandarin coat of coral crepe, edged in ermine, with collar and cuffs of the same fur, and rich with intricate embroidery. She was chatting with Mrs. William Standish, who looked striking in an Empire period gown of gardenia crepe, having a sash of burnt orange velvet at the high waistline.

* * *

And I have more debutante news for today. Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan will give a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club on Saturday, December 6, for Elizabeth Childs, debutante daughter of Mrs. Clinton L. Childs, of Sewickley.

WORKERS SAY THAT MID-AFTERNOON IS THEIR ZERO HOUR

Many Have Discovered That Food With Sugar Content Renews Vigor

Rare indeed is the business that does not call for more speed from mid-afternoon on. Stenographers, clerks and salespeople will testify to this. Yet vitality is invariably low at this important period.

Scientific tests have proved that eating something between three and four o'clock will refresh the system almost as much as complete rest. The best food to eat is one rich in refined sugar such as candy, cookies, ice cream or a sweet beverage. The refined sugar not only supplies quick nourishment but is easily digested.

In overcoming fatigue by this method, the system is able to resist those common colds which are often "caught" on the way home. What's more, a refreshed body is much more efficient during the busy afternoon hours than one that is "tired out."

With no loss of time and practically no expense, sweet foods can be bought for a mid-afternoon snack. Sugar dissolved in a glass of water will "pick one up." This drink is known as the "athlete's cocktail." Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

FINAL NIGHT GAME OF LOCAL SEASON

AFTER ITS LONGEST and most successful run here, night collegiate football in Pittsburgh will be wound up for the year next Friday, when Elmer Layden's fast-stepping Dukes meet the University of North Dakota giants under the floodlights at Forbes Field. All of the Bluffites' games thus far—five at home and one in Chicago—have been played at night, but the three contests remaining on the schedule after Friday's number will be decided in daylight. Geneva is to be met at Beaver Falls the afternoon of Saturday, November 15, West Virginia Wesleyan here the afternoon of Saturday, November 22, and Providence College here on Thanksgiving Day morning.

Gordon Dablon

Judging from the size of the Westerners, the Dukes will have their work cut out for them in their final nocturnal engagement. The North Dakota gridders are called the Flickertails, but somebody must have been aiming at opposites when the Grand Forks giants were named for the harmless little kickertail, or the title must have been selected before that huge line was anticipated. When the regular lineup is on the field the average weight of the forwards is close to 200 pounds.

THERE IS A wealth of heavy guard material, in particular. North Dakota has an even half dozen of these big forwards who are capable of starting in any game, not the least being Gordon Dablon, weighing 220 pounds, and Carl Eckholm, scaling 230. A third man, who is as fast as he is heavy, is Bill Mjondalen, veteran speed merchant from Hillsboro, N. D.

The Flickertails, who were defeated by Army at West Point last Saturday, 33 to 6, may be expected to show an unusual lot of fight in the game here in their eagerness to avoid returning home from their Eastern trip with two defeats marked up against them. They held one victory over another team of this part of the country, having beaten Davis and Elkins, 16 to 0, at Grand Forks on October 3.

[illegible] That's the unusual jump that [illegible] has achieved this fall and he hopes to make it permanent. He is an effete Easterner, hailing from New York who has made good way out West, where men are football players.

Carl Eckholm

Tergeson, the ex-megaphone master, has cavorted in front of football crowds for three years, coaxing cheers out of the fans for the luminaries on the field of play. Now he thinks he is entitled to a cheer or two himself, since he tossed away his big megaphone, pulled off his white flannels, and donned the moleskins.

HEREAFTER, RED WILL do his acrobatics on the white-lined sward, but probably much of his tumbling will not be voluntary. He is the midget of the Flickertail squad, and beside such mammoth linemen as Dablon, Eckholm Mjondalen and the 210-pound Milton Wick, he looks like a member of the famous Singer troupe. The young New Yorker makes up in nerve and speed what he lacks in size and weight, and he is being given plenty of opportunity by Coach Jack West. The tiny carrot-topped athlete is a splendid gymanast, but in his first three years at North Dakota he never went out for the gridiron sport.

LAST SPRING TERGENSON got the football idea, and when he started to work out with the big boys of the rugged sport he took to the thing like a duckling to water. He barks out his signals like he used to rattle off Flickertail cheers; exhorts his teammates as he did the fans in the stands, and tackles like a flaming meteor, piling in with all the viciousness of a 200-pound fullback.

Maybe Red is not as effective as a 200-pounder in that detail of football play, but like the well-known band that played so poorly, he has the spirit, at least. And anyhow, if the North Dakota coaches do not think up some new formations to aid the midget in baffling the opposition by Tom Thumb methods, Tergenson can always get his cheer leading job back again.

THE FAMOUS WHITNEY racing colors of Eton blue and brown will not be lost to the turf. Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney, son of the late Harry Payne Whitney, has decided to carry on with his father's stable.

Cornelius V. Whitney

The Jockey Club has granted the application of the younger Whitney for permission to continue racing under the colors of his father and grandfather, an application which he says was made in accordance with his father's expressed wishes, so the noted stable will still be a prominent fixture on American tracks.

THE RACING OF Whitney horses will thus be carried on into the third generation. The stable was established more than 50 years ago by the grandfather of young Cornelius, the late William Collins Whitney, who was Secretary of the Navy under President Grover Cleveland. The horses now in training number 47, and there are two big breeding farms near Lexington, Ky., and Brookdale, N. J. The horses entered in the few remaining stakes of the season will fulfill their obligations, which means that Equipoise, one of the best of the 2-year-old division, will be a starter in the $50,000 Pimlico Futurity to be run tomorrow.

YOU'D NATURALLY PICK the weakest clubs in the major baseball leagues to be the softest picking for a star pitcher, but that doesn't apply to the Phillies and Dazzy Vance. Thomas Holmes has compiled some dope showing that, with the single exception of the Cardinals, the Phils have given Vance more trouble than any other club in the National circuit.

Vance, who has won 164 and lost 105 games since he joined the Robins in 1922, has a margin on every club except the Cards, who have beaten him 22 times while losing to him only 18 times, but his edge on the Phils is a slight one, 15 victories over the Quakers against 14 defeats. Against the Braves he has won 27 and lost 9; against the Pirates, won 25 and lost 10; against the Cubs, won 29 and lost 14; against the Giants, won 26 and lost 17, and against the Reds, won 24 and lost 19.

British Horses Here For Steeplechase

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Seeking honors in the first Grasslands International Steeplechase to be run December 6 at Gallatin, Tenn., three British horses and the owners of two of them arrived here yesterday.

Lieut. W. L. Newell and Lieut. E. B. Skey, owners of St. Roy and Manambar, respectively, will be astride their own horses over the grueling Grasslands Downs course. Kilbairn, the third of the jumpers, is owned by Mrs. G. Alexander Brown, of England, and will be ridden by Eric W. L. Atterbury, one of the designers of the recently constructed Tennessee course.

COLUMBIA CRIPPLED

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Due to injuries sustained in grinding out a 19-to-7 victory over Cornell last Saturday, Columbia will be forced to send practically a second-string team against Colgate and Brown, her next two opponents, Coach Lou Little has revealed. He said that seven regulars, Hewitt, Stanczyk, McDuffee, Sherwood, Van Voorhees, Grenda and Bisero probably would be unable to play until the Thanksgiving Day game with Syracuse.

THREE MORE ICEMEN SIGNED

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Roy D. Schooley's list of Yellow Jacket skaters who have signed on the dotted line was increased from eight to 11 late yesterday when Gerald Green, defense man, and Alvin Moore and Charles LaRoche, left and right wing, respectively, accepted Pitt Hockey Club contracts.

The local International Leaguers, who have been working out in the Arena Gardens, in Toronto, for the last six days, will arrive here tomorrow morning, and drills will be staged at Duquesne Garden tomorrow afternoon and evening. The Pittsburgh puckmen were ready to advance on their new home early last week, but were detained by United States immigration officials. Schooley, president of the Fort Pitt Club, dispatched a bond to Buffalo yesterday, and the safe passage of the Jackets from the Dominion to the States tomorrow is assured.

FAMOUS FAMILY

Green is the most renowned of the three stalwarts who came into the Jacket fold yesterday. He is a brother of Red and Shorty Green, two of the most renowned performers ever to don skates, and if he maintains the Green's traditional high standard of play the local club will boast one of the best puckmen in all icedom.

Green is 24 years of age, weighs 165 pounds, stands five feet 11 inches and plays left defense. He concluded his career as an amateur with the Sudbury Wolves in 1926-27, and broke into the pro sport with the Hamilton Tigers in 1927-28. He played with the Toronto Millionaires in 1928-29 and wore Niagara Falls livery in 1929-30.

Moore, a six-footer, weighs 176 pounds and is 21 years of age. He was at left wing for the Owen Sound Greys when they won the Dominion amateur title in 1926-27. He was with the London, Ontario, pro club in the 1927-28-29 races, and performed for Guelph, in the Canadian Pro League, last season.

PLAYED FOR QUEBEC

Right Wing LaRoche is something of a veteran in that he is 28 years of age and has been in pro hockey since 1926. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall and tips the beam at 169 pounds. He first won fame with the Rockland, Esparenola amateurs, and played as a pro for Quebec in 1926, 1927 and 1928. He was with Newark in the 1928-29 season, and played for Cleveland's International League champions last season.

Goalie Bud Fisher, Defense Men Mansell Moore and Clifford McBride, Wingmen Cameron Proudlock, M. L. Gregg and Edward Ouellette and Centers William Fields and Wilfred McLeod signed Jacket contracts Friday, and Schooley expects to have five more performers under legal lock and key before the opening game, with London here a week from Thursday.

That the Jackets are making rapid strides in their conditioning work in Toronto is indicated by the following story printed in the last Saturday issue of the Toronto Globe:

"Under the direction of Coach Charles Reid, 15 players who are trying out for places on the Pittsburgh team of the International League are holding daily workouts at the Arena Gardens until they are notified by the United States Board of Immigration that they can cross the border.

"There are some likely performers on the Pittsburgh roster, and the majority of the players are strong, husky-looking youths, who give every promise of developing into good National Hockey League mate-

Tunney Wins First Round of Mara Battle

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The legal bout between Gene Tunney and Tim Mara, sports promoter, stood adjourned until noon tomorrow, with Mara the loser of the first round.

Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hatting adjourned the trial to allow the court to decide upon a motion to dismiss the $50,000 breach of contract suit against the retired heavyweight champion. Mara suffered a setback earlier in the day when counsel for Billy Gibson, co-defendant with Tunney, and formerly his manager, won a dismissal of the complaint against Gibson on the ground of "failure to prove" any liability on Gibson's part.

It was disclosed that Tunney's gross income since September, 1926, when he won the championship from Jack Dempsey, aggregated $1,742,282.04. Mara claims Tunney agreed to pay him 25 per cent. of this amount, or $435,570.51, in addition to 10 per cent of what the fighter made in the first Dempsey bout. Ten per cent of Tunney's purse in that fight would be $20,000.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A 10,000 GRAM WEIGHT WILL NOT BALANCE TWO 500-GRAM WEIGHTS—At the Case School or Applied Science in Cleveland is a balance so sensitive that it will detect one part in a million. If the two weights are placed side by side in the one pan the balance will be perfect. But if the weights are placed on top of the other the scale will not balance. This is due to the fact the force of gravity varies with the distance away from the center of the earth and the balance is sufficiently sensitive to detect this variance in the pull of gravity.

DUKE ELEVEN WORKS HARD

Dummy drills with North Dakota University plays are the program today on the Duquesne University campus gridiron where Elmer Layden and Joe Bach, Duke mentors, are trying to impress their charges with the fact that they have a big football game on their hands for Friday night. The huge Flickertails from Grand Forks, N. D., have arrived on the Wash-Jeff campus after losing to the Army on the plains above the Hudson at West Point and they are ready to tackle the Dukes in a business-like manner.

Layden and Bach, who were present at the Army-North Dakota tussle, both declare that the Dukes are in for a drubbing if for no other reason than that the Flickertails have two of the best backs to play here this season in Capt. Glenn Jarrett and the startling Mr. Shave, who is far from a little shaver no matter what his old man's name may have been. Both of these boys can go once they get started and the Dakota line usually sees that they get started.

Four fullbacks got their regular dose of hard work yesterday when Joe McCarthy, the most recent recruit to the line-plunging duties of injured Kass Kovalcheck led the quartet on the field. Joe can make history repeat itself this season if he should prove a sensation at quarter. It was thus that Elmer Layden gained immortality after having been shifted from a halfback to a fullback and the fourth member of the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame.

Big Ben Pawlina, Val Trambley and Joe Sepsi are the other members of Layden's blues quartet who daily sing the lament for Kass Kovalcheck. But Kass is out of the football game for this season, and being a senior, has played his last game for the Dukes. It looks like a tough wind-up for the Red and Blue since Jim O'Donnell is through at tackle and Sammy Pratt at end, both having severe hurts.

Cadets, Middies May Play in Charity Tilt

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—An attempt to repair the gridiron riot between the Army and Naval academies, in the interest of relief for the unemployed, has been initiated by George F. Getz, chairman of the Illinois Unemployment Commission.

Getz has wired Congressman Fred Britton to use his influence toward bringing about a post-season football game between the institutions for Soldier Field. Receipts would be approximately $750,000.

BIG AUTO RACE DRAWS STARS

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—Harry J. Kinsey, of Johnstown; Frank Lockinger, of McKees Rocks, and Glenn Rupert, of Strattonville, Pa., formerly of Akron, O., are three Western Pennsylvania drivers to enter the 100-mile automobile race to be staged at Junction Park, the big amusement center near this city, next Tuesday—Armistice Day—afternoon, commencing at 2:30 o'clock.

This trio is included among the Western Pennsylvania kingpins of speed who will meet the invaders from Ohio and other states. There is a likelihood that Lockinger will have another major league driver as his relief pilot.

Activities on preparing the course will be started Friday night in order that the track may be turned over to the pilots for preliminary practice no later than Monday night.

SCHOOL GRIDDER DIES

RIGGS HANDICAP CARDED TODAY

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A purse of $25,000 dangled in front of 13 of the turf's best 3-year-olds as they prepared to answer the bugle call in the Riggs Handicap—the feature of the opening of the historic Pimlico track here today.

Despite the top weight of 123 pounds, Willam Ziegler, Jr.'s Spinach is expected to go to the post the favorite. The Ziegler ace will have no easy time, however, if he leads the band over the mile and a half Hilltop course.

A. C. Bostwick's Yarn will carry only two pounds less, but he is rated as a colt that can run all day and should furnish Spinach a stiff argument. The two high-weights of the party have met twice before with honors all even. Yarn defeated Spinach in the Jockey Gold Cup, won by Gallant Fox, while the Ziegler colt turned the tables in the Latonia championship two weeks ago.

Included in the remainder of the field are such high class routers as G. W. Foreman's Ned O, W. R. Coe's Conclave, the Audley Farms' Woodcraft and Marshall Field's Escuthcheon.

Kesner Knocks Out Tomosky in Sixth

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Reds Barry, of Washington, was given every round here last night in his eight-round bout with Eddie Baker, of Cumberland. Barry weighed in at 168 pounds and Baker 166.

Another knockout was registered in the card. Joe Brode, of Frostburg, weighing 171 pounds, disposed of Firpo Sharron, of Hagerstown, in the opening round.

BALLIET RITES TONIGHT

Funeral services for Frank Balliet, aged 60, secretary of the Pittsburgh baseball club in the '90s, and a prominent figure for years in local diamond circles, who died last Sunday, will be held at his home in McClure avenue, North Side, this evening. Ned Hanlon, Al Buckenberger and Connie Mack managed the Pirates during the time Balliet was secretary. Interment will take place tomorrow in Butler.

Army, Illinois Dine Together After Game

WEST POINT, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The Army and Illinois football teams will take dinner together in New York after their game Saturday and then attend a musical show together, Maj. Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at West Point, has announced. This is the return of an affair given in honor of the Cadets at Champaign last year, when a dance was held after the dinner.

KANSAS TO QUIT CONFERENCE

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—The University of Kansas has definitely decided to withdraw from the Big Six Conference, effective with the close of the 1931 basketball season.

This action followed a meeting of the athletic directors of the conference here, in which it was admitted that "as the situation now stands, Kansas will not be included in schedules arranged for all sports competition after the basketball season is completed."

This means that Kansas must look to other sources to fill its sports schedules next year.

By its action, the Big Six repeated its demand for Kansas to clean up the alleged practice of proselyting and recruiting or get out.

Kansas, by its decision, makes it known that it is willing to get out of the Conference.

As the situation now stands, Kansas will not be permitted to compete in track, baseball, tennis, and golf in the Big Six this spring, and must fill five dates on the football program for next fall.

Dr. F. C. Allen, athletic head of the University of Kansas, did not attend the meeting. All the other schools in the Conference were represented by their athletics chiefs.

TECH LIKELY TO FIND PITT ACE TOUGH

By JESS CARVER.

Carnegie Tech had better look sharp for Mr. Bulldog Reider as it plays Pitt in the Stadium here Saturday afternoon. It had better look sharp and keep right on looking, for if there is a halfback on the Pitt squad that is a threat, Mr. Bulldog is the boy.

Reider got his first big-time chance against Notre Dame, and, for all the Panthers were taking a kicking around, Bulldog came through. Then last week, at Nebraska, he was the outstanding ball player in the game. His running was both hard and fast, and his defensive work quite up to snuff.

GREAT PLAYER

Reider is just the sort of chap likely to make national rating in one ball game. He has a world of confidence; in fact, for a while he was a bit too cocky. He is the sort of a footballer who thinks he is the best player on the field, and proceeds to prove it to the best of his ability.

Having been beaten by Notre Dame and New York U., the Tartans are going to be tough hombres this week. Pitt might as well have taken one on the lug at Nebraska, so ragged was the work of the Panthers, both on the attack and defense. If ever a team won a moral victory, Nebraska won one in tieing the Easterners, and had Pitt's game been half way up to what it should be, the game would have been won by three touchdowns.

As a result, the game this week is going to be a honey. I think you may depend on that. Pitt hasn't clicked once this year, and Tech has only gone along on all cylinders once, against Georgia Tech. Both have at least one good ball game waiting, and if they produce this week—look out below.

WILLIAMS IN SLUMP

To return to Reider. He has shown himself to be a threat, both as a ball-toter and a pass receiver and against Carnegie, I am of the opinion that Sutherland will build no little portion of the attack around him. Josh Williams is in a slump; he hasn't gone well this year. Heller was just a so-so ball player last week. He stumbled once or twice when he had an opportunity to get away and played generally as though he was not aware the ball game had started.

Reider looks to be the best bet in the Pitt backfield, being the equal of Baker as an offensive threat and just about as good on the defense. Clark and Hood, the fullbacks, will gain a lot of yardage against any team, but both are

LA BARBA BEATS CHOCOLATE

By HYPE IGOE,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Fidel La Barba's dressing room was a bedlam. I've been in many a victorious whirlpool following an unexpected victory, but never was there such tall goings on as was on tap in little Fidel's dressing quarters at the Garden last night after he returned from a well-earned victory over Kid Chocolate.

He was so happy that he laughed and cried by turns.

When I say cried, I mean the tears were welling into his eyes and rippling down his cheeks, even as he laughed. It was a strange mixture of joy and enthusiasm. And they liked to slap the back out of the poor kid.

It is something to hang a defeat on the Keed's door, and Fidel certainly nailed one there last night.

"You fooled me—you fooled a lot of people, especially those who bet 4 to 1 against you at the last minute, Fidel," I said as a starter. "Was I 4 to 1—you don't mean it," said La Barba, excitedly, more agitated indeed, than he had been all evening.

"Golly, I'm so glad about that 4 to 1 for my friends' sake," said the little fellow.

"They can thank Mr. Blake, my manager and second. He coached me in the corner to a T. He gave orders, different orders, for every round and everything he ordered, I did.

IGNORES RALLIES

"For one thing, he told me not to pay the least attention to Chocolate's rallies he always

WILLIE DAVIES BOWS TO ARCHIE BELL

SETBACK ENDS LONG WINNING STREAK HERE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A near-capacity crowd in Motor Square Garden last night saw Willie Davies, of Charleroi, suffer his first defeat in three years in Pittsburgh when he bowed in the 10-round main bout to Archie Bell, of Brooklyn, a top-ranking bantamweight, and earlier conqueror of Jackie Rodgers in the same ring.

The last time Davies dropped a decision in these parts prior to last night was back in 1927, when Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, phantom-like present flyweight champion, was awarded the duke over him at the Garden, although Willie really won the fight.

The defeat by Bell last night came just one day less than a year after Willie's elimination from the New York flyweight tournament by Black Bill, the Cuban Negro, whom he has beaten twice since in bouts at the Meyers Bowl.

FOE TOO STRONG

Willie's debut as a bantamweight was anything but auspicious. He put up his usual pleasing battle, but he did not have the strength or punch to cope with the stalking, crowding, accurate and solid hitting Bell. The decision of the judges and the referee was unanimous and there was scarcely a dissenting voice in the arena, despite Davies' deserved popularity.

Scaling 118 pounds against his opponent's 119½, Davies really appeared to be many pounds lighter than his foe. The latter also was much more rugged and had no trouble forcing Willie before him and making him break ground continually.

The bout was a hot one all of the way, with the little fellows doing an amazing amount of slugging for clever boxers. This, of course, was not hard for the fans to take.

WILLIE OFF IN LEAD

Davies did well at the start, getting off in the lead and holding an edge until they passed the halfway mark, when his opponent's weight and strength and harder punching gradually exacted their toll and wore him down. The first round was evenly fought, with Bell's finish wiping out an early margin for Davies.

In the next two rounds, Davies continually outgeneraled Bell, making him miss repeatedly and messing and cuffing him about in the clinches to carry both rounds. Bell finally hit his stride in the fourth round, in the last half of which he put steam behind his blows and reopened old cuts about Davies' eyes and hurt Willie a few times. Davies once fell down and jumped up immediately and later sagged back into the ropes.

BELL FINISHES STRONG

Willie came back to carry the fifth round, in which he kept on the move and outscored Bell at least two to one, and managed to escape damaging blows. This was Willie's last winning round, however, for he slowed down under Bell's crowding and punching pace and won himself only an even break in the ninth round, in which he rallied to score many punches that evened up for Bell's heavier attack.

They wound up slugging it out in the tenth round and Davies went down momentarily from a right to the heart and was on the receiving end thereafter until the final bell.

While the fans hailed Bell's second victory in as many starts here, it was apparent that Davies had lost none of his friends in defeat, for he put up a great and generally appreciated battle against odds. He will whip more ranking bantamweights than will defeat him, but Bell is one of the fellows he is not apt to take into camp. For that matter, few of the bantams, or even featherweights, have been able to turn that trick.

WILSON LACES TRACEY

Jack Wilson, of the North Side, took the wind out of the sails of Jack Tracey, flashy Negro middleweight puncher, formerly of Louisville, now of Pittsburgh, when he handed the Southerner a good pasting in the eight-round semi-final, thereby making amends for a recent bad showing against one Jose Mendoza, of Youngstown, in the same ring.

Wilson first outgamed and then outpunched Tracey in a stirring fight. He carried every round, including the third, in which he took a count of nine from a right to the chin along the ropes while he was handing Tracey a royal lambasting. He continued the assault, mainly to the body, after getting up to erase whatever advantage the knockdown had given Tracey in the round. He floored Tracey for counts of nine in the fifth and seventh rounds and for five in the final round, the bell saving Tracey in the fifth and eighth. Tracey scaled 158 pounds against 156 for Wilson.

ANOTHER JOKE DECISION

Nordi Smith, Negro, of Newark, O., smacked Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, about in every round of the six-round second bout, only to see the officials split three ways in their verdict and arrive at a draw decision, the most ludicrous of many rendered at the local arenas. The crowd rightly booed the decision to the echo and then had to laugh it off. Smith, an unorthodox mittman, showed the most versatile left hand since Young Saylor's, and that's saying something, and also a roundhouse right that connected often. Judge Freddie Lux voted for Belmont, Judge Frank Brown for Smith and Referee Al Grayber cast his ballot for a draw. Belmont weighed 152 pounds and Smith 150½.

U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, 132, was beating Tiger Joe Clark, Negro southpaw, of the South Side, 136, so badly in the first bout that Referee Red Robinson halted it after 1 minute 47 seconds of the fifth round and awarded Carpentier a technical knockout victory.

SEATS ARE ELEVATED

Harry Klaas again did the announcing in soup and fish, and Tommy Grant and Norman Borland were the timers. The new elevated sections were in place and proved quite an improvement, converting the hall into a square-shaped indoor bowl.

GARDEN MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Motor Square Garden will stage its tenth anniversary boxing show next Monday night, featuring in the main bout Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, and Bucky Lawless, of Auburn, N. Y., who recently pleased the fans here in a bout with Buck McTiernan, in which he received the decision, although he did not win the fight.

Pirrone is one of the best of the younger welterweights and comes highly touted. He was matched with Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, at Cleveland, a little more than a week ago, but the bout fell through when it is alleged Fields ran out.

Lawless has met the best of them in the welterweight ranks and stands high up in the list of performers. A rattling good bout should result.

Between Rounds

The New York American, a Hearst newspaper, will stage its annual Christmas fund boxing show in Madison Square Garden on the night of December 12, and probably will have Jack Sharkey against Max Baer, of the Coast, in the main bout. Ralph Ficucello and Marty Fox, New York heavyweight rivals, will meet in a 10-round bout on the card, their third clash, each having won one.

A grueling battle is looked for when Tom Maleo, Soho's pounding body puncher, and Larry Madge, of Cleveland, meet in the 10-round main bout at the Moose Temple Thursday night. Madge is a dangerous, tricky socker, who in his most recent appearance defeated Jimmy Belmont in the Moose ring, while Maleo is the wearing-down type of fighter. The card has been completed for this show, with Billy Brent facing Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, in the semi-final, Marcus Noll and Johnny Greb, of West Virginia, in the second bout and Tom Anderson and Steve Senich in the opener.

The Al Sands A. C., of Uniontown, cradle of many amateur boxers, has entered a full team of contestants in the Western Pennsylvania amateur championship belt tournament, which gets under way in the Palisades ring, McKeesport, Thursday night.

Jimmy Dunn, of Cleveland, is the new manager of Mickey Duris, of Johnstown. Dunn is planning to move his entire stable of fighters here for the winter, the game being virtually at a standstill in Cleveland.

FRIEDMAN BEATS WINE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, won a 10-round clean-cut decision from Frankie Wine, of Montana, here last night. Friedman began peppering Wine with short rights and lefts to the face in the first round and never let up despite the fact that several of the Montana blacksmith's sledge hammer blows found their mark squarely.

makes at the start of every round. I was told to bob and not mix with him, but to tear after him when he had finished these flashes.

"Then I told him Chocolate was losing every round, trying to egg him on to fightin' harder. He admitted he was losing, but said he could do nothing. I told him if he won the final round he'd get the decision.

"'I'll win it if it kills me,'" he vowed. Well, he didn't win it, as you know.

"Mr. Blake showed me one flaw in Chocolate that I hadn't discovered. When he steps back, after feinting, he is all set and cocked for a right. If you bowl right into him with a left hook to the body, he forgets what he has stepped back for and your left rattles on his rib. You know how successful I was with that blow. It took all the fight out of Chocolate."

In Chocolate's dressing room, all was indigo.

NO GET START, KEED SAYS

"Me no get start," moaned the Keed. "Me no lift my harms. My harms heavy. My legs heavy. Me no lift harms or legs."

Then one of the Keed's handlers said that Chocolate had sidetracked dinner and supper on Sunday and breakfast Monday. He worried himself sick over the weight. He weighed 125½ Sunday, after working, and then came in at 123. That's the answer. He worried himself to defeat because he was afraid he'd lose $500 by not making 126.

The coast fighter took at least five rounds, Chocolate won three and two were even. Some thought LaBarba won six rounds. The decision was well received by a crowd of about 50,000. Total receipts were not announced, but the crowd was exceptional for an indoor fight.

ALLEGHENY, GREEN MEET

MEADVILLE, Pa., Nov. 4.—Still unbeaten after five starts, and still the only team in the Tri-State district able to boast an undefeated record, Allegheny College gridders approach their next test of the season with no more thoughts that the winning streak will be extended. The hurdle that lies immediately ahead is Dartmouth, outstanding team in the East today, and the contest is to be played at Hanover, N. H., Saturday.

The game will mark Allegheny's fourth annual visit to the home bailiwick of the Big Green. It will probably mark the last trip, too, for the Meadville Methodists were unable to accept the proffered date for the 1931 season.

Coach Maude Crum's Alligators came out of their clash with Grove City here Saturday practically unscathed, but with Geneva still to be met in a contest that will determine definitely the championship honors among the smaller schools of the Tri-State, the Allegheny mentor is figuring on taking no chances in the Dartmouth affair. As a result, it is unlikely that more than two or three of the regulars will start in action against the Green Indians. A top-heavy Dartmouth victory should be no surprise.

Allegheny defeated Grove City, 6-0, for the first time in six years, unusual defensive play by a line that was outweighed 12 pounds to the man being largely responsible.

VALLEY HEIGHTS AFTER OLSEN

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

H. G. (Swede) Olsen, professional last year at the Burke Glen Golf Club, has been offered the job as professional at the Valley Heights Country Club, succeeding Ben Loeffler, who so capably filled the role of professional and club manager, last year, it has been learned on good authority.

While Loeffler is a well-known figure in local golf, having begun some 20 years ago as a caddie at the Oakmont Country Club as most of the other members of his family—one of the outstanding golfing families of the district—did, Olsen is an up-and-coming youngster who tossed aside his amateur status only last year, having played most of his golf at Schenley Park. Olsen was well-known in prep school athletics as a football and track man for Bellefonte Academy and Schenley High School, and achieved something of success as a teacher last year. He is highly regarded by influential members of the board at Valley Heights.

It is rumored that Walter Mullins, also of Valley Heights, is to be offered the pro berth at the North Park county links.

DETROIT AFTER NEW FOE

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Balked at his efforts to promote a Thanksgiving Day charity football game between the University of Michigan, a Big Ten school, and the University of Detroit, Gov. Fred W. Green last night turned to Michigan State College as the opponent for the strong Detroit aggregation.

Michigan University officials refused to consider such a contest, because of Western Conference rules. The latter forbid more than eight games in one season, and Michigan already has that number scheduled.

Michigan officials voted, however, that "Michigan's share of the last football game of the season with Chicago University shall go to the unemployed."

Proceeds from the Michigan-Chicago tilt would give the charity fund more than $25,000. The gate receipts from the Michigan-Detroit game would have brought more than $300,000, according to estimates by the state's chief executive.

"It is inconceivable that the University of Michigan should refuse to play for such a worthy cause," the Governor declared. He refused to comment further.

Gov. Green has requested use of the Michigan Stadium at Ann Arbor for the Detroit-Michigan State game. He declared that he would appoint ticket-selling commissions, if necessary, to see that the stadium was filled to its capacity of 80,000 people. The ducats, he said, would sell for $5 apiece.

Michigan State has a powerful moleskin machine this year. Among its victims was Colgate, rated high in Eastern sporting circles.

DICK GOLDBERG QUITS AS BURNS COACH

DUNN, HEINZER TAKE OVER TUTORING

By TOM BIRKS.

Manager Jimmy Smith, of the Burns A. A., announced today that Al Dunn and C. Heinzer would act as coaches of the club for the rest of the season following the resignation of Dick Goldberg.

The showing of the Black and White in the games with Ambridge Mystics and the Majestic Radios found keen comment in the Aluminum town, and it seems that some friction was evident in the ranks of the club.

It was Dunn and Heinzer who primed the Burns club for the Olympic game at Parnassus, and the club played its greatest game of the season. Dunn is a great ball carrier and has a vast store of plays to impart to the boy. Heinzer, as captain, probably will coach the line, and, with real material to work with, Burns, now leading the race, should stay right up there.

Smith also has anounced the release of Uansa, Parkinson and Kramer, and has signed Stein, Taylor and Ford. Burns has completed its conference schedule at the Parnassus field, but will have a good attraction on Thursday evenig for the fans.

MAJESTICS SET

The only name added to the Majestic list was that of Ed Lemley, and that completes Art Rooney's roster. In the final list of players for the West View club, Paul Muzzio has released Haude, Oretz and Brockett, and has added the names of Erb, Volpe and Rhoades.

The only addition Ambridge made was the addition of Ertz, an end, and the dropping of Sheehan.

Fans are still talking of Jimmy Levy's brilliant run for the second touchdown in the Majestic-Burns game Sunday. The victory of the Majestics over the league leaders certainly put a punch in the race. West View, McKeesport, Burns and the Majestics all can win, but conservative critics feel the Olympics hold an edge.

The only game Iverson has away from home is at Ambridge. East Pittsburgh, West View and the Majestics have to travel to Rainbow Gardens. That means much, with the home following.

FINE OFFICIATING

Keen followers of the conference feel much of the success of the games, and the large attendance, is due to first-class officiating. Men like Freizel, Cavanaugh, Gannon, Robb, Mackey, Rebele, Dummer, Glock, Harrison, Snyder, Walsh, O'Connell and others are the equal of any officials in the country in the matter of interpretation of rules.

Inasmuch as Burns and McKeesport brought their conference game forward, only two games will be played in the loop Sunday. East Pittsburgh meets the Majestics and West View hooks up with Ambridge.

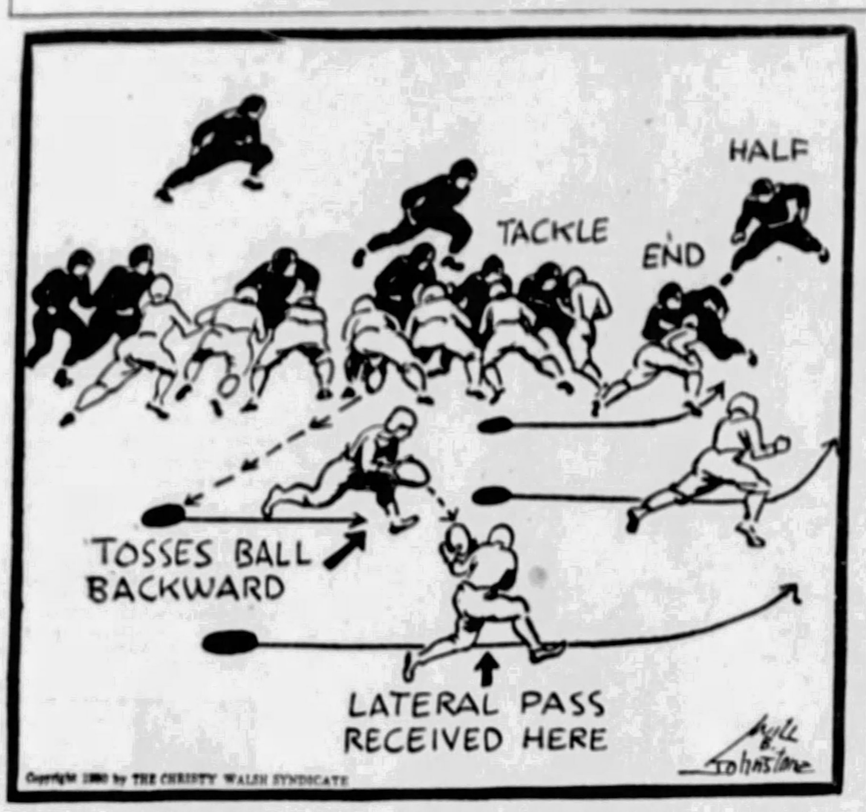
FOOTBALL FOR THE SPECTATOR

The Lateral Pass



By CAPT. BIFF JONES,
Former Army Coach.

Since 1906, the major developments of football have been toward the open game. Shortly after the restrictive legislation against the screen pass (which was in many respects an old-fashioned mass attack on the defensive backfield) the rules committee encouraged the development of the lateral pass. This term "lateral" in our game means a backward pass. The encouragement came from the fact that the penalty on the fumbles of a backward pass was made extremely light. The opponents could not recover such a fumble as the ball became dead (unplayable) at the point of striking the ground.

So much did this encourage the development of the lateral pass that the following year (1929) the rules committee slightly revised this rule: Under the 1930 rules, in case of a fumble, in catching the lateral pass, the team which made the fumble can recover and run with the ball. The opponents may recover the ball, but cannot run with it.

While this present ruling does not remove all chance from the lateral pass as did the 1928 ruling, still many of the teams, having developed the lateral pass in 1928, used it to good advantage in 1929 and are still keeping it in the 1930 repertoire.

The lateral pass always has been the important part of Canadian football. However, it never can occupy more than a minor position in American football, as compared with our rushing and forward passing tactics. The reasons are simple. Width of field is necessary to permit of lateral deployment for the really effective use of the lateral pass. The Canadian field is 75 yards wide as compared with our 53 yards. Also, we must have seven men on the line of scrimmage, thus leaving only four to make the lateral passing formation. The Canadian game does not so restrict its teams in their initial starting positions.

The rules relating to the lateral pass differ from those regarding the forward pass in the following ways:

(1) The lateral pass may be made from any place on the field, while the forward pass must be thrown from a point at LEAST FIVE YARDS IN REAR OF THE POINT where the ball was put in play.

(2) There is no restriction on the number of lateral passes that may be made on one play, whereas only one forward pass may be made in one play.

(3) The lateral pass may be recovered after striking the ground, while a forward may not.

(4) There is no yardage penalty on an incomplete lateral, while there is on the forward pass.

In view of the apparent light penalties on the lateral pass, one might wonder why it is not more generally used. The answer is that if a forward pass is completed you have made your gain, while, if the lateral is completed, you still must run with the ball to make your gain. In passing the ball forward, you are throwing toward your opponent's goal, whereas in passing laterally you are throwing toward your own.

BUCS RELEASE FRAZIER TO SEALS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Another Pirate was dropped from the roster yesterday when the home management announced the outright sale of Outfielder Foy Frazier to the San Francisco Club of the Pacific Coast League for a straight cash consideration.

Frazier, one of the outfield juveniles, has nearly everything needed to develop into a major league star, but he is not ready for the big show at present.

PURCHASED RELEASE

Foy is the young man who purchased his own release from the Oakland club, of the Coast League, when he learned that he could catch on with the Buccos. Frazier trained with the Freebooters at Paso Robles last spring and after the club reached home, he was put out under option with the Newark Club, of the International League.

The recruit was ill during a part of his stay with Newark, and eventually he was returned to the Pirates, who then farmed him out to Indianapolis, of the American Association. Foy played well and batted hard for the Hoosiers, but in the latter part of the season the Indianapolis club became surfeited with players, owing to the deal made with the Boston Red Sox involving Shortstop Wartsler, who is now a membre of the Boston brigade. The Hoosiers received a flock of players in exchange and were over the limit, so they returned Frazier to the Pirates.

FOY SOUTHPAW

The released player is a left-handed boy in all respects concerning baseball. Manager Ens figures he has plenty of southpaw hitters among his outfielders, especially with Augustin Dugas showing up well. So Frazier was passed along to the Seals. Foy should be a star for his new club. His home is in California.

Scoops Carey, former Pirate coach who recently was released by the Pittsburgh club, is in the city on a personal and business mission. The long-time star outfielder probably will ally himself with some club in the near future.

Josh Billings, spectacled pitcher who was a member of the slab staff of the Beaumont club of the Texas League this year, is a patient of Guy Green, of Linesville. Billings, a Detroit hurler before being sold to the Texas League, is bothered with a sore pitching arm.

FOOTBALL VETS TO CLASH

Back in 1927 and '28 conjecture was rife among Beaver County and Pittsburgh football enthusiasts as to the probable outcome of a game between gridiron teams representing the University of Pittsburgh and Geneva College, Beaver Falls. The approximate answer to that question may be conceived on the afternoon of Armistice Day, a week from today, when the 1928 Panther team will meet the 1927 Geneva eleven at the Rochester Athletic Field.

The game will be one of many features of the annual country-wide observance of Armistice Day, to be held under the sponsorship of Walter S. Roth Post, No. 498, American Legion, at Rochester. Approximately 10,000 spectators are expected to crowd the field to overflowing to witness the games.

Jimmy Rooney, one-time Pitt star, and Ollie Harris, New Brighton, former Pitt and Geneva fullback, will be in charge of the Pitt and Geneva teams, respectively. Practice sessions will be held by both elevens this week.

Probable lineup of former Pitt players, tentatively announced by Rooney, is as follows: Honey Guarino and Scanlon, ends; Zeke Wissinger and Bill Kern, tackles; Buck Templeton and Alex Fox, guards; Andy Cutler, center; Rooney, quarterback; Toby Uansa and Red Hull, halfbacks, and Pug Parkinson, fullback.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 50.

Before I had actually signed Ty Cobb for 1928, I already had stirred the fans by announcing that Tris Speaker would be in the Athletics' outfield.

When Cobb and Speaker were restored to eligibility the year before by Judge Landis and declared free agents, there was a wild scramble on the part of several clubs to get them.

I already have told how I signed Ty aboard the train from Augusta, Ga. I was so overjoyed at my success that I decided to get Speaker as well, so that these two stars could be seen on the same team for the first time in their careers.

Connie Mack

At my request, Speaker visited me at my office in Shibe Park, Philadelphia, and I made him an offer. He told me my terms were satisfactory and that he would be glad to play with me, but there was one hitch.

"At that hearing in Chicago," Speaker said to me, "you and Clark Griffith, the Washington owner, were the only club officials to greet me cordially. Griffith greeted me first and you came next and I promised Griffith that if I ever was made a free agent I would give him first chance for my services.

"Connie, I am going to keep that promise. If Griffith wants me I will sign with him; if not, I will sign with you for the terms mentioned without any haggling."

SPEAKER KEEPS WORD

That was very fair and it made me have a higher regard for Speaker, who proved that his word meant something. The upshot was that Griffith did want Speaker and so he signed to play with him in 1927.

This also was a one-year contract and Griffith released Tris unconditionally at the end of the season, making him a free agent.

So the next winter I sent for Tris again, and, without any quibbling, the Gray Eagle signed to play with me for 1928, giving me the two most famous veterans outfielders in the sport.

That winter I also made a deal with the Browns when I sent them Pitcher Sammy Gray in exchange for Outfielder Bing Miller.

Miller was the player I had traded to the Browns in the middle of 1926, a deal I always regretted, and I made up my mind to regain him at the first opportunity.

This came that winter, when the Browns wrote that they wanted Pitcher Gray. I suggested Miller in exchange for him and President Phil Ball, the St. Louis owner, acquiesced.

MAKES GOOD TRADE.

Miller had not exactly come up to St. Louis' standard, while Gray was a disappointment to me, therefore this deal was one of the best ever made in the American League, for it proved a good thing for both clubs.

Miller at once became the extra outfielder I so badly needed, while Gray proved a big asset to the Browns, his work being well ahead of anything he had done here.

In all departments, Miller played phenomenal ball for me and his usefulness reached a climax on October 14, 1929, when his booming two-bagger to the scoreboard won the world series for the Athletics.

Here's where a deal benefited both clubs making it. It's the ideal kind of swap for a ball club and it's too bad more don't turn out that way.

CLUB SHAPES UP WELL

I felt quite confident when it was time to go down to the training camps at Fort Myers, Fla., in 1928. I had added two veteran outfielders to my team in Tris Speaker and Bing Miller, regained Ty Cobb and also acquired two promising youths in Haas and Orwoll.

Haas looked to be the pick of minor league outfielders, while I had to meet high demands to get Orwoll. The latter had been the big noise of the American Association in 1927.

He was nominally a left-handed pitcher, but his hitting was so hard that he was used at first base or in the outfield on days when he was not pitching.

That was the kind of man I wanted, for, in case anything went wrong with my first base plans, I would have Orwoll as a stop-gap.

Dribbles

The Flinter Company is lining up a powerful team for the Allegheny County League race. Wy Paris is handling the reins of the club. Harvey White, all-County League player of last year, will be back.

Heinz House will not sponsor a representative team for the first time in years this season. George Taylor, athletic director at the North Side institution, plans to confine all Heinz House activities to inter-house leagues. Three leagues, each composed of eight clubs, have been organized.

Sam Spokane, manager of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House teams, has started booking for the coming season. First-class teams are asked to call him at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, Grant 0850.

J. J. Miele, sponsor of the team that bore his name in the old Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, will have a club entered in this year's County League. The team will include most of last year's Verona stars.

Buck Gefsky, former star guard of the old Coffey Club, is coaching the basketeers of the Young Men's Hebrew Association. Sammy Klateman and Eddie Leaman will be back with the Bellefielders, according to reports. The team will operate in the West Penn League as was the case last year.

One team that is expected to go far in amateur basketball this winter is the North Side Buicks. This club will present a fine array of stars this season.

Cy Williams Likely Allentown Pilot

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Cy Williams, the Philadelphia Phillies' veteran outfielder and home run slugger, may become manager of the Allentown club of the Eastern Baseball League, according to reports here today.

This became the sole topic of conversation among local ball fans following a visit of Gerry Nugent, business agent of the Phillies, to the office of the club officials here yesterday. Nugent presented a plea that Williams be given the post.

Martha Kinsey Wins Mexican Golf Title

Miss Kinsey defeated Mrs. Ralph Smith, titleholder, 8 up and 7 to play, in the final round of the tournament yesterday.

The men's amateur title was won by Percy Clifford, British resident of Mexico City, for the third time in succession. He defeated the American player, Max Wright, 5 and 3.

Illinois' Band To Go to New York

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The University of Illinois Band will lend support to the Illini when they tangle with the Army at the Yankee Stadium, New York, Saturday. Definite assurance that the 160-piece band would accompany the team was given yesterday when the Illini Club, of New York, sent in a sizeable check that gained the $8,000 fund necessary to send the band to the game.

REIDER PITT THREAT

TECH ON REBOUND

As for Carnegie, it looks very much as though Pitt was going to catch the Tartans on the rebound after the New York U. game and run up against a hot club. Tech has the stuff, there is no getting around that and, like Pitt, is bound to click against some one or other. You let fellows like Dutch Eyth, Murray, Armentrout, Slats Flanagan and Johnny Graveno get going and it will take the best any team has to stop 'em.

Another thing. Carnegie hasn't forgotten that walloping it received at the hands of the Panthers last year. That setback was rankling in Skibo hearts before the season opened, and the losses to the Irish and Violets have not served to assuage the hurt of .929 to any extent. If Tech can put the power on and hammer the staggering Panthers into the dust, you may bet the rent that they will do that very thing.

Attempt to Kill Fails to Stop Pharlap

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Pharlap, through which rival bettors tried to keep from running by shooting him, today won the Melbourne Cup, one of the most famous of Australian horse races. Second Wind was second.

Saturday morning while a stable boy was exercising Pharlap, a car drove by and its occupants attempted to shoot him. Some of the bullets penetrated his blanket, but the horse was not hurt and he raced that afternoon and won in a minor event.

He was backed heavily to win today's race.

Marshall, Butler Star, Not to Play

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 4. — John Marshall, star halfback of Butler High School, will be out of the game with Wilkinsburg Saturday, it was revealed today. He received a fractured ankle in the fourth quarter of the game with Beaver Falls, Saturday.

Marshall is a senior in high school. Calvin Hogg, halfback, who was injured in the Ellwood City game, also will be unable to play, while Pawk a terminal, is likely to be out of the game. Coach Regis Heinze stated.

Rockne Rates Penn Harder Than Pitt

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Notre Dame's varsity today was to face a reserve team drilled in Pennsylvania plays. The varsity and shock troops rested yesterday, while Coach Rockne scored the second team for not being able to defeat Indiana without the aid of first stringers Saturday. Rockne told his men Penn would be harder to beat Saturday than was Pittsburgh two weeks ago.

Cougars May Get Rose Bowl Game

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 4.—(INS.)—That Washington State, now leading contender for the Pacific Coast Conference football championship, is willing to represent the West in the annual Rose Bowl game here on New Year's Day was revealed here today. It is believed the Cougars will be invited to represent the West in the event they finish the season undefeated.

Long's Sport Comment

by Eddie Gerard, the new pilot, who once announced a decision to keep him, according to reports from the club's training camp at Galt, Ont.

In addition to the Conacher problem, Gerard had plenty of trouble in other directions. Billy Burch, crack center, is said to have been given a salary cut and refused to sign until late yesterday, when he gave in and decorated the dotted line. Gerard has released Billy Holmes, a forward, outright, and picked up five former amateurs in Gordon Kuhn, Jack Keating, Ellis Pringle, Vernon Ayres and Harry Radley. Three of the new acquisitions are likely to be shipped to the New Haven farm.

Willie Hoppe

THERE IS A ring of the bygone in an announcement that Willie Hoppe is going to defend the world balk-line billiard championship. Maybe you didn't know that Hoppe still holds that championship. Well, he does, but it's a title that most fans probably have forgotten. Though long ago dethroned as the 18.2 king, Willie never has been stripped of his 18.1 laurels, and it's the latter crown that he's going to defend. He has accepted a challege from Welker Cochran, and the two are to play a 3,900-point match for the title in New York, starting November 17. The match revives a style of billiards that for years has been gathering dust on the shelf. Hoppe, who first won the honors from Maurice Vignaux in Paris in 1906, has been recognized as the champion since 1910, but has not been called upon in a long time to defend the leadership. It's a tough game in which one of the object balls must be driven across a line at every shot. Though runs as high as 700 have been made at 18.2, in which it is necessary to drive one of the object balls across a line only on every second shot, only three players have ever run more than 200 points at 18.1. Cochran has made 251, Young Jake Schaefer, 241, and Hoppe 234. Only once has a player averaged above 30.

THE SURPRISE PARTIES of the sport season are not confined to football circles. The fight game kicked in with an upset of its own, and one of the biggest it has contributed in a long time, when Fidel LaBarba, a short-ender in the betting, won a 10-round decision over Kid Chocolate in New York by a margin that no ring follower previously believed possible. In 170 fights, Chocolate had been defeated only once, that being the loss of a questionable decision to Jack (Kid) Berg. A little more than 17 months earlier the Kid had won a disputed decision over this same LaBarba. He had been considered the uncrowned featherweight champion, and anyone suggesting that there was a fighter of that class in the world who could beat him in seven out of 10 rounds, as LaBarba came back and did, would have been laughed out of Queensberry court.

Fidel, a former world flyweight champion, always was a great little fighter, but on the best day of his life he never rated that much better than Chocolate. The result must have been due to something that Chocolate lost since his last big fight, whatever the cause, more than to any advance on the part of LaBarba. Just the same, the victory makes LaBarba the outstanding contender for the featherweight championship. Only Bud Taylor, whom he meets on November 28, stands between him and a match with Battling Battalino, and on the form he showed against Chocolate he ought to beat both Taylor and the title holder decisively.

Trinity Royals To Oppose Engineers

The Trinity Cathedral Royals will play their first game of the season with a team outside of the Sixth avenue church when they tangle with the quintet of the United States Bureau of Engineering on their home court tomorrow night. Ralph Harvey is coaching the Engineers.

The Royals also are likely to become members of a junior church league, which will include First Presbyterian, Faith Chapel and Troy Hill, at an organization meeting to be held in the club room at Trinity Cathedral tomorrow night.

Louis Severo Stops Coogan in First

MEADVILLE, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Louis Severo, 138, Meadville, knocked out Jackie Coogan, 137, Cleveland, after 58 seconds of fighting in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Jimmy Thomas, 119, Pittsburgh Negro, and Pete Mazzeo, 122, Cleveland, drew in six rounds.

Frenchy Jennings, 123, Meadville, won on a technical knockout over Pinky Kelly, 122, Lorain, O., in the third round of a carded six-round bout. Butch McCray, 142, Meadville, took a judges' decision over Mickey Hicks, 143, Cleveland.

Burch, Americans' Holdout, Signs

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Word was received today at the New York Americans' headquarters from Galt, Ontario, where the star-spangled troupe is in training for the opening game, a week from tonight, that Billy Burch, who became a holdout last week, had signed.

Gerard has been working Burch with Patterson and Himes, and is more than pleased the way this trio has been shaping up. Hockey critics say that they are the best combine seen in some time.

CUBS SIGN O'LEARY

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Charles O'Leary, former coach of the New York Yankees, today held a one-year contract as assistant to Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs. O'Leary was let out by Joe McCarthy when the former Chicago Cub manager took over the direction of the Yankees.

LETZELTER IN HOSPITAL

WEST POINT, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Army trainers worked overtime today trying to patch up some of the injured Cadets for the Illinois game on Saturday. Carlmark and Letzeiter are in the hospital, and Bowman and Jack Malloy are on the injured list.

Ice Slivers

Jerry Lowrey, Bud Jarvis and Andy Spooner, who performed as ice Pirates here last season, and five other skaters from Western Canada, who are to try out for the Philadelphia National League team, were stopped at the border by U. S. immigration officials Saturday.

The Montreal Canadiens, of the National League, already are primed for the title race, and Manager Cecil Hart has reduced their workouts from two to one each day.

Purchase by the Maple Leafs of King Clancy, former Ottawa defense star, has served to give hockey interest in Toronto a boost. More than 4,000 fans turn out just to watch the Leafs drill.

The American Hockey League has been expanded to an eight-club circuit. The New York American Hockey Club, Inc., is the new member.

Fifteen Teams In Bike Race

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Fifteen teams have been paired up for Chicago's twenty-fourth international six-day bicycle race, which will open Sunday night in the Chicago Stadium.

J., and Horman Hill, San Jose, Cal.; Franco Georgetti and Paul Brocardo, Italy; Gerard Debeats, Belgium, and Gaetano Belloni, Italy; Jimmy Walthour, Jr., New York, and Franz Deulberg, Germany; Alfred Binda and Pietro Linari, Italy; Fred Letourner and Marcel Guimbretiere, France; Cecil Walker and Harris Horder, Australia; Ernest Kockler and Mickey Rodak, Chicago; Harry Horan and Jack Sheehan, Chicago; Emil Richili, Switzerland, and Paul Buschenhagen, Germany; Roger De Nef and Adolf Charlier, Belgium; Pietro Fosatti and Raffelo De Pacco, Italy; William Peden, Toronto, Ont., and Al Crossley, Boston, and Thomas Saetta nad Joseph De Vito, New York.

HARVARD IN SHAKEUP

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Still surprised at the tie with William and Mary, Coach Arnold Horween shook up his Harvard team yesterday. Eddie Mays was the only back who kept his post, while the line also went through several changes. Fundamental work and a hard scrimmage against a freshman eleven constituted the drill.

FORDHAM RESTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Tired from four hard games in succession, the Fordham squad was let off with a light practice yesterday, although the Rams must face Detroit Saturday. Coach Cavanaugh said he expects to give very little hard work this week.

rial before long. Eddie Ouellette, the Windsor youngster, who made quite an impression when he broke in with the Millionaires last season, seems to have added several pounds to his stocky figure, while Cliff McBride, a member of the Toronto Maple Leafs early last winter, also looks stronger and huskier than a year ago."

Forbes

Forbes Says: Pay Liberal Dividends!

By B. C. FORBES

NOT ENOUGH of our large corporations are doing what they could do and should do to encourage the return of prosperity by declaring special Christmas or New Year dividend disbursements. If the heads of the United States Steel Corporation and other influential men sitting on boards of directors believe what they ask the public to believe concerning the imminence of better times, there is no excuse, except cowardice, for the dividend course too many organizations have lately followed.

B. C. Forbes

General Motors set a worthy example by declaring its regular dividend, notwithstanding that it was not fully earned last quarter. Several other companies have acted with similar confidence in the future.

BUT HOW MANY unfavorable dividend announcements were made last month? No fewer than 110. A year ago the month's total was 14. In September there were 139 dividend changes for the worse, contrasted with nine last year.

For the last 10 months the total has reached 706, an unprecedented figure. During the same 10 months last year the total was only 108, and in 1928, only 129.

PUBLIC UTILITY corporations were responsible for only two deferred payments and there was one railway dividend omitted, Georgia, Southern and Florida. All the other 107 unfavorable changes were made by industrial, financial and miscellaneous concerns. There were 48 dividends omitted entirely, 39 were deferred and 20 reduced.

	1930	1929	1928	1927
January	52	3	7	16
February	24	11	26	13
March	61	16	11	15

Total 10 months	706	108	129	142
November		20	3	6
December		26	10	22
Totals		154	142	170

UPWARD REVISIONS outnumbered downward revisions last month by the slenderest of margins, five. The cheerful dividends totaled 115, contrasted with 149 in September, with 179 last October and 193 in September of last year. Last month's record by industrial, public utility and railroad companies may be summarized thus:

	Ind.	P. U.	R. R.
Extra	54	10	1
Initial	18	4	0
Stock	15	2	0
Increased	6	1	0
Back	3	0	1
Totals	96	17	2

FOR 10 MONTHS the total of improved disbursements is 1,159, against 1,615 a year ago. The first quarter of this year easily eclipsed the first quarter of last year, with 450 upward revisions, compared with 415 last year. Starting with April, the comparisons with last year have made a very bad showing, as the following table reveals:

	1930	1929	1928	1927	1926
January	117	126	98	85	81
February	114	136	94	85	81

FORESIGHT IS essential for the successful administration of a business. Caution, too, is admirable—at times when most people and enterprises are throwing caution to the winds. But when fear and gloom paralyze the national well-being, then courage becomes admirable.

This is the time when needlessly large surpluses should be drawn upon to inspire that change in sentiment which must precede any substantial change in business activity. Many corporations piled up millions upon millions of cash during the boom by selling additional stock, often by granting "rights" to stockholders. Wherever financially feasible, unnecessarily swollen treasuries should be resorted to now for the sake of stimulating recovery in trade and employment.

Which company will be the first to act?

Russia's Winter Grain Sowing Off

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Area sown to winter grain in Russia up to October 20 is reported at 85,000,000 acres against 97,000,000 acres to corresponding date in 1929, according to Department of Agriculture.

Weather reports covering the first 10 days of October indicate that the conditions of the winter sowings at the time were average or above in practically all regions.

WORLD PAYING FOR ARTIFICIAL INTERFERENCES

Copper Industry Troubles Example of Evils of Price-Pegging Policy

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The world has been paying in recent months for earlier artificial interferences with the automatic corrective devices of the law of supply and demand.

Left to itself, the law, by bringing low prices, tends to reduce output, which in time raises the price again. In recent years, governments and associations of private interests were in conspiracy to defeat the operation of this natural economic law by pegging prices. Usually foreign governments staged this experiment in economic fallacy; but the same mistake was also made by private business interests. Winking at the spirit behind the anti-trust laws the copper interests, by way of illustration, blatantly pegged prices artificially until after the first quarter of this year, and, in doing so, they accumulated their present bundle of troubles.

Mr. Rukeyser

To some extent, observers were blinded to what was going on for in the years prior to 1929 commodity prices, on the average, were stable. But statistical examination after the event shows that at a time when increased efficiency in production was giving a mandate for lower prices sellers were artificially holding them up.

The recent experience anew points to the futility of believing in fiat prosperity, promised and meted out by the government. Economists saw this truth earlier, but each generation must learn its own economics through experience.

PRICE PEGGING WRONG

It is perfectly sound to seek to apply merchandising principles to the staple commodities, and to attune production to demand. But it is fallacious to peg the price without making a corresponding reduction in output.

Latin America is seething with revolts against politicians who, in vain, promise to repeal the law of supply and demand.

Perhaps in time the people will see too that the world has run riot in tariff making. The expectation at Washington that trade would improve after the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was out of the way has hardly been fulfilled. The protective tariff principle was useful when one or a few countries played the game exclusively, but now that it has come to be almost universally employed the tariff of one country proves merely a stay-off to that of another. Accordingly, the net world result of tariffs is friction, and a reduction in the aggregate volume of goods exchanged. Of course, a country like the United States, built up on tariffs, cannot turn abruptly toward free trade without disrupting numerous of its industries. But the time has come for America to put the question of tariff rates in the hands of scientific economists, and to remove the subject from the hands of shallow politicians.

ODDS FORETELL WINNER

The nation today turns aside from barter to the election of new political servants. The election once more raises the question of how reliable are Wall street betting odds.

A study of the historical data discloses that though Wall Street odds have an imperfect record, they are more trustworthy when based on political than on sporting events.

In the last 15 elections in which the voters ballotted for President, Governor or Mayor, the late odds correctly foretold the outcome in 13 out of 15 instances. The odds went wrong in 1918, when Woodrow Wilson nosed out Charles Evans Hughes for the presidency in a close election which was in doubt for several days, and also again in 1918, when Alfred E. Smith defeated former Gov. Whitman in New York.

In an effort to combat consumer apathy, Ward Melville, head of the largest array of retail chains in the country, in announcing a 10 per cent price cut, said:

"There is in the mind of the public a psychological opposition to spending. The public unquestionably does not want to spend. To cure this, we have reduced our prices."

Air Brake Interesting To Investors

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE will report a moderate decline in its earnings for 1930, but will cover dividend requirements. The stock appears to offer an attractive yield at present prices. The excellent record of earnings in good times as well as bad, in addition to a strong financial position, gives the stock a place on the list of local organizations which have been made interesting to investors as a result of the downward revision of stock market quotations during the past year.

The stock is on a $2 annual dividend basis. It is currently selling at about 33 which indicates a yield of 6.06 per cent. While dividend requirements are not earned by a large margin, the stability of profits and the extensive resources in the form of cash and marketable securities permit the company to be more liberal in payments to stockholders than many other corporations.

Plant facilities are adequate to handle a far larger volume of business than the company has enjoyed in recent years so that no large expenditures for improvements will be needed in the near future. The company is free of funded debt and has no preferred stock. The 3,172,111 shares of common stock represent the only capital liability.

Average Earnings.

IN 1929 NET PROFIT was $8,822,711 or $2.78 a share. This compared with $6,490,557 or $2.05 a share in 1928 and with $8,520,009 or $2.69 a share in 1927. Average earnings per share for the three years ended with 1929 were $2.51. On this basis the stock is selling for 13.1 times earnings.

The fact that there are some hidden profits must be taken into consideration. Foreign affiliated companies in England, France, Italy and Australia are doing a large volume of business, but their profits are not fully reflected in the statements of the parent company. Westinghouse owns large blocks of the stock of these organizations, but does not make consolidated statements including their earnings. Only dividends actually paid by these foreign organizations are included in the American company's results.

Earnings Maintained.

IN SPITE OF THE FACT that the railroads have bought little equipment this year, the company earned $5,699,151 or $1.79 a share in the first nine months of 1930, compared with $6,164,110 or $1.94 a share in the corresponding period of 1929. Net profit for the three months ended September 30 was $1,684,242 or 53 cents a share which covered the dividend requirements for the period.

Dividends from foreign companies will tend to compensate for any declining tendencies in the business during the final quarter of the year so that 1930 net profit will be greater than in 1928, but smaller than in 1929.

Current Position.

AT THE CLOSE of 1929 current assets amounted to $46,234,927. They were more than 10 times current liabilities of $4,492,659. Working capital of $41,742,268 was equivalent to $13.15 a share on the stock. Cash of $9,056,824 was twice all current liabilities. Marketable securities amounted to $17,663,795. The total of cash and marketable securities of $26,720,619 was equivalent to $8.42 a share.

In other words, one-fourth of the present market value of this stock is represented by actual cash or marketable securities. If all the debts were paid the remaining current assets, including cash, securities, inventory and receivables, would be equivalent to about 40 per cent of the present market price of the stock.

TRADE SLUMP REDUCES U. S. RECEIPTS

Revenues Decline While Ordinary Expenditures Increase Since June 30

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Government receipts in the first four months of the 1931 fiscal year, ending October 31, showed a reduction of $174,000,000, while ordinary expenditures gained $47,000,000, the Treasury announced today.

The business depression has cut sharply into revenues from customs and miscellaneous internal revenue, including the tobacco taxes; the income tax reduction has been due to the 1 per cent reduction in rates and to a lesser degree to the stock market crash of late 1929. The slump will not affect income taxes until after March 15, since payments are now being made on the basis of 1929 incomes.

For the four months all receipts amounted to $1,016,753,000, with ordinary expenditures $1,126,831,000. There was a deficit of $175,138,000 on October 31. However, the Treasury has postponed most of its annual sinking fund operations until March 15, owing to the strong position of the government bond market, so that Uncle Sam is about $220,000,000 behind last year as the fifth month of the fiscal year opens.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS SHRINK

The most serious drop was $84,000,000 to a total of $134,256,400 in customs receipts. Total income taxes amounted to $582,262,800, a decline of $58,000,000, while miscellaneous internal revenue of $206,525,300 was $11,000,000 lower.

Virtually all items of expenditure were higher than last year with the exception of interest and refund of taxes. For four months the Federal Farm Board spent $24,665,800. There was a $40,000,000 postal deficit, $15,000,000 greater than last year.

In the government's effort to economize it has been faced by the virtual necessity of maintaining employment at the present level. While there has been a move to reduce forces in certain branches of the government, these economy operations have been postponed until business starts moving forward again.

Heavy financing operations will take place within the next year, when notes, certificate and bills amounting to $2,469,450,000 will be retired. The next financing will be done November 17, when $120,000,000 in bill will be retired. In December the retirements will include $120,525,000 in bills and $483,341,000 certificates, while in March more than $1,000,000,000 in 3½ per cent bills will be called. At the end of October the public debt amounted to $16,179,837,300, an increase of $99,000,000 during the month, and a decrease of $418,000,000 in a year.

Allegheny Reports Net Profit of $2.16

Allegheny Steel Company reports for nine months ended September 30, 1930, net profit after depreciation and taxes of $1,494,145, equivalent to $2.16 a share on 610,541 shares of common stock after deducting preferred dividends.

DAILY TRUE STORY

'A Coupla Saps'

"You'll have to sort of look out for Hermie,' old man Deegan said to his other sons, Joe and Curt.

Deegan was sitting by the window of the rather dingy flat, staring down into the equally dingy street.

Joe and Curt exchanged troubled glances.

"Hermie is doing all right, Dad," Joe said; "he's got a pretty fair job—spends a little too much for clothes, but he'll get over that."

"Hermie isn't steady, like you boys," the old man said. "He's different. He's more like my brother, Will, who went to the dogs before he was 30."

Joe pretended to read the evening sporting page, but he was too worried. He understood what was back of this. His father had collapsed twice recently and been brought home from the foundry. His heart was pretty bad.

After the old man went to his room, Curt came over to his brother.

"Dad feels pretty bad," he said, softly.

The factory where Joe and Curt worked was to be given up. The company was building a new plant out on Long Island. It made it harder for Joe and Curt, the commuting, but their father needed them. He had been lonesome since their mother died. They couldn't leave him to the tender mercies of the woman who slept out but came and kept house for them.

Father Dies

As for Deegan, he couldn't go out there on Long Island to live because he wouldn't give up his work in the little foundry down by the water front where he had worked for so many years.

Now and then Hermie changed his job. He worked at various things that seemed to offer no prospects. And, occasionally, he was out all night. Joe and Curt worked hard to cover him up, on their father's account.

Then came the day that old Mr. Deegan had his third heart attack. As the boys had predicted, this was the end.

After the funeral the boys had a conference. They, Joe and Curt, planned to live in a modest little boarding house out near the factory. Their only relative was an aunt in the city who kept a rooming house.

"You can room with Aunt Jane, Hermie," Joe told him.

"Don't you worry. I'll be ridin' in my car while you saps are still hoofing it," Hermie boasted.

Joe and Curt thought it was just a silly boast. Hermie was still pretty much of a kid in their eyes.

Over in their dingy boarding house near the big factory Joe and Curt began to save more of their earnings than ever, because each had about the same plan. Both of them had a sweetheart and if it hadn't been their duty to stay with their father they would have been married before this.

Becomes Gangster

Soon after this Joe and Curt saw Hermie. He was rather flashily dressed. He told them that he was making big money selling bonds.

And then they began to understand why Hermie was so prosperous. He had become what they called a "gangster." Now and then his name was in the papers in connection with some racketeering activities. He was known as "Duck" Deegan.

Several years elapsed. Joe had two children. Curt had one.

Their homes were nearly paid for by this time. Each of them had a small and cheap car.

One Saturday afternoon when they were working in their joint garden at the back of their bungalow homes, they had a visitor, a dapper, almost flashily dressed young man who drove up in one of those "block-long" cars.

Joe and Curt in overalls, working over their thriving rows of tomatoes, string beans and other vegetables, saw the young man come along the path between the houses.

"Hermie," Joe said.

It was.

"Hello farmers," Hermie greeted them. Thought I'd come out in the sticks and take a look at my nephews and nieces.

Hermie had met his brothers' wives, but had never seen the babies. He duly looked at his little nephews and one niece, tried to be polite, seemed rather uneasy in the presence of the quiet, unmistakably lady-like wives and joined his brothers in the garden for a little more conversation. He was inclined to be boastful.

"You ought to see my little woman," he said.

"Didn't know you had married, Hermie," Joe exclaimed, "congratulations."

"Married? Be your age," Hermie observed.

"Everybody, and let it go at that. If you saps were bright I'd ring you into our crowd. Your women would be living in penthouse apartments covered with ice, within a year."

"No, thanks," Joe growled, "and if you have so much money put away, Hermie, why don't you quit? You can slip away to the coast or some place, settle down and be decent. Be wise about it, boy."

"Wise? I'm the one who is wise."

Hermie laughed at their cheap little car and pointed out the perfection of his, which had cost more than 10 of their cars. Before he left he pulled out a flat package of money.

"Here," he said, "you saps take it for each of your kids; bank it for their education."

Joe and Curt looked at each other.

"Sorry, Hermie, guess we won't. I—we rather not have our children educated on—er—that kind of money."

Put on Spot

Hermie advanced in his racketeering line. He became the lieutenant of the big gang leader. He was worth a great deal of money. He was intrusted with big deals, booze, dope, bribery handling and the like.

Occasionally he would drive out through the little suburb where his brothers had their modest little homes.

One night "Duck" Deegan was driving through with two of his crowd. They were going out to collect on a big job, as it was called.

"I got two brothers living down that street," Hermie said to his friend, "Scoot" Morley. "They work in a factory, own a coupla tin cars, and a coupla little shacks, and they used to have th' nerve to preach to me—poor boobs, never had nothin', never will. Bet they never seen th' inside of a night club."

"Saps, eh?" mumbled Scoot."

"Saps," Hermie said. He turned down a street. There was a detour sign, he slowed up to see which way to detour. Five men appeared, jumped on the running board and "Let's go."

"Duck" Deegan slumped.

"O. K.," Scott Morley said. He had not been harmed.

Hermie had been "put on the spot" for not coming through with a square portion of certain graft money.

Hermie was just 29 when this happened.

"Scoot" Morley and some others were talking it over, later.

"He," meant the late unlamented "Duck" Deegan.

"Does his moll grab that?"

"Naw," Scott explained. "The three hundred thousand has been turned over to his two brothers."

"I didn't know he had any brothers?"

"Sure, a couple—he wasn't very proud of them—they're just a coupla saps!"

Ella has been informed that she is going to Europe with the Coles. Is she excited? Well.....
HOW LONG WILL IT TAKE YOU TO PACK ALL YOUR THINGS, ELLA?
MRS. COLE, WHEN I BUTTON THE TOP BUTTON ON THIS DRESS, MY TRUNK IS PACKED!
DON'T YOU THINK IT'S FOOLISH FOR A WOMAN TO STOCK UP HER WARDROBE IN PARIS AND PAY SUCH HEAVY DUTY? I FIND IT MUCH MORE PRACTICAL TO BUY GOWNS HERE!
YES, MY GOWNS ARE LOCAL PRODUCTS AND I SLEEP WELL IN BOTH OF THEM!
I ONCE BOUGHT SOME GOWNS IN PARIS AND PAID MORE DUTY THAN I PAID FOR THE GOWNS! I THOUGHT IT WAS OUTRAGEOUS! IT'S POOR POLICY TO TRY TO HIDE ANYTHING, TOO!
I SUPPOSE IT'S JUST AN OLD AMERICAN CUSTOM! IF A WOMAN BUYS ANYTHING VALUABLE IN EUROPE, HER SAFEST BET IS TO GREET THE CUSTOMS OFFICER WITH THESE WORDS: "LOOK, WHO'S HERE—A CUSTOMS OFFICER! WELL, I DECLARE!"

Pen Sermon Is Often Stranger Than Fiction!

Editorial

Study the above picture. Turn it upside down. Hold it this way and that way. What does it mean to you? Wrong again, no doubt. Cartoonist Frisby, with a few swift, sure strokes of his pen, shows us the disintegration of the American home. "Think," says Frisby, on the back of his drawing, "what it means if a respectable citizen cannot walk in safety through the streets merely because he writes for a Confession Magazine! What are you going to do about it, Mr. Wickersham, and your old Hoover Law Enforcement Commission?"

The War on Crime

Felonies Should Be Investigated by Business Men in a Businesslike Way.

Over the week-end armed bandits held up a McKeesport drug store and escaped with $500. Another band of robbers attempted to hold up an East End drug store, but were driven away at the point of a gun by the proprietor, who has been repeatedly held up, and killed a bandit a year ago. Another drug store nearby was looted of $300 worth of merchandise by burglars. There were, in addition, several other burglaries and holdups.

It was not an exceptional week-end in respect to crime. Burglaries and holdups are of daily occurrence.

Philadelphia has a Criminal Justice Association, which studies and reports on crimes in that city in a businesslike way. It reports, for example, that there were 1,066 burglaries during the third quarter of 1930, and 300 arrests in connection with them. It compares the figures with the corresponding ones of other periods. It indicates the sections where crimes are most prevalent, and makes recommendations to the police. Its latest recommendations are that the police have a radio broadcasting station and cars equipped with receiving sets.

Pittsburgh's business men and others vitally interested in the prevention and punishment of crime might find such an association helpful.

Juvenile Court

The Proposal That Adults Be Required to Account There for Contributing to Delinquency Seems Reasonable.

Among the many recommendations made by the Pittsburgh Federation of Social Agencies in the second of the reports on its study of child welfare here there is one that stands out as particularly sensible. It is that the power of the Juvenile Court be extended so that it may take jurisdiction not only of children's delinquency but also of parents' or other adults' contribution to the delinquency.

Under the existing arrangements, the children's cases are tried in Juvenile Court and the parents in another court. The result is that the parents are often not held to account, or there is lack of co-ordination in the handling of the cases.

Putting them both under the same jurisdiction would make for consistency and justice.

Guard the Gates

Three Amendments to Immigration Laws Will Lessen Our Employment Menace.

TIGHTENING of immigration restrictions against job seekers from abroad cut the number of alien admissions to 17,792 in September from 28,020 for September a year ago.

But haphazard reduction by executive order is only a temporary protection against a flood of unemployable, unassimilable or undesirable aliens.

Three amendments to the immigration laws will give this country a fair, orderly and effective system of selective immigration within the quota limits now in force.

The first amendment should authorize the Secretary of Labor, after impartial investigation, to give preference among the eligible aliens awaiting admission, to those for whom there is a vacancy in the ranks of self-supporting Americans.

The second amendment should require the registration of all aliens when they are admitted, to the end that those legitimately here may be protected and that those who have violated the law to get here may be deported.

The third amendment should strengthen the machinery of apprehension and swift deportation of all undesirable aliens, including those who entered this country without permission.

This amendment should also authorize every state as well as the federal government to deport aliens convicted of other than capital crimes as soon as they have been found guilty.

That will save American taxpayers thousands of dollars now wasted in paying the cost of imprisoning aliens.

As soon as Congress convenes, it should top the list of emergency measures for the relief of unemployment by reinforcing the immigration laws with these three amendments.

A nation owes to its citizens and their homes at least as much protection as it gives to their products and "the home market."

Back for More

Lipton Will Challenge Again.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the indefatigable, will build another Shamrock and challenge again for the America's Cup in 1932.

Sir Thomas will then be 82. Already he has failed five times to capture the elusive mug. But as he explains:

"We Scotch-Irish don't easily give up."

Few will dissent from that observation. And, incidentally Sir Thomas will be remembered for generations after he is dead, for the simple reason that he never knew when he was licked.

If he had won the cup after one or two attempts, none would have remembered him. But as the world's best loser, he has achieved his niche in history.

To win is pleasant. To take defeat without wincing, and to come back for more, makes mere victory look cheap and tawdry by comparison.

Get Together

By Nelson Harding

Now's the time to get the jobs done —
Things you've not the time to do,
It will cost less now than later
And give work to others, too.

There is labor for the asking
That will get repairing done,
Saw and hammer, rake and paint brush
All await some needy one.

Think It Over

Drawn by Hal Coffman.

Young men who think—as some do—may be interested in this cartoon, appropriately published when falling leaves suggest the end of another life cycle.

The old man shown here is nearing the end of his pilgrimage. Perhaps misfortune that he could not control has brought him to this misery. Fate often is inscrutable, dealing out its blows to those who deserve them least.

Yet the chances are that fate had little to do with his plight, but that he himself is to blame.

Failure to work, failure to save, failure to think ahead—these can wreck the brightest hope, ruin the most promising career. Today our streets are full of aged men, blown hither and yon like falling leaves, knowing not where they shall find rest this side of the grave.

A sad picture that Mr. Coffman has drawn for you.

We print it, despite its sadness, in the hope that some young man may see it today, remember it through life, and reach a happier old age than has this pathetic figure.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Football

Some time ago we said a university consisted of a football stadium and an emergency hospital.

When an irresistible stampede meets an immovable huddle the result is the same as trying to run a wildcat through a sausage machine.

The air is full of hair, teeth and claws. But being a student is no worse than being a pedestrian. At least, your collegiate has the satisfaction of running with the ball.

How would the governor's staff feel with 11 burly Notre Dame toughians scrimmaging 'em all over a 60-acre lot?

That's just what the freshmen do in Rio down in Brazil. They don't arrange for any regular schedule of games. They just scoff away at the training tables until a revolution starts. Then they join it.

How would Yale feel if the Harvard eleven captured 'em and held 'em for ransom? That's what the bright college students do over in China.

What fun would Hong Kong have in beating Chun King if they let 'em go home after the game?

Over in India the juniors and the seniors play inter-class contests with whole regiments of English soldiers. Talk about tearing up goal posts. European students tear up the whole works and slap each other in the face with dormitories and corner stones.

So you can figure that our own students are rather mildish lads. They may play football. But they don't take prisoners.

When a Cornell man gets through playing Princeton he can go home. If he is able. That's more than the Riffs did for the tourists.

So you can give our football players a clean bill of health and hope that they live to enjoy it.

Isn't It So?

The more a man knows about women the less he wishes to know.

SCIENCE AND LIFE

By Archibald Henderson

To the lay mind, science appears to have reached a state of high perfection. A vast number of scientific journals, monographs, books and publications of various sorts are constantly pouring from the presses of all civilized countries, from Argentina to Japan, from Russia to New Zealand. Science is being systematized, catalogued, docketed at many places on the earth's surface. There are journals issued with the sole object of taking account of the contribution to knowledge, in this, that or the other field. There are dictionaries of science, encyclopedias of knowledge, which should tell you all you want to know.

Yet, such is far from being the case, in certain branches of knowledge. Systematization of knowledge has fallen far behind knowledge itself. In this branch of science, or that, there are great holes, vast gaps, which clamor to be filled. This is particularly true in the case of zoology, certainly not the least important of the sciences, since it deals with the most fundamental and universal of subjects studied by man, namely life itself.

If we go back to Linnaeus a century and three-quarters ago, we find that only about 4,370 species of animals were catalogued in the first volume of the tenth edition of his Systema Naturea. What progress in the systematic study of zoology has been made since that time? Of course, a perfect torrent of titles flows through the pages of the Zoological Record each year. But this is all highly specialized knowledge for specialists. What is needed is a complete record of the domain of present zoological knowledge, and an accurate delimitation of that domain, which will be intelligible to any properly trained zoologist, who is not necessarily a specialist in some particular, and often narrow, field.

It is virtually impossible today even for specialists, in different fields, to specify the number of species in some particular group of life forms. The estimate of the number of mammals, for example, ranges from 3,000 to 20,000 depending on particular views entertained as to what constitutes a species. Fifty years ago even, specialists were able to recognize a species readily and allot it its proper place in scientific classification. In the days of Linnaeus, says Calman, it is likely that a very experienced zoologist might have been able to recognize at sight any one of the 4,000 species of animals that were then known.

There are vast numbers of animals known, of which descriptions have been recorded somewhere. Indeed, it is estimated that today the number of described species of animals is near 750,000. This would be, roughly, 175 years ago. But the zoologists have not yet adequately sorted these out in species, and perhaps one-fourth to one-third of this number would be dropped after further investigation.

Taxonomy, which is only a technical name for the classification and systematization of knowledge, deserves, as Calman has recently pointed out, the most respectful consideration of zoologists today. Much of zoological knowledge, of a descriptive form, will be little useful unless properly systematized. As the late David Sharp said: The one branch of zoology that will never fail to attract is the systematic one. The esthetic satisfaction to be derived from contemplating the mere variety of animal forms and from tracing the order that runs through all its diversity appeals to a very deep instinct in human nature.

Wise Words

Be useful where thou livest.—Herbert.

Talent alone cannot make a writer. There must be a man behind the book.—Emerson.

All the great events of this globe are like the globe itself, of which one-half is in the full day and the other half is plunged in obscurity.—Voltaire.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Keep your enthusiasm!

"It can't be done," you say, sadly. "I've proved it can't. Why, I was the most enthusiastic kid you ever knew. Always bubbling over. And look at me now. Somehow, I can't seem to get excited about anything any more. The years take it out of you. It isn't possible, to grow up and still stay enthusiastic."

Yes it is! It's possible to know all about life and take all the hazards and still remain enthusiastic. It's possible to be as enthusiastic at 60 as you were at 6. For enthusiasm isn't a passing mood. Nor does it depend on age or health or happy ignorance of life. You can be old and poor and sick and terribly wise and still be enthusiastic. Enthusiasm is the normal condition of all healthy life. You were born that way.

You can stay that way if you'll give yourself a chance.

You mourn your lost childhood. Think back to it. Remember how eager you were? Remember how inquisitive and hungry you were for adventure, and how everything interested you and amazed you? You didn't make yourself be that way You were that way. It was the natural way for you to be. It was natural for the life in you to reach out. It was natural for you to be enthusiastic.

It is but natural for the life in you to reach out. It is still natural for you to be inquisitive and eager . . . It is natural for you to be enthusiastic. Then why aren't you?

Think back again. Why were you enthusiastic as a child? Because life excited and amazed you. Fear hadn't come to you yet. You dared to reach out. You dared to wonder and ask questions and experiment and explore. And you had no prejudices. You didn't pick at life . . . or set up barriers against it . . . or make judgements. You were open to life. And so life came and went through you freely and joyfully . . . and you thrilled and glowed and tingled with its movement.

But you lost that glow and tingle? And you're blaming the years? Don't blame the years. Blame yourself! Why did your enthusiasm cool as you grew older? Because you grew afraid. Because you grew peevish and proud. You no longer reached out eagerly toward all life as an adventure. You grew afraid to reach. You grew choosey and snooty. You wanted to change life. Or hide it. Or run away from it. You wanted to make things over, to fit your own notions.

And so, little by little, you curbed that eager urge within you and cut off the quickening current of your enthusiasm.

Life didn't do that to you. Life didn't peter out. Nor did you exhaust your resources. There is still as much in life as there ever was. There is still as much in you, if you'll let yourself go and not dam yourself up with cowardice and conceit.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Gifts of Love

These are the gifts of love:
More gladness for the Earth,
More trust in heaven above,
More tenderness, more mirth.

Love comes with laden hands
Bringing us priceless things,
A heart that understands,
A faith that soars and sings!

Love has no doubts or fears
To mar its joys complete,
No fierce distrust that sears;
True are its thoughts, and sweet.

These are the gifts of love:
Clear looks and honest praise,
And tranquil hours that prove
How blessed are love's ways!

Text For Today

As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness.—Psalms, xvii:15.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—New York is not going modernistic with the skyrocket burst of Paris, but the imprint of the new decor becomes distinct. Some of the tallest most recent towers are in the mode and a hotel is to be completely so, even to pen and ink wells.

Three of the big department stores tog up windows modernistically and interiors are in the sharp-angled manner. Innumerable shops on Madison and Fifth offer the modern glitter as well as a chain of drugstores. Swanky new Pierce's stresses the idea. As do two big Thirty-fourth street stores.

Modernistic designers are flocking from France and Germany—the latter country claims to have fathered the whole thing—to take posts in furniture and decorating establishments. Many Sutton Place and Park avenue apartments were done over in modern this summer.

Furnishings entirely of glass and chromium at first chilly—neat perhaps, but pontificial. But in a little while they develop warmth. I visited a modern exhibit in Europe to laugh and remained to wither a bankroll. One of the famous early American furniture devotees is a modern enthusiast.

The art is, of course, in the experimental stage, and many are awaiting further standardization before giving it a whirl. In the beginning its strict formality seemed to blend hateur and iciness into an awesome lump, but in the past year it has thawed considerably.

Criticism and stubborness have followed every new note in decoration, the age old fixation against change. Tudor and Georgian architecture inspired the same flare-ups. Housewives declare there is compensation for the coldness in the east with which the furniture is kept immaculate.

The sweep the idea has made in executive offices is illustrated by a survey. Out of 200 decorated in various modes, 96 have been furnished with modern effects. And 50 others are being flossed up this way. O, yes, and Tulsa, Okla., has a modernistic church.

As the sole proprietor of a modernistic desk and chair the idea wins a deep-throated banzai. They are the only desk and chair ever occupied not splotched with ink, smudged with thumb marks and penciled telephone numbers. One cannot whittle at glass and chromium, and if the glass suggests a hen house window a quick swipe with a sponge—and how have you been?

* * *

Jerome Beatty has a slight objection to the idea because in his modernistic study visitors frequently squat in a triangle-shaped gadget near a window. The dingbat is in reality a flower pot. All of which recalls Lew Cody's nifty, as of March 3, 1929, that he had been living in a Beverly Hills mansion for eight months before discovering it was a filling station.

* * *

John Golden was first under the wire with a comedy hit that in the Goldenish manner is as clean as the proverbial hound's tooth. In the theatrical muck of sex perversion monstrosities it is a cool drink on the Rialto's Sahara.

Ambitious young writers are frequently offended when older members of the fraternity refuse to criticize their efforts. But there are reasons. For instance, a writer told Emily Post her "Etiquette" was not in step with the times. It sold 200,000 and is still selling. Eddie Guest was told by a dozen syndicate men his daily poem would never do. Peter B. Kyne was advised to remain in the lumber business. Similar incidents are endless.

The most beautiful penmanship coming to my desk for years is that of professional ballplayers. Standing out in the list are Christy Mathewson, Mike Donlin, Jas. A. Wiggs, Eddie Grant, Bill Wambsganns, Mike Mitchell and Miller Huggins. There are others, too, I cannot recall. It is always a surprise, for due to the Ring Lardner influence, many think of ballplayers as bush league boneheads. Aside from extraordinarily fine handwriting, they express themselves more intelligently than the average correspondent. Some day we'd like to have Damon Runyon give this idea a twirl.

He was a solitary stew nodding over a cooling cup of coffee in a Seventh avenue coffee pot joint. Finally the counterman shook his shoulders. He slowly straightened up, glared and mumbled: "I wouldn't buy a zebra if you gave it to me"—and with amusing effort at dignity lurched out.

Another twist in a changing world—the pants pocket watch resembling the cigaret lighter and opening with a snap. Globe trotting Tommy Millard dropped into town with one a year ago. Now they snap everywhere. Wales and King Alphonso are recent converts to what London calls the "trouser tick."

Stopping in a Fourteenth street store to replace a broken shoe lace a clerk tried to sell me a pair of cloth top shoes with dull aluminum buttons. "Catches the ladies," he said, laughing richly the fresh squirt.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Perhaps you find yourself with a larger income than you ever expected to command.

You remember when you thought that half the amount would satisfy you.

Are you happy?

No, you want still more and live in constant fear of losing what you have.

You are not having the pleasure you thought would be yours.

Your thoughts are so wrapped up in making more and fear of losing some that you have little time left and no desire to think of anything but your financial possessions.

Money is your god and it, alone, you worship.

As an employer you are niggardly, perhaps, in the wages you pay because you prefer a larger accumulation for yourself rather than the good of your men.

You have as much as your family and you will ever need, so why the determination to carry on the fight for increasing fortune.

There are many commendable ways you might get more out of life than it now affords you.
